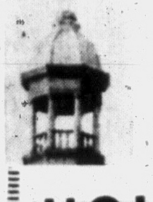
Rebels 'Ready to Die' For Quebec Freedom



In Our HOUSE

By Arthur Mayse

★ ★ ★

If you have much to do with children, you learn not to worry over-much when the thud is followed by a hearty yowl. It's silence that brings parents on the run.

In our House, same difference.

When the Opposition proffered affidavits alleging misuse of public funds, Gordon Dowding's statement was delivered without bombast and received in somber quiet.

Friday afternoon's heat lightning over university grants that fall short of the academic 'gimme' was noisy and wild, but can be written off as little more than a tension-breaker.

Better Defenced

I note it here for two reasons. The first is that our young Dr. Pat McGeer, who lost a round earlier in the week to Attorney-General Bonner, has apparently learned the unwisdom of leading with his chin.

The new Liberal member and UBC assistant professor stated his case for the universities with force and precision. In the crossfire that followed, he returned the government nay-sayers considerably better than they hurled at him.

Uncle Gerry McGeer remembered as a pretty good hand with the Irish confetti, would have been proud of his bespectacled nephew Friday.

The other point I would note, while admittedly speculative, might be tucked away for future reference. It seems to me that during these last weeks, some of the field of force in which our premier moves has been dissipated. He strikes me as a tired and worried man. The smile-grooves still mark his face, but the smile which is so salient a feature of the Bennett public image appears less often.

Leader Loses

At least once each session, I'm told, the premier and NDP Randolph Harding treat themselves to a head-clash.

Friday was their day for a shattering of lances; and when the dust cleared, it was Mr. Bennett not Mr. Harding, who had bitten the dust.

For the dominant figure in a dominant party, such reversals are not good. They could conceivably lead to an end perhaps crueller than the fate of a Caesar or a Huey Long: the decline into political nonentity suffered under this same dome by the deposed premier from whom Mr. Bennett—a watchfully quiet Conservative in those years—learned some of his choicest gambits.

Thorns Too

Increased vocational training has been advocated by all parties this week in the House. The rose isn't without its thorn, though; and I could wish Opposition Leader Strachan had spoken at greater length on the virtues of the old-fashioned apprentice system.

Another who suggested that prefabricated voca-

CABINET APPOINTMENTS TO BE MADE ON MONDAY

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today he plans to announce the names of "two or three" new cabinet ministers Monday morning shortly before he leaves the capital to resume his election campaign.

The prime minister parried questions about the cabinet appointments, saying only that "at least one" of the appointees would be from Quebec. "I've gone as far as I'm going," he added. The rest of the details would have to wait until Monday.

PEARSON:

'Consider The Future Of Canada'

By JAMES NELSON

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson, one month before election day, has called on Canadians to vote a strong Liberal government into office April 8 for a four-year term during which it will introduce a national health plan.

He wound up two weeks of campaigning, which took him from the Maritime provinces to Saskatchewan, with an appeal in the Lakehead for considered judgment of long-range future of Canada before voters cast their ballots.

Earlier Friday, in Selkirk, Man., he said a government should act during its term of office as though it expects to retire after four years, wrapping up its pledged program before it goes, and not defer unpopular decision or calculate its future on the basis of the next election day.

"The Conservative campaign seems to be based on three factors: That the situation is oppressive, that the Liberals are obstructive, and the Americans are offensive," Mr. Pearson said.

"I don't think that is quite enough in facing the problems that we have to face in Canada today."

RESTATES PLATFORM

He restated in summary the Liberal platform to a jam-packed audience of 2,200 in the Lakehead Exhibition Coliseum where he received warm applause from most of his listeners and few interjections.

The first priority is to restore confidence, to clean up our affairs and to put things in order. The second is to provide jobs by expanding and developing the economy—and do something about the 541,000 men and women who in January of this year—a year which, we are told, is one of 'unparalleled expansion'—are looking for jobs."

Mr. Pearson said, however, concentration on this second objective would not bar his government if elected, from introducing some needed social security measures immediately. One would be supplementary old age pensions based on contributions by employers and employees, thus making no additional charge on the treasury.

Another immediate measure would be "changes in the nature of assistance for agriculture, changes without additional burden on our treasury."

HEALTH COMES NEXT

Once these priorities have been met, Mr. Pearson added, his government could go on to other worthwhile measures, paid for out of increased revenues from increased economic activity. One will be the national health plan.

The Liberal leader, speaking in the home constituency of Douglas Fisher, CCF and NDP member of Parliament who upset the late trade minister C. D. Howe in 1957, strongly attacked the New Democratic Party, saying its highest ambition is to prevent any other party from having a majority in Parliament.

Dynamite Factory Ripped by Blasts

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—Four violent explosions ripped through the world's largest dynamite factory near here today, killing at least three persons and injuring 27 others.

Officials said two Negroes and one white man were killed, although the number of Negro casualties still was being checked.

They said earlier reports of a possible 35 to 40 dead were exaggerated.

Officials at the factory hospital said 18 white and nine nonwhite casualties have been admitted.

The explosions at the factory at Modderfontein, 16 miles from Johannesburg, were heard as far as 20 miles away. People living within a five-mile radius said their homes were shaken to the foundations and windows blown in.

The factory area was evacuated, except for essential personnel, for fear of further explosions.

A pilot who flew over the vast factory complex said there were four big craters in the site and trees were uprooted and scorched all around it.

Officials said an explosives stores and three other buildings were destroyed and surrounding buildings extensively damaged.

The factory, belonging to African Explosives and Chemical Industries, employes about 4,000 persons of all races.

It was established in 1894. Besides producing more than 3,000,000 cases of explosives annually, it manufactures nitrogen, ammonia and other chemicals for basic scientific research.

The explosives are used chiefly in South Africa's rich gold mining industry.

DIEFENBAKER:

'Nobody Loves Me But People'

By DON HANRIGHT

BELLEVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker Friday night wound up a four-day southern Ontario tour as he began it—appealing for non-partisan support for what he called "the great crusade."

About 2,000 persons jammed into a collegiate hall and adjoining classrooms—biggest crowd since he began Tuesday night before 3,000 at Vineland, near St. Catharines—to hear him say he has been maligned and degraded by the Liberals but is "coming to think that everybody's against me but the people."

He spoke to about 1,000 persons—including some 200 students—in a high school at Port Hope, 70 miles east of Toronto, in the afternoon before moving by train to Belleville.

Polishing the same speech he delivered through Ontario, he accused the Liberals not only of "strangling" Parliament but of "diatribes against me which have been of the greatest possible assistance because the people are starting to realize what has been going on."

Again he said "and they haven't denied it" that recent cover-story treatment of him in an American magazine (Newsweek) was "conceived in Ottawa. . . . There were members of the Liberal who's who and the lesser who's who, who produced this thing."

'SATAN HAS COMPETITION'

Mr. Diefenbaker said of the caricature photo of him on the magazine's cover that "Satan must think he has competition down here on earth."

He called the Liberals "mugwumps" because now that the economy was on the "upswing" they refused to discuss it, whereas in the 1962 election campaign they had predicted economic ruin and "down, down, down, down graded Canada."

In one of his appeals for support in a "hard fight" he said in part:

SPEAKS OF UNITY

Speaking of his drive for racial unity in Canada, he said there was a time in the Conservative party when a man of non-British or non-French origin could not have become prime minister because "a geneological tree was more important than citizenship."

But he said there still are Conservative party members who oppose his leadership—"they were against me in 1956 and they're against me again today." This was a reference to the 1956 convention where he won the party leadership.

Noting that he has been charged with indecision, he rapped Liberal Leader Pearson for making what he said were nine changes in his nuclear policy in three years and said "the Pearson formula for decisiveness is here a policy, there a policy, everywhere a policy."

UBC Grant Issue Stirs Sharp Row In Legislature

By FRANK RUTTER

Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett lost his temper Friday and demanded the resignation of rookie MLA Dr. Patrick McGeer.

The Vancouver-Point Grey Liberal, an assistant professor of medicine at the University of B.C., touched off the most violent debate of the session in the legislature.

The subject was higher education, just one day after Education Minister Leslie Peterson had told the House of the government's plans to implement the recommendations of UBC president Dr. John Macdonald's report.

During the course of the day-long debate, Dr. McGeer suggested there was a conspiracy of silence between the UBC board of governors and the government about costs.

NO BLANK CHEQUE

He called for increased operating grants to both Victoria College and UBC, while Mr. Peterson answered with a refusal to supply a blank cheque, although he indicated the government might consider more money without making any promise—an apparent reference to Thursday's pledge to supply funds from coming revenue.

At one stage the debate degenerated into a slanging match between those who have university degrees and those who have not.

Dr. McGeer was "blooded" as he duelled with the government on all aspects of university financing.

He charged that Victoria College this year is getting only 40 per cent of its requested budget, UBC 35 per cent.

The House relapsed into disorder a number of times, reaching a climax just at the close of debate and ultimate approval of the $93,000,000 education department estimates.

His finger shaking, his face grim, the premier shouted at Dr. McGeer: "Resign . . . resign."

He said he could not hold two jobs at once—UBC teacher and MLA.

He said Dr. McGeer's criticism was "disgraceful."

Tony Gargrave (NDP—Mackenzie) angrily retorted that he was considering presenting a bill to ensure protection of MLA's jobs. He said the prem-

THESE GRANTS STARTED FUSS

These are the grants that caused the legislative explosion Friday:

Victoria College: $1,454,000 general grant; $700,000 capital grant;

UBC: $8,575,000 general grant; $5,000,000 capital.

Montreal Armories 'Bombed'

MONTREAL (CP)—Leaflets left in three Montreal area armories say Le Front de Liberation Quebecois (The Quebec Liberation Front) "is a revolutionary movement made up of volunteers ready to die for the economic and political independence of Quebec."

The leaflets were left after kerosene-filled "Molotov cocktails" were tossed at three armories in the Montreal area Thursday night and Friday.

The bombs failed to explode.

The home-made incendiaries—using beer and liquor bottles—were thrown at the Royal Montreal Regiment armory in suburban Westmount, the Victorian Rifles of Canada drill hall on Cathcart Street and the armory of the 4th Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, on northwest Lacombe Avenue.

The army immediately announced it was adding guards to watch over all Montreal area armories.

One Quebec separatist group, the Republican Party of Quebec headed by Marcel Chaput, condemned the action in a statement.

The statement said "independence for Quebec will not come through a revolution but by peaceful negotiation based on the voice of the people expressed during an election or democratic referendum."

Wicks were attached to the bottles and these were set afire before the incendiaries were thrown, the army said. No damage was reported.

The roughly typewritten leaflets said "the suicide commandos" of the FLQ have as their main mission to destroy "completely by systematic sabotage":

"All symbols and colonial (federal) institutions, in particular the RCMP and the armed forces;

"All information media in the colonial language which hold us in contempt;

"All enterprises and commercial establishments which discriminate against Quebecers, which do not use French as their first language, which have advertising signs in the colonial (English) language;

"All factories which discriminate against French-speaking employees."

Electoral 'Takeover' Alleged

WINNIPEG (CP)—J. Frank Syms, New Democratic Party candidate for Springfield in the April 8 federal election, has asked for an investigation of an alleged Conservative "takeover" of the electoral machinery in the riding.

Mr. Syms released to the press a copy of a March 8 letter to Nelson Castonguay, chief electrical officer, which says:

"I am requesting an immediate investigation by you into an alleged take-over of the electoral machinery in Springfield riding by the Conservative Association, and specifically, the replacement of an already appointed deputy returning officer because of that person's refusal to join the Conservative party."

The letter says Mrs. Alice Cook, after being certified as a deputy by returning officer William Horodyski Feb. 18, was visited Feb. 24 by a representative of the Conservative party and asked to join the party. She refused.

On March 2, the letter says, Mrs. Cook received a letter from Mr. Horodyski saying she had been replaced as a deputy, Mr. Syms adds:

"I consider this a moral as well as a practical issue and I would urge you to investigate the situation in Springfield even if this meant delaying the election in that riding."

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

When a group of singers and music lovers visited backstage this week with international opera star Cesare Valletti, a spokesman commented: "We could have listened to you all night."

"I could have sung all night," responded the handsome singer, flexing his diaphragm.

A slight edge in his tone suggested that he had noted the uncouth hurry to depart on the part of a considerable section of his audience.

Even before Valetti had sung his second encore, with the clock hands standing at 10 and one of the world's great artists clearly willing to continue for at least another 10 or 15 minutes, whole sections of the audience indicated they wanted no more of him by a unmannerly rising and shoving out into the aisles.

This sort of thing is hardly likely to raise the city's reputation for appreciation of the arts.

While we struggle and disagree over amalgamation here, they accomplish it in Japan with ease and even commemorate the event with a new 10-yen stamp.

Recent English language copy of The Mainichi Daily News records that five industrial cities in northern Kyushu (the southernmost main island of Japan) were amalgamated on Feb. 10 as a new city of one million population.

The five cities are Moji, Kokura, Yahata, Wakamatsu and Tobata.

"They border each other and are closely tied with each other economically and culturally," the Mainichi News says. Amalgamation was undertaken "to raise administrative efficiency in the area and also to help develop industries." New city is named Kita Kyushu (Northern Kyushu).

Money is not nearly as important as most people think, British Methodist minister Dr. Donald Soper told a public meeting here Friday night.

"Credit is a lot more important."

He told of a tobacconist and a butcher in London who occupied adjacent premises. For 50 years they bought goods from each other with a bad shilling. It was a standing joke, but they traded the shilling back and forth in exchange for goods and the value of the shilling was never questioned.

"Although the shilling had no monetary value, the credit exchange between them was sound," Dr. Soper declared.

Royal Guards in Brig After Strike Action

LONDON (Reuters) — Military police today arrested 14 of 25 privates of the famed Scots Guard Regiment who walked out of camp Friday shortly before they were to take up sentry duty at Windsor Castle.

An army spokesman said: "We hope the remaining 11 will be sensible and make their way back to Pirbright (where their barracks is located) this morning."

The soldiers were reported to have held a meeting Friday night in a London apartment. The London Daily Mirror says the men drew up a list of grievances which they presented to the paper's reporters.

These included allegations that men excused from duty by medical officers were ordered to do guard duties and fatigues; that at Windsor Castle (one of the Queen's residences) guards were made to scrub the guardroom after sentry duty; and that they were fed black potatoes and "rotten" meat.

Civil and military police visited the apartment but found no trace of the men.

Later the 25 appeared in a pub near the apartment.

"They certainly brightened things up," said bartender John Marle.

Another group of soldiers went on duty at the castle Friday night.

CHINESE CASTING EYES AT SIBERIA?

LONDON (UPI) — British experts said today Red China has served notice on the Kremlin that it may try eventually to recover vast reaches of land Tsarist Russia wrested from the tottering Chinese empire.

The experts noted that was specifically included in the list of "imperialist and colonialist powers" which the Peking Communist Peoples' Daily" said Friday had imposed "unequal treaties" on China.

"By virtue of these unequal treaties, they annexed Chinese territory in the north, south, east and west, and held leased territories on the seaboard and in the hinterland," the editorial said.

GOAL AVERAGE MARGIN OVER LEICESTER

Tottenham Holds Lead

LONDON (AP) — Cliff Jones, Tottenham's flying left winger, soared above the Manchester United defenders today and headed a goal that kept Spurs in the lead for the English League championship.

Tottenham defeated United 2-0 at Manchester's old Trafford Stadium and kept its nose ahead of Leicester City on goal average.

Leicester defeated Blackburn Rovers 2-0 and stayed level on points with Tottenham. Each has 41, but Tottenham has played 28 games and Leicester 29.

Everton downed Nottingham Forest 2-0 and stayed in third place with 37 points from 26 games.

Jones' goal — a spectacular header from a centre by England centre-forward Bobby Smith came in the 33rd minute of game watched by 53,000 fans. Frank Saul, stand-in right winger, made it 2-0 in the second half from Jimmy Greaves' pass.

Denis Law, Scottish international inside forward who formerly starred for Torino of Italy, missed two great chances for Manchester.

A crowd of 25,000 cheered Leicester to its ninth straight win. Blackburn goalkeeper Fred Else kept out all Leicester's scoring attempts in the first half, but right winger Howard Riley and inside left Mike Stringfellow sent shots past him in the second half.

Nottingham Forest used an all-out defence plan at Everton, and the 50,000 fans booed the visiting team off the field for negative tactics.

STAYS IN RACE

Everton got a goal in each half and stayed in the championship race. Centre-forward Alex Young scored in the 12th minute after goalkeeper Peter Grummitt had failed to hold a long dropping shot from right-back Alex Parker.

Parker was sent up into the attack and made it 2-0 in the second half. This time Grummit allowed the ball to slip under his body.

But he made several fine saves afterwards and stopped Everton from adding to the score.

Burnley slipped further in the race by dropping a home point to West Ham. Inside-right Ray Pointer sent Burnley into the lead early in the second half, but Johnny Byrne grabbed the equalizer for West Ham, five minutes from the end.

Vocational training, the minister warned, must be geared to the needs of provincial industry.

It is not government's intention to flood the province "with surplus graduates whose skills are not required."

Also, his department's academic up-grading course — designed to provide minimum education for would-be vocational trainees — has found itself scratching for applicants. A total of 23,000 prospects yielded a mere 288 students for the course; 54 from Victoria and the balance from Vancouver.

NDP CHIEF WINDS UP PRAIRIE SWING

'Fat Cats Invade Liberal Party'

By ED TREFIAK

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP)—T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, capped a three-day election campaign swing through central Saskatchewan Friday night with an attack on Liberal party policies.

His hour-long speech, before a capacity audience of 380 in a parish hall, also touched on agricultural problems, economic and social reform and the NDP stand against nuclear arms for Canada.

He addresses a meeting in Saskatoon tonight and leaves for Vancouver Sunday.

Mr. Douglas said the Liberal party has substituted opinion polls and public relations experts for leadership.

"They have been invaded by the fat cats of industry and finance. The Liberal campaign has been an exercise of the denial of leadership."

He said Liberal Leader Pearson urges a clean election campaign "and at the same time engages in red-baiting smears." Although the Liberal leader had said Canadians didn't want election promises, he "makes them by the bushel."

SEEKS EXPLANATION

"Mr. Pearson says medicare and portable pensions must take second place in Canada. He refuses to say why, in a country so richly endowed as Canada and so far behind already in the field of public welfare, we should get even further behind.

"Mr. Pearson refuses to discuss nuclear weapons and explain why, after opposing nuclear weapons from 1959, he suddenly found on Jan. 12, 1963, that we had a so-called commitment which we must honor."

Mr. Douglas said the Progressive Conservatives "have plundered the unemployment insurance fund instead of tackling unemployment. They have crumbled in office."

"I pledge myself that if we haven't enough members to form a government, we will support any party that has. We will not coalesce, but we will support any party so long as what it does is for the good of the country."

He spoke earlier to an audience of about 800 students crowded into a hall at the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon. Hundreds more crowded staircases and corridors in the building.

Mr. Douglas easily fielded hecklers' remarks during the 60-minute speech, which concentrated on the party's opposition to Canadian acquisition of nuclear weapons. The speech was carried on a campus-wide public address system.

Cafe Liquor Ban Termed 'Ambiguous'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A section of the British Columbia Liquor Act may be "ambiguous," says Mr. Justice T. W. Brown, but nevertheless it's the law.

So the case of Maye Belanchuk goes back to Magistrate L. H. Jackson.

The woman was accused of having a small bottle of liquor in her purse in a downtown cafe. The bottle was still sealed with the control board seal.

Magistrate Jackson dismissed the charge when the woman told him she was en route home and had dropped into the restaurant for dinner.

The attorney-general's department ordered the magistrate's ruling placed before a Supreme Court judge.

Mr. Justice Brown ruled that the innocent complexion of the findings could not prevail against the "ambiguous prohibition" of section 81 of the act, which prohibits liquor being taken into a cafe.

"It may be said that the result in this case is so painful to a well-intended person that it approaches the ludicrous, but I am afraid that that is a matter for the legislature."

Reds Claim U.S. Used Poison Gas

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union charged today that the United States has used poison gas against civilians in South Viet Nam and that hundreds of persons have perished.

"The world has become witness of another monstrous crime," says Krasnaya Evesda (Red Star), official organ of the Soviet defence ministry. "The American interventionists have again used poison substances in South Viet Nam. Hundreds of people perished, a great quantity of cattle was poisoned."

The newspaper says the U.S. manufactured a poison gas called "GB" at a factory near Denver from a formula captured from the Nazis, and loaded it into the warheads of rockets, bombs and missiles at the same spot.

"The cross-ocean strategists greedily grasped whatever the Hitlerite criminals didn't dare to use," Red Star adds.

'LAUGH AT AGONIES'

It calls the alleged American action "cannibalistic steps" and said Americans were "chuckling with satisfaction" at the so-called "painful agonies of South Vietnamese women and children."

The newspaper says that so far the use of chemical weapons "is limited to one colonial war, but who can guarantee that the peoples of other countries will not suffer from them too?"

Observers recalled that during the Korean War the Communist side charged that the U.S. used germ warfare.

The article, quoted by Tass, is signed by Capt. Vasili Pustov and Maj. Vladimir Polyansky.

They say that, despite world indignation, Washington is maintaining a "stubborn silence."

Youth Fined For Stealing Gas From Cars

Colin T. de Macedo, 18, of 1875 Venture Way, was given in Saanich police court Thursday a six-month suspended sentence and fined $25 on two charges of theft of gasoline from cars.

The offences occurred Jan. 18 and Feb. 10 in different locations in the municipality, and in the presence of a juvenile.

Restitution was made in both cases.

At the same sitting of the Saanich court, Vickers D. Henderson, 1331 Vining, pleaded guilty to stealing five gallons of gas Sunday evening from a car parked at 4261 Quadra.

Court was told he was one of three youths who siphoned the gasoline from the tank of the car when their own vehicle ran out of gas.

He was remanded one week for sentence.

SAWMILL MEN ASK 60 CENTS

PORTLAND (AP) — The Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union intends to ask a 60-cent hourly wage increase, spread over a three-year period, when negotiations open in the Pacific Northwest lumber industry this spring.

That is 20 cents more than the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) recently said they would seek.

Canadian A-Weapons 'Clinical Insanity'

It would be "clinical insanity" for Canada to adopt nuclear weapons, British Methodist minister Dr. Donald Soper told some 400 persons at a public meeting in Metropolitan United Church Friday night.

Dr. Soper warned that mankind is "nearer the verge of total destruction" than ever before in history and the time has gone by when we can talk sanely about "nuclear defence."

An avowed Pacifist and member of the British Labor Party and the London County Council, the 54-year-old minister declared:

"If one great nation lays down its arms, I believe it would break the evil circle of mass violence which threatens our world today.

NO RECONCILIATION

"I am a Pacifist because I believe it is impossible to reconcile wa with the Christian life . . . I have been asked what I would do if Russian troops marched up Kingsway (London). I don't know just what would happen, but I think we would offer them one of our Methodist teas."

Dr. Soper said the word Communism produces a "kind of apoplexy" in the United States "because they don't understand it." He claimed there is a world of difference between the Communism of Khrushchev and the earlier regime of Stalin.

"True, Communism is still violent, but so is American policy. It is sheer impudence to say that the only invaders of Cuba are Communists. There has been a full-blown American base on Cuba for some time."

CAMPAIGN PARLEY between Victoria Liberal candidate David Groos, right, and party national leader Lester Pearson took place in the east recently. Pearson is expected at rally here March 29, but date is still tentative. The leader's itinerary is being divulged one week at a time to baffle opponents who might set their rallies on same dates, a headquarters spokesman said.

City May Have to Borrow To Repair Police Station

City council may have to borrow money later this year for the renovation and expansion of police headquarters, Acting Mayor Ald. Arthur Dowell said Friday.

Ald. Dowell was commenting on a statement by Chief Constable John Blackstock that a new police station is a "must" for efficient operation of the force.

In his annual report, Chief Blackstock said the department has outgrown its present headquarters.

"In many respects, I agree with the police chief," said Ald. Dowell, who is chairman of the city council's finance committee.

He said the Fisgard Street headquarters are "totally inadequate" for present needs, but added that no decisive steps should be taken until former Vancouver police chief George Archer's survey of the department is complete.

SPACE NEEDED

Chief Blackstock said the jail and all major divisions of the department require additional space.

"Consideration must also be given to provision of a crime laboratory, as this is most important in crime detection today." (At present specimens are sent to the RCMP laboratory in Regina.)

Chief Blackstock said Victoria is gradually losing ground in its unceasing war against crime in this area in spite of the continued vigilance of all divisions of the force.

"I would like to stress, however, that this trend . . . is not confined to any particular locality, but is a condition that is prevalent all across the country."

FOUR FACTORS

He cited four major factors affecting local crime:

1. Rapid expansion of population in the city and surrounding areas. 2. Better transportation links with the mainland. 3. The steady influx of newcomers, including a percentage with criminal records. 4. The steadily increasing number of juvenile offenders.

Chief Blackstock said that in 1962 the total value of cash and goods obtained by all types of crime was the largest ever recorded by the department.

Last year the figure reached $131,220 compared with the 1961 total of $101,407. Recoveries of stolen cash and goods made by the department during 1962 amounted to $56,540.

Couple Convicted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A superior court jury Friday night found Iva and Ralph Kroeger guilty of first degree murder in the strangulation slayings of an elderly invalid and his ex-wife.

Mrs. Kroeger, 44, a glib grandmother who interrupted the eight-week trial dozens of times with shrill courtroom outbursts, had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity as well as innocent. A sanity trial for her will follow under California law.

Students Panic, Push In High School Blaze

BELLPORT, N.Y. (AP) — "The kids behind were screaming and pushing," David Hassell said. "I was terrified!"

From a bed crowded into a hospital corridor the 18-year-old senior described the panic of a flash fire which trapped scores of students on the second floor of Bellport High School Friday.

Hassell was shoved through a window and broke both kneecaps landing on a paved area.

The smoke, flames and frantic plunges to earth injured 44 students and a teacher. Critically hurt were Hassell, John Allers, 13, and fireman Richard Harrow. These three, and 34 others, were in hospital early today. Eight others were treated and released.

ALL SURVIVE

"Thank God, no one is dead!" said Thomas Feeney, principal of the school in this eastern Long Island village of 2,500, about 75 miles east of New York City.

The fire started in the ceiling of the combination auditorium-gymnasium in the school's old wing, built in 1919, apparently from defective wiring, according to the first guesses of fire authorities.

About 900 students and 65 teachers were in the building when the alarm sounded, 15 minutes before school was to be dismissed.

Many thought it was just a drill, said survivors. Those in the new wing and the ground floor of the old wing got out without trouble.

Hassell, a volunteer fireman as well as student, was in a second-floor science class.

RUNS TO WINDOW

"I ran to a window at the end of the hall," he recalled, "but a lot of kids were pushing and I couldn't get it open.

"So I broke out a pane and started to crawl through it. Before I knew I was pushed out."

Mr. Groos Reaffirmed

THE NOMINATION OF MR. David Groos has been reaffirmed by the Victoria Liberal Association executive in a meeting which throws clear light on differences arising from the earlier and confused session at which he was first named standard-bearer.

He has been chosen because, among other qualifications of high merit, he represents the Liberal Party. His closest opponent in the original nominations, Mr. Foster Isherwood, is now revealed as a man determined to seek office—on the Liberal ticket if he could get it, without it if he could not.

That point became obvious as Mr. Geoffrey Ellis began the announcement of his resignation from the presidency of the Victoria Liberal Association. Mr. Ellis had previously stated that he would quit unless another nomination ballot were taken.

In fact he submitted his resignation before the executive had voted on the question which he had abandoned by saying: "As it is quite obvious that Mr. Isherwood has decided to run as an independent Liberal (later the Isherwood interests struck out the word 'Liberal'), there is no point in my carrying on any further my request for a new nomination."

For members of the Liberal Party in this community the position of Mr. Isherwood has been clarified. He stands for Mr. Isherwood, win, lose or draw in the party nomination contest.

Two other members of the Liberal executive have resigned, men identified with the Isherwood campaign. Attending the executive session were 33 qualified members. The three resignations submitted at that meeting, while unfortunate, scarcely signify a widespread revolt.

The party membership here and the people of Victoria who want the best representation they can get at Ottawa, thus have the issue clearly before them. They have a candidate to support who represents the Liberal point of view and who, with sufficient endorsement from all the voters, can help to restore to Canada stability in government.

When those disturbed by interpretations placed on the original nomination have had a chance to consider the question with reason rather than emotion, they will see the wisdom of the reaffirmed choice. It gives them a chance to support principle rather than opportunism.

This must be a determining factor in next month's voting if Canada is to regain stability in government. After the disintegration of Mr. Diefenbaker's party, clearly shown last June and emphasized by cabinet division in recent weeks, the Liberals offer the only hope of providing a government which can govern. Such a possibility is beyond the powers of the CCF-NDP and Social Credit splinter groups.

And in Victoria the Liberals have a candidate for whom the voters can mark their ballots with confidence, a person of integrity with the capacities to give them the type of representation this community needs.

The Empty Oratory

MR. DIEFENBAKER APPARently believes that news travels slowly, or that what he says in one country never reaches another. What he said in Canada about Britain and the Common Market, for instance, was somewhat different from what he said at the London conference. What he said about encouraging British trade was somewhat different from what he and his tariff advisers did about it. And what he recently said in London about foreign aid presumably was never intended to reach Canada, where the real facts are known.

In London, Mr. Diefenbaker told a distinguished audience that "I believe that we must produce and carry out greater designs for assistance, co-operatively among the countries of the Commonwealth on behalf of the underdeveloped countries within the Commonwealth."

It was a noble statement, coming well from one who had just received the freedom of the City of London.

But what of the facts? It was Mr. Diefenbaker's government which cut Canada's contribution to the Colombo Plan from $50 millions to $41.5 millions.

In an age when the concern of advanced countries is to aid those less well to do, to give them immediate help in meeting their food requiments and at the same time assist them to increase their economy so as to be self-supporting—in such an age Canada's contribution is far below what it should be. Only about one-fifth of one per cent of our gross national product is spent on this humanitarian program—a very casual effort.

In such circumstances and at such a time, Mr. Diefenbaker saw fit to reduce the total still further. That was a poor show but might find support through some sort of argument. It appears even worse when accompanied by high-sounding but empty words about carrying out greater designs for assistance.

Yet in how many other spheres have Mr. Diefenbaker's high-sounding words proved empty when measured against what is actually done? Canadian voters have had enough of visions, rallying calls and other froth. Now they will judge by actions, and the do-nothing administration of the past months must be found lamentably lacking.

Well-Earned Congratulations

GOVERNMENTS COME AND go, the membership of the legislative chamber changes with the years, but a note of permanence is provided by the legislative staff which carries on through one administration after another.

This is particularly true of Mr. E. K. DeBeck, legislative clerk, who on Thursday reached his eightieth birthday amid the congratulations of members and clerical colleagues. A silent and lasting rock in the stormy seas of controversy which sweep the legislature, Mr. DeBeck, as one member observed, has added "distinction and grace" to the chamber. Like many of his unsung colleagues, he serves the people well.

The Hollow Threat

MR. ALVIN HAMILTON, AGRIculture minister in what is left of Mr. Diefenbaker's cabinet, does not lack courage on the hustings. He has not only taken on the Liberals, the Social Crediters, the New Democrats and any independents who may be lurking around—he has not hesitated to take on the United States.

"Don't push us around, chum!" Mr. Hamilton has warned the 180 million people to the south. Since he is in the midst of an election campaign, he obviously thinks this show of belligerence will win him votes from Canadian voters. But why? How will cocking a snook or even shaking a fist at the United States help to solve the pressing national problems which Mr. Diefenbaker and his government failed to solve?

The anti-American gambit as an election issue didn't appeal to Mr. Hees, Mr. Sevigny and other Diefenbaker ministers who got off that band-wagon before it even began to roll. But Mr. Diefenbaker is still determined to lick the Yankees. It sounds grand on a platform, it doesn't cost a thing (as long as the Yankees remain patient), and it doesn't constitute a promise you have to keep. Mr. Hamilton agrees, and is using the gimmick in his campaign.

It's a substitute for a platform, all right, but where does it get you? Mr. Hamilton may find it irritates more Canadians than Americans. Sooner or later some Canadian in the back row is going to yell: "Don't push US around, chump!"

Bouncing Speeches

THERE MAY BE NO DIRECT comparison between political parties in Britain and those of similar name or ideology in this country.

This does not, however, blunt the application of some criticism voiced recently by Mr. Jo. Grimond, leader of Britain's Liberals, against the Conservative Party of Mr Harold Macmillan.

After noting that "many people in the country have grown a hide off which the speeches of politicians bounce like peanuts off an elephant," he partially explained public skepticism.

People are cynical, he said, because they see the Tories, still unable to solve the country's economic troubles but all ready once again to buy votes by means of a popular budget which would be the forerunner of yet another economic crisis.

The comment is pertinent enough to deserve notice in Canada.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

A DRIVE out to McDonald Park near Sidney can be rewarding.

If you walk around the roads of the camp site you will see many species of trees in this well-mixed forest growth. There are several groves of the Bitter Cherry with its straight, slender branches and reddish bark which grows around the trunk as with the birches.

The Indians used strips of this bark to give color to their basket weaving.

Here the Salmon Berry is in bloom with its delicate pink flower. The Red Elderberry is seen with its sharp, pointed leaflets standing out on each side of the stem. This shrub will often send out shoots five or six feet tall in one season.

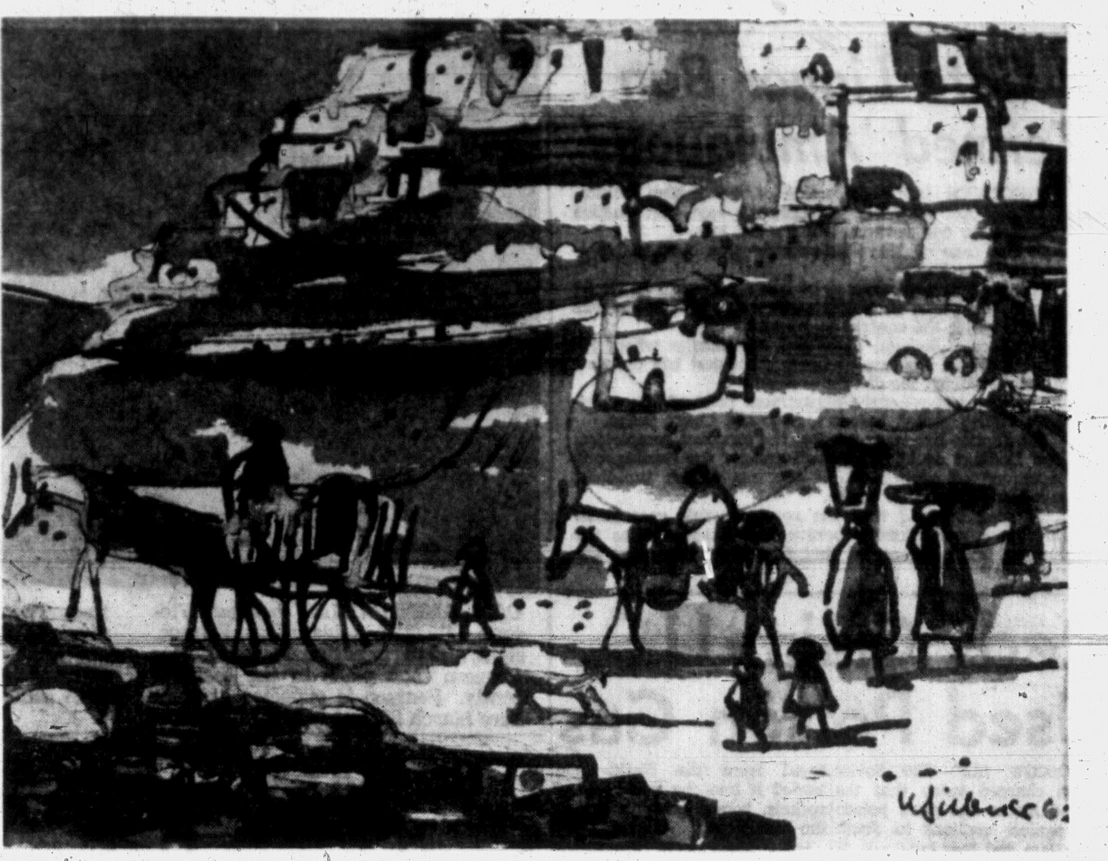
There are numerous paths around the site and along them you can see several fine specimens of the Arbutus trees with dull yellow trunks that invite you to feel their smoothness.

There are several clumps of the Red Flowering Currant in bloom. The small red clusters droop and invite the bees to seek the honey; the five-lobed leaves look like miniature maple leaves.

This shrub is a favorite of the humming bird which can often be seen hovering around the bushes.

There is a high, rocky knoll to the neartheast from where one can see across Shoal Harbor to the small islands with the snow-capped peak of Mt. Baker in the distance. The sand spit of Sidney Island looks like a ribbon on the sea.

Looking down on the mud flats of the harbor you may see one of the Great Blue Herons that nest in this locality. This bird will stalk along in the shallows, then suddenly its head will dart into the water and mud so quickly it just seems a blur.



Continuing his European study tour, Victoria artist Herbert Siebner writes: "Driving through the barren country around Potenza, one sees more mules and donkeys on the road than automobiles. Farmers are returning from the fields; the women walk along gracefully, balancing their loads on their heads. One thinks that suddenly a character from the 15th century might come around the corner, for the country life here has changed little since that time. The hand, the mule, the cart—these predominate, not the motor."

FROM WASHINGTON

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Will the Bones Have Hardened in Two or Three Years?

IT is necessary to take a closer look at the bland and cheery words of the President of the European Economic Community, Dr. Walter Hallstein. When he was in Washington on Monday, he asked us to be "patient" and assured us that Britain would be admitted "eventually," perhaps even within two years. Considering this, we are bound to ask what can happen in two years to transform the Anglo-Saxon oceanic islands of Britain into a qualified European state capable of playing an equal part with France and Germany in European affairs?

Lippmann

I think I know what Dr. Hallstein means, having heard him say when I was in Brussels at the beginning of December that the British application had come too late—the British had refused to join at the beginning in 1957—and the application had now come too early, for in the "Europe" which the six founders are making, "the bones are not yet hardened."

Why, we must wonder, will the bones have hardened in two or three years? The answer to this question is the key to much that is happening.

This is the year 1963, and following Article 8 of the Treaty of Rome, the six are in the second year of this second of the three "stages" prescribed in the treaty. During this second stage, the veto, which might have delayed the ending of stage one, can be used only to prevent delay.

During stage two, the six, having agreed on the broad principles of agricultural policy, are putting the power to work out the terms of the agreement on Dr. Hallstein's commission. In effect, it becomes a Federal European Ministry of Agriculture.

The critical fact is that internal agricultural prices will be set in this period. The height of the Common Agricultural Tariff is determined by the internal prices, since it is a variable levy calculated to protect European products.

We are now in a position to see why we are advised to be patient for two years. During these two years, the agricultural policy of the Common Market, with France the main beneficiary and West Germany a lesser beneficiary, is to be formed without the British being present. The bones that are to harden during the British absence are the agricultural tariffs and levies which will penalize America, the Commonwealth and the Latin-American farmers in favor of French and West German farmers.

In the case of wheat, for example, French support prices are now about $2.15 a bushel. The German support prices are more than $3 a bushel. At the West German support price, on which France and West Germany might easily make a deal, it is estimated that 6,000,000 acres in France would be brought into the production of wheat. This will be nearly enough wheat for the whole Common Market and would put an end to any substantial American and other wheat exports to Europe. The Common Market would shut itself off from the world market.

Not only wheat is involved. The United States now sells, for example, over $50,000,000 worth of poultry to West Germany. The duty has been about 4.5 cents a pound, which was workable. But now it has been raised to 13 cents a pound, which is high enough to come near making isolationists out of the senators from Arkansas and Georgia.

The real question about the two-year delay in admitting Britain, and the reason why it is not easy to be cheery about it, is that the two years may be used to make the European Economic Community restricted, exclusive, largely self-contained and, with varying accompanying military and political agreements, a closed community under French control with German assistance.

Whether the United States has the means to combat the movement of Europe into restriction and exclusiveness is not yet clear. We have much at stake, and the real issues should not be hidden from us by bland and cheery words.

FROM LONDON

By MAX FREEDMAN

Politics in Great Britain Are Aquiver With Bitterness

A SMELL of mortality arises from the Macmillan government. Its life is running out, and its members nervously debate the timing of the election. Prime Minister Macmillan must go to the country sometime in the next eighteen months. His delay may give him only a reprieve from disaster. For many signs now point to a humiliating defeat for the Conservative party. A turn of three percent in the vote has sometimes changed a British government. But now Labor has an estimated lead of no less than fourteen per cent. Mr. Macmillan will need all his luck and audacity to reverse this gathering tide.

Freedman

It is the Conservatives who now are divided and listless, not the Labor members who so recently lost their familiar leader in Mr. Gaitskell. Indeed Mr. Macmillan knows he has managed to escape a formidable request for his resignation only because the party can never agree on his successor.

This decline in the strength of the Conservatives is caused primarily by economic problems inside Britain rather than by divisions over foreign policy. Unemployment is extensive and serious. The Conservatives have relied on private enterprise alone to revive the British economy and set it again on the forward path. They have been disappointed.

British industry and agriculture by present methods cannot provide all the needed jobs. The economy is stagnant in spite of superficial signs of prosperity. In their desperation the Conservatives await deliverance in the next budget on April 3 as if the Chancellor of the Exchequer were a magician instead of an overburdened economist.

Vexations and failures in foreign affairs, including the irritation over the Skybolt muddle and the unexpected humiliation of being shut out of Europe, have envenomed the political debate. Politics in Great Britain are aquiver with a bitterness and anger long absent in this country.

The British Conservative has little in common with the conservatism preached in America by Senator Goldwater. He has his own tradition which makes him the enemy of dogma and the friend of timely reform.

Yet the Conservatives in Britain seem to have forgotten this honorable tradition in their reluctance to examine their ancient assumptions. Until very recently they denounced all proposals for more national planning as a mixture of intellectual error and moral evil.

In the last few months they have begun to see some merit in central planning. But they stammer the blessings of this creed from embarrassed lips.

That explains the fury with which they turned on Mr. Wilson, the new Labor leader, when he proclaimed his faith in more nationalization. For Mr. Wilson has not been acting like a stubborn Socialist zealot. He does not seek an arbitrary extension of economic power for the state.

He believes instead that Britain must remain a mixed economy with a role of vast and enduring importance always being filled by private industry. But he will not hesitate to give the state more power where private management has failed to produce adequate results.

It is a travesty to suggest that Mr. Wilson believes in nationalization for nationalization's sake. He is interested not in doctrines but in results. A greater measure of economic planning will be applied under his program only where private industry has failed to solve unemployment and has failed to stimulate economic growth.

Mr. Wilson in fact has adopted a few farsighted principles of Mr. Grimond, the Liberal leader, and woven them into his own strategy. This flexibility has disconcerted the Tories.

In their surprise they could think of no better answer than to produce a list of over a hundred companies that might be nationalized under this new approach. It was easy for Mr. Wilson in reply to argue that the Tories had conveniently provided the evidence to show what companies are dragging down the British economy.

The Conservatives are deceiving themselves if they think they gained very much advantage from this particular exchange.

Their attack on Mr. Wilson also had the result of strengthening his power as head of the Labor party.

The party rallied behind him as the Tory campaign continued, and he won new admirers by his courage and skill in meeting this test. Mr. Gaitskell, whose death impoverished the nation, is still remembered with affection and a smarting sense of loss. But the ranks have closed behind Mr. Wilson whose gay energy provides an important contrast to the sedate experience of Mr. Macmillan.

The members of the Labor party have more to fear from their own vaulting hopes than from the criticisms of the Conservatives. It is almost alarming to hear them prophesy their inevitable victory. They spend much of their time dividing cabinet positions among themselves. They are behaving as if Mr. Macmillan were an exhausted force and the Conservatives ready for oblivion.

This kind of arrogant conceit invites disaster. The Labor leaders would be well advised to learn some humility before it is too late.

PEOPLE WHO MAN THE FRONT LINE

By TONY EMERY

North to the Peace: a Salutary Experience for the Critics

SOMEBODY once told me that there was only one spot on the earth's surface where you could stand up to your knees in mud with dust blowing into your eyes, and that was Fort St. John. I found this notion so intriguing that when an invitation came to speak at a teachers' convention there last week I was all agog—well, that may be an exaggeration: but I was some agog—to see if it would live up to its reputation. It would also be as far north as I had ever been on land in my life, if I got there: that was a responsibility I placed squarely on the shoulders of Canadian Pacific Airways.

Emery

I took the journey seriously enough to feel that a little life insurance would do no harm, but I was shocked when the lady behind the counter invited me to insure my life for some staggering sum like three hundred thousand dollars.

I pointed out that I was trying to provide some solace for my wife in case she suddenly found herself a widow: I had no wish to make her the prey of fortune-hunters. What, I asked, had the insurance company to offer that would cost around 50 cents?

Actually I needn't have worried. The journey was rapid and uneventful, and when we arrived in Fort St. John we found it in the throes of a "chinook"—lots of mud, but no dust. It seems odd to be in a corner of British Columbia which is on the "wrong" side of the Rockies, and on a different time from the rest of us, and it comes as no surprise after a while to find that the inhabitants are only half-joking when they talk about seceding to Alberta.

I should be thunderstruck to learn that the teachers derived much benefit from my well-thumbed stock of bromides, but there is no doubt at all about the amount I learned from them. For those who take more than a passing interest in the problems of education in our province it is an eye-opener to talk to the people who man the front line in the province's most exposed educational salient.

I think I am right in saying that the North Peace school district has the highest proportion of one-room schools in British Columbia; I am sure I am right when I say that whatever the people who teach in these schools are paid, it isn't enough.

The next time I hear people sounding off about teachers being overpaid and underworked I am going to invite them to take over from Ron Burger, that agreeable young Dutchman, when he leaves the one-room school at Upper Cache Creek to return to the University. I think it would be a salutary experience for the critics, although Ron takes it in his stride.

I met a number of my old students, and all of them spoke warmly of the friendliness and hospitality of the people of the north country, which went a long way to mitigate the rigors of the climate.

I wondered how Lloyd Edwards and his fellow Trinidadian, whose name I didn't catch, found the North Peace winters, after their West Indian conditioning, but they seemed happy enough: and so did "Red" Hooper, whose luxuriant W. W. Jacobs beard framed some of the most interesting vowel-sounds that ever came out of New Zealand.

When I was doing the teacher-training course at UBC the advice that was freely offered to ambitious young educators was "Go North, young man." I often used to wonder then what these places with the picturesque names—Pouce Coupe, Hudson Hope, Dawson Creek—were like.

Of Fort Saint John and Fort Nelson I had the distinct impression that they were Arctic versions of the "Beau Geste" country, with snow and Eskimos instead of sand and Touareg tribesmen: and Burt Lancaster and Ernest Borgnine playing the parts of Ronald Colman and Noah Beery. Well, now I know.

In addition to these educational benefits, I had an extra, uncovenanted one on the return flight. The Sunday "milk run" back to Vancouver was a matter for apologetic comment on the part of my hosts, but they needn't have apologized: the flight was the most fascinating one from the scenic point of view that I have ever made in my life.

The day was exceptionally clear; the ground below, even from a height of 15,000 feet, was easy to "read." And what a non-stop feast of awe-inspiring scenery it is that unfolds below as the aircraft makes its leisurely way from Fort St. John to Vancouver by way of Prince Rupert.

The Rocky Mountain Trench is only the hors d'oeuvre to a memorable visual repast that takes in the great lakes between Prince George and Smithers, the tangle of peaks between Smithers and Terrace, and the interesting trip down the Skeena valley to Prince Rupert, flying below the mountain tops as the plane follows the winding course of the river.

As if that were not enough, there was the added delight to be derived from the unfamiliar sight of the whole north end of this island from Port Hardy to Rock Bay, after which the landmarks were old friends once more.

At the height we were flying the great sounds on the west coast were clearly visible, and for the first time in my life I saw Nootka Sound, about which I have heard or read since I was a schoolboy.

If ever you are in any danger of taking Victoria for granted, I suggest you spare the time for a quick run up to Lower Post and back, at this time of year. I think you will conclude that there are worse places to live than Vancouver Island.

Gerald Waring ...REPORTING

TORONTO—A good test of what the politicians really think of their party's chances is to check the nominating conventions. When there is keen competition as to who shall be the party's standard bearer, the prospects are usually good.

Applying this test to the Toronto area, one might well conclude that the Conservative outlook there is not bright. Eleven former Tory MPs, most of them casualties of June 18, are reliably reported to have decided to join George Hees and Donald Fleming in sitting this one out.

They are Hon. J. M. Macdonnell, Hon. Rollie Michener, John B. Hamilton, Arthur Maloney, Dr. John Kucherepa, Fred Stinson, John Pallett, Hon. David Walker, Margaret Aitken, Robert McGregor and C. A. Cathers.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker last week offered immediate Cabinet appointments to two of the former Toronto MPs if they would run in this election. They declined his offer.

Elsewhere too former Conservative MPs are finding that for "personal reasons" it will be impossible for them to stand this time—e.g., John MacLean in Winnipeg, Art Smith in Calgary, A. deB. McPhillips in Victoria.

* * *

Impressive new Tory candidates are reported as scarce as mosquitoes in March, while as a reflection of improved Liberal prospects the Grits are having no trouble getting "good" candidates. For example, three persons vied for the Liberal nomination in Esquimalt-Saanich, a riding created in the 1952 redistribution of Commons seats.

"It's almost as if they're coming out of the woodwork," a Liberal campaign official told me. "People offering as candidates who we didn't even know where Liberals."

This has its embarrassments too, as in the case of Prof. Maurice Lamontagne's candidacy in the Montreal riding of Outremont-St. Jean. Romuald Bourgue, mayor of the Town of Outremont, has represented that riding as a Liberal since 1953, and wanted nothing more than to continue. But Liberal leader Pearson wants Lamontagne in the Commons as one of his economic braintrusters—and Lamontagne had demonstrated that he's no political spellbinder when he lost twice in succession in the Quebec East riding of Laurier, Lapointe and St. Laurent that had been "rouge" since 1874.

In these circumstances Mr. Bourque agreed that at age 73 it would be reasonable for him to retire, and Lamontagne is expected to be a shoo-in. But the provincial Liberal organization, which thinks Mr. Lamontagne is a political dough-head, battled right down the home stretch to shelve the professor in favor of its own candidate for Outremont riding, lawyer Guy Favreau.

* * *

In their extremity the Tories are accepting candidates who favor nuclear arms and candidates who oppose nuclear arms. They can think anything they want on this matter, national headquarters says, so long as they support John Diefenbaker.

Ed Morris, the Halifax Tory who declined to vote confidence in the government on Feb. 5, has been refused renomination unless he swears loyalty to Diefenbaker—which he says he won't do.

Out in Calgary, where former Defence Minister Harkness is running as an official Conservative despite his resignation and his failure to vote for the government Feb. 5, the matter of swearing loyalty to the PM appears to have been overlooked.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Diet and Perfect Teeth

For most of my medical life, I have kept puzzling over the fact that most primitive peoples have remarkably good teeth, with few cavities. And sometimes, when primitive peoples get to living on the "civilized" man's food, their teeth rapidly decay, perhaps down to the gums.

Alvarez

Years ago, when I read a fascinating book by Dr. Weston A. Price, a retired dentist who went all around the world studying the remarkably good teeth of primitive peoples, I got a hunch that there may be a substance in the bowels of animals which, when eaten, protects the teeth of many primitive hunters.

When many a savage kills an animal, he wants first to eat the entrails—particularly raw. We civlized people throw the entrails away. There is also something vary helpful in fish and shellfish.

In Africa, the Masai—a beautifully-built race of warlike people—live mainly on the blood of their cattle, and they have excellent teeth. The range cow, in her small amount of milk, may have a substance which produces in children wide jaws and good teeth. The modern dairy cow, if her milk contains this substance, contains it in so diluted a form that it does not help children.

Interestingly, as I remember, Dr. Price found that the best teeth were in the mouths of the few people who live on the tiny rocky island of Triston d'Acunha, in the middle of the South Atlantic. These people live on such a narrow diet it is hard to guess why they have such perfect teeth.

The people who perhaps came next in having perfect teeth were the primitive Eskimos who, of course, live largely on meat and fat. They have none of the milk, orange juice, vegetables, salads and fruits which we in America think are so essential to health.

* * *

What caused me to write this today is that I was just reading in the journal "Science," Frank L. Tabrah's account of his discovery that the people in a primitive West African village in Nigeria have almost perfect teeth. The reason that I am so interested in his report is that evidently, in many ways, the diet of these people is very defective—and yet their teeth are hard.

Their gums are very bad—"apparently as a result of nutritional deprivation and infection, gingivitis (infection of the gums), is a very serious problem." After midle age, chronic destructive disease of the jaws appears about the teeth, and causes many of them to fall out.

The diet of these people consists of roots—chiefly yams and cassava—which are eaten with sauces, chili peppers, small amounts of green vegetables and occasionally some dried fish. This diet is deficient in the all-essential protein and in several vitamins and minerals. It does not include sugar, and milk is a rarity.

The local water supply does not contain enough fluorine to explain the absence of cavities. As Tabrah says, certainly these people should now be studied with the greatest care to see if we can find out why—in spite of their defective diet—they have perfect teeth.

* * *

One point that I have noticed many times is that some few persons seem to have such hard teeth that they rarely in their lives go to a dentist. Other people have teeth which are constantly going to pieces in spite of an excellent diet and the frequent filling of small cavities.

INCOME TAX TIPS

Here is another article in a series on how to make out your income tax return and obtain refunds and best possible concessions. It is prepared by Gordon Holms, CA, a partner in the firm of Bailey, Monteith, Holms Co. It will continue daily.

By GORDON HOLMS, C.A.

It pays to be sick! Man, only the tax collector could think up a deal like that. But it is the truth. The Crown will allow all medical expenses in excess of 3 per cent of your net income.

To be allowable, medical expenses must have been on behalf of yourself, wife or dependents.

Medical expenses in 1962 need not have been paid during the calendar year 1962 but must have been paid during the course of any 12-month period which ended in 1962.

You may claim:

1. Payments to a hospital, doctor, dentist, nurse, chiropractor, naturopath, optometrist, osteopath, podiatrist, therapeutist or Christian Science practitioner.
2. Payments for drugs or medicines prescribed.
3. Payments for laboratory or other diagnostic services.

Consult the tax department at the Belmont Building when you are in doubt about any type of medical expense. Make sure of your claims by attaching the receipts.

Don't forget, if your medical expenses, donations and union dues do not exceed $100, claim the standard deduction of $100.

'De Gaulle Started It'

MONTREAL (CP)—H. Stuart Hughes, professor of history at Harvard University, said Friday French President de Gaulle is indirectly to blame for strained relations between Canada and the United States.

He said the U.S.-Canada crisis over nuclear weapons came on the heels of Gen. de Gaulle's blocking British entry to the European Common Market and his refusal to accept Polaris submarines from the U.S.

Canada thus caught the brunt of the United States' "emotionally excited anger" at the French premier, who was "too far away to reach."

"There was an irrational anger at de Gaulle," Prof. Hughes said, "but a very real one. He posed a far greater threat than any difficulty with Canada."

The Harvard professor was in Montreal to deliver a lecture opposing Canada's acquisition of nuclear weapons.

NASSER SALUTES TAKEOVER

'Moderate' Named New Syria Ruler

By WEBB McKINLEY

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The revolutionary council in Damascus announced today veteran politician Salah Bitar has been named premier of Syria in the wake of an army coup d'etat staged by officers friendly to Egypt's President Nasser.

Bitar, 50, was a cabinet minister in the United Arab Republic cabinet when Syria and Egypt were joined as one nation. He quit, however, before the final split and has maintained his support for Syrian independence.

The new rulers claimed complete control of the country and proclaimed today a national holiday. They said the coup took place without bloodshed.

Nasser, in Cairo, issued a statement saying his government's support for the new Syrian regime "has no limits" and told its leaders "we await your instructions." Egypt and Jordan granted diplomatic recognition.

A new 20-man-cabinet was announced in Syria today. Bitar, its chief, is believed to favor continued Syrian independence with close ties to Egypt and also to the revolutionary government in Iraq.

Bitar is the leader of the moderate wing of the Arab Baath Socialist party. This is a multi-national party in the Arab world and the group which recently staged the Iraqi revolution.

The Yemen radio praised the "blessed revolt" and said its armed forces would spring to its support if necessary.

In Belgrade, the Yugoslav government newspaper Borba said the coup was "a new success of the Arab world in liberation from foreign influences and domestic reaction and therefore a success of the forces of peace."

There were reports of scattered resistance within Syria, but the country's borders were sealed and it was impossible to check them.

Syria broke away from Egypt two years ago. It has been in a state of ferment ever since.

Nasser said he had heard of mobilization on Syria's borders, but he did not say who was mobilizing. He might have meant Israel and, on the other hand, he might have meant Jordan.

Iraq sent troops to the Syrian border and said it would fight to prevent any interference with the new government. Both Egypt and Iraq warned other countries to keep hands off.

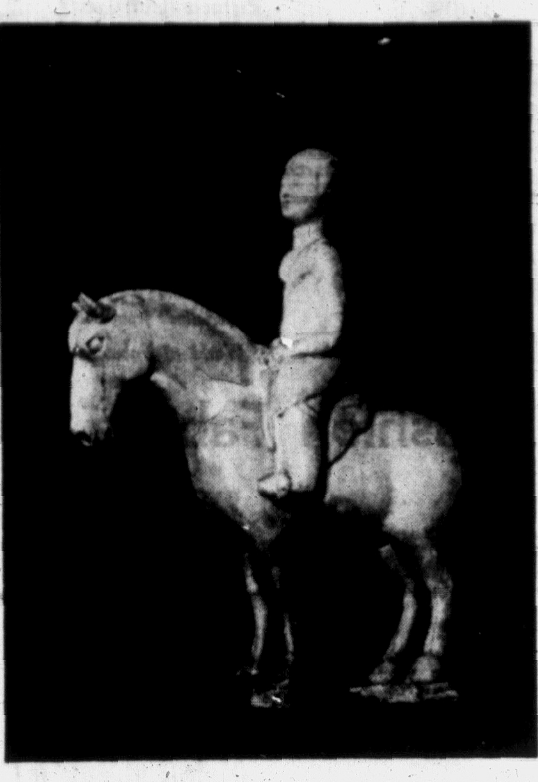
ART IN REVIEW

Final Distillate of an Ancient Culture

By RICHARD CICCIMARRA



Thousand-year-old pottery horse and rider of the T'ang Dynasty. From a Victoria private collection at Art Gallery. (Photo by Ken McAllister)

It is a rare privilege indeed — at least in these parts — to be able to see an exhibition of Chinese art as comprehensive as the one now at the Art Gallery. This is a show of very considerable magnitude and importance covering, as it does, roughly 3,000 years of art of one of the foremost civilizations on earth.

Ciccimarra

What further increases its importance, though, is the fact that in most cases truly magnificent specimen represent the various periods and art forms.

Public and private collections have generously contributed to make this exhibition possible; but more than anyone else the curator of the Art Gallery, Mr. Colin Graham, deserves our gratitude and appreciation for the truly gargantuan task he has so successfully undertaken.

Exhibitions such as this constitute an achievement not likely to go unnoticed and one to further emphasize our Gallery's place among the most active and important in the country.

I must say right now that I found the show overwhelming; this is probably partly due to my very limited knowledge of Chinese art which prevented my going through it with cool, academic detachment, and partly to the perfect presentation of the very considerable body of material.

Perhaps the strongest impression I carried away from this show was caused by the incredible degree of artistic perfection achieved at a time when even the faintest beginnings of our western civilization were still a thousand years away and carried right through to the relatively recent 19th century.

A country the size of China, with an alternately peaceful and turbulent history, obviously allowed the cross-fertilization of regional cultures to take place and thus prevented the decline into elaborate decadence of any one stagnating civilization; the fact that Chinese art is largely based on tradition is perhaps a further factor in the preservation of such high standards.

But more than by anything else this continued excellence must have been caused by an awareness of aesthetic values of an entire race. Form, design and spirit in works of art as well as in utilitarian objects represents the gently distilled essence of the aesthetic outlook of generations.

This feeling one gets of viewing the final distillate of an ancient culture extends to all art forms — sculpture, painting, ceramics — and to all periods.

Art does not occupy an isolated position, but closely parallels and becomes one with the spiritual development of the Chinese race.

Even writing, the most elementary form of communication, was elevated to an art form — and a striking example of this is shown in the 19 panels of 10th century calligraphy loaned by the D. Newell Smith family.

This process of distillation also resulted in the elimination of superfluous detail; the perfection of the glaze on, say, a bowl was considered more important than ornateness and the results of this preoccupation with quality, this striving for perfection is to be seen everywhere.

An Artist's Bottle (143) or a drawing with calligraphy "Quince and Poem" (127) are beautiful examples.

If during the later dynasties an almost ritual stylization and softening of nature takes place, the sculptures of the T'ang Dynasty, 618-906 A.D., shows quite a robust directness and realism.

The glazed or unglazed earthenware figures of this period, the tomb figurines, are as alive to our modern eye as they must have appeared over a thousand years ago! In this section one should not miss Item 38, a Female Attendant, with its possibly unintentional, but nonetheless very realistic humor.

The size of the exhibition, not to mention lack of space, makes it impossible to even begin to list the items which have so strongly impressed me, nor can I give any information as to the obviously very considerable value this show represents.

What matters more is that it is the artistic statement of an entire and ancient civilization — different, but at the very least equal in importance to our own.

Not to see this exhibition would be the waste of a unique chance and a grave omission indeed.

A WRITER'S DIARY

By HUGH MacLENNAN

It was with a feeling of wry amusement that I unearthed an article I wrote years ago for an American journal on the subject of Canada as a background for works of literary art. My thesis was that Canada (though I, personally, had found her a fascinating country to write about), was a very poor background for any writer who wished to earn international fame. For one thing, nobody knew anything about her; for another, her affairs were so orderly that she was never newsworthy.

Those were the days when the two adjectives invariably applied to Canada were "sound" and "dull".

Bankers, brokers, investment men and financiers were sound. In their homburgs and black-rimmed spectacles, soon to be copied by the denizens of the executive suite in the East Block of Parliament, wherever they went they were the very presentiments of soundness.

They loathed personal publicity and despised those who gained it. They won the respect of those who are tempted to equate silence with strength.

At international conferences they lay back modestly, waited for the others to speak, and never opened their mouths until they were certain that whatever they said would be considered the right thing to say.

"A dull people," wrote Irving Layton, "but the rivers of this country are beautiful . . . "Many were the college lecturers in those so-recent days who picked up their occasional $25 for 15-minute stints on CBC in which they bewailed the dullness of their native land and the torpidity of Canadian literature.

"No angry young men!" scolded a well-known pundit only a few years before angry young men established effigy-burning as an essential part of our culture.

Uncooked Pigeons In the Cupboard

For my part, I seldom believed during those so-called dull years, that the dullness of the reigning technique was proof that the country itself was dull.

It seemed evident to me that Canada was pregnant with all kinds of possibilities, her cupboards stuffed with uncooked pigeons. Then the inevitable day arrived when I was asked to write something about Mackenzie King; I quoted with relish a celebrated passage from Gibbon, noting that the period of which he then was writing was the prelude to a century-long explosion:

"The reign of Antoninus is marked by the rare advantage of furnishing very few materials for history; which is indeed little more than a register of the crimes, follies and misfortunes of mankind."

As regards Mackenzie King, this was of course inaccurate: much history was made by and during him, though he did wonders at preventing us from realizing this.

But when Canada drowsed her way into the 1950s, even I came to suspect that nothing would essentially change.

In April, 1953 (how odd to reflect it was only 10 years ago!), I was invited to address the Great Lakes-Seaway Conference in Washington, and the subject they chose for me was our old friend, Canada — The Unknown Good Neighbor. The other day I looked over the speech and found the following:

"The United States is a great and powerful country, and no great and powerful country ever learns much about a smaller neighbor unless that neighbor makes such a nuisance of himself that he can't be ignored, or so mismanages his affairs that the greater power must prop him up.

The United States would be much more conscious of Canada if our government, instead of balancing its budget, announced that Canada would go bankrupt unless it received an immediate and substantial American loan.

Nuisance Best Attention-Getter

"People in the United States would know us better still if our leaders, instead of being men like Mr. Saint-Laurent, were men like Mohammed Mossadegh. (In case younger readers do not know who this gentleman was, he was at that time the Prime Minister of Iran; he saw visions, went into fits and confiscated the Abadan oil refinery.)

"If someone like Mossadegh were Prime Minister of Canada," I continued to the Senators and Congressmen at the luncheon, "Americans would learn more about us in six months than they have learned in the last 30 years."

Ah, Wilderness! Within the last few months, at least four American journals have sent staff-writers on safari into Canada, and a chapter of a Canadian novel has been read into the Congressional Record.

Last week I received an urgent letter from Washington asking me about this and about that, and I suppose dozens of other Canadian writers and journalists have had similar experiences.

Only yesterday, I was approached by an American publication to write (and for quite a good fee) "something about Canada." Only the day before yesterday I was asked to write on "Anti-Americanism in Canada."

Today I had lunch with an Irishman and thus he spoke:

"If any young writer is in search of a good country to write in, Canada is it. Your best cartoonists are now the best in the business — look at the material they've got!

"The way you're marching, my boy, your politicians are going to furnish your writers with material that will make them famous — with the kind of material that enabled the writers of Ireland and the Southern States to capture the world."

Projections of a Keen Mind

ESSAYS IN CANADIAN ECONOMIC HISTORY, by Harold A. Innis, ed. by Mary Q. Innis. University of Toronto Press, Paperback, 412 pages.

Reviewed by Dr. Reed Elliott

The "Essays," first published in 1956, are selections from the many studies made by Dr. Innis during the three decades prior to his death in 1952.

It is difficult for anyone who studied under Dr. Innis to be objective about his work. His power to stimulate was not one which disappears over time. To feel it anew, one has only to re-read the "Essays." Disagreement with him one may feel, and such disagreement, if "documented," Dr. Innis always welcomed. But indifference to his ideas there can never be.

Any attempt to summarize the "Essays" would be an exercise in futility. His work has to be read.

The subjects dealt with in the twenty-eight essays vary from the early Spanish Fisheries to the present relationships between Great Britain, the United States, and Canada, and from "The Work of Thorstein Veblen" to "The Dairy Industry in Canada."

Each of the essays reflects a tremendous mastery of detail — sometimes rather overwhelming in its impact on the reader. But there is no mere recital of facts.

Those facts become the raw materials out of which are constructed the purposes and the patterns of past developments and the likely problems and patterns of future developments.

To outline in a meaningful way in a single sentence the pattern of the occupation of North America by Europeans (p. 234) is no mean achievement.

To foresee, in 1933, during consideration of the role to be played by the proposed Bank of Canada, some of the difficulties encountered by the Bank in the 1950's is no lesser achievement.

The task of proceeding from empirical data to generalization and thence to policy suggestions offered no serious obstacle to the intellectual power that Dr. Innis could bring to bear on it.

The last essay — Great Britain, the United States, and Canada — probably should be read as Dr. Innis' testament. Certainly it should be read by any Canadian who professes a right to participate in the formulation of national policies. On almost every page there is a "conclusion" which merits the most careful consideration.

The citation of a few of those conclusions will not be amiss. "Canada (has) moved from colony to nation to colony" (p. 405). "The use of the class struggle as an instrument of politics has been developed to a high point and we could possibly show the Russians a few details in the higher dialectics" (p. 402).

There is in Canadians "an infinite capacity for self-congratulation . . . This is, of course, our common North American heritage, but in Canada it appears to lead to little more than a congenital tendency towards long arms with which we can slap our own backs" (p. 398-88).

There are many others, including cogent ones on the role of mass media of communication (p. 409), on the use of Chief Justices as Royal Commissioners (p. 401), on the fundamental divisions in Canadian public opinion (pp. 396, 406), and on undesirability of a public opinion subordinated to military strategy (p. 412).

And, it should be pointed out, Dr. Innis would expect his readers to keep in mind his own favorite injunction: "Beware of him who has found the truth."

His philosophy? It may be that it is best stated in his own words (P. 308). "It is essentially a part of the inevitable tradition of Canadian life — one would hope — of neither accepting nor imposing domination."

At the same time he realizes the difficulty of maintaining that tradition, quoting Housman:

"And how am I to face the odds
Of man's bedevilment and God's?
I, a stranger and afraid
In a world I never made."

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

If there is one thing that stamp collecting teaches more than another, it is to be observant. So often, it is the little things that count in this hobby. Many of the world's rarities differ only slightly from similar stamps which may be found in most schoolboys' collections. So there really is a chance, although admittedly very remote, of picking up a rare variety among a selection of cheap "approvals."

However, even if such an opportunity does present itself, it is of little use to you unless you have the knowledge to recognize it when you see it. In philately, as in most other activities, the more knowledge you have, the more fortune will reward you with her favors.

'GIBBONS BEST'

While a great deal of philatelic knowledge can be picked up almost without knowing it, a study of the stamp catalogues — even an out-of-date one — is really a "must."

In this connection, you should try to get an old "Gibbons" — the English authority — as it lists and prices many expensive varieties which you won't find in the American catalogues.

Thus many American dealers, pricing their wares by the latter volume, are sometimes unaware that they are giving much better bargains than they imagine!

ROULETTED

A good many years ago the writer was looking over some approval books which were circulated by an American philatelic society.

Among them were two of the well known Cape of Good Hope triangulars issued in 1855. These stamps were put on sale unperforated.

But the specimens in this book had peculirly rough edges, and careful examination showed that they had been rouletted. Yet they were priced as the ordinary varieties.

This was rather a thrill, for the writer knew that these stamps did exist privately rouletted by a South African bank, which had had their stock treated in this way to save time and trouble in cutting them apart. (A rouletted sheet of stamps has a row of tiny slits between the stamps . . . bus tickets are rouletted.)

Scott's catalogue mentions that these Cape stamps exist in this form, and at that time Gibbons only gave the same information, so there was no guide as to value. So for a quick turnover the two stamps were sold to the late Alfred Lichtenstein of N.Y. for $40 — about three times what had been paid for them.

Well, it doesn't always pay to be in a hurry. The two stamps are now listed in Gibbons as No. 11 and No. 12. And they are now priced $550 for the 6d, and $1,350 for the 1 shilling!

Newsman Researches Prophecy

THE DOOR OF THE FUTURE: by Jess Stearn (Doubleday.)

If the future is predictable one may assume that it already exists, at least in broad outline. Stearn, a newspaperman, fascinated by the stories of accurate forecasts over the ages, set out to determine what truth, if any, was behind the claims of astrologists, mediums, occultists and prophets of all kinds.

After much matching of prophecy with occurence, Stearn concludes there is indeed a door to the future through which certain persons properly attuned can peer. It makes interesting reading.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

A chartered bus will roll out of Victoria at 10 a.m. March 22, carrying 19 city actors and their director, Tony Nicholson, to make a bid for major awards in the Dominion Drama Festival, B.C. region competition, at Kamloops.

The Intimate Stage entry is a full-length play written by Mr. Nicholson, entitled "Le Petit Homme."

It will be performed in Kamloops on Saturday evening, March 23, and will be in competition with entries from Williams Lake, New Westminster and North Kamloops PTA Theatre Wing.

Whether or not the Intimate Stage entry wins top place this year, the play, as an original script, will be eligible for consideration for the Sir Barry Jackson Award at the finals in Kitchener, Ont., in May.

Naturally therefore, on such an occasion, to the best of my belief, this is the first full-length original play to be entered in the DDF from Victoria it seemed to me essential that I should personally follow the fortunes of "Le Petit Homme."

TONY NICHOLSON
. . . first original

I easily convinced the necessary authority of this and so off I go next Tuesday week to Kamloops.

All of which means hanging out the busy sign in this corner for two Saturdays while festivals hold the spotlight.

Starting Monday and on through Saturday, the Greater Victoria Schools Drama Festival will keep several hundred people and me on the run.

But back to the B.C. Regional DDF. Contemporary living seems to be the theme in play selection this year, although anything from the classical literature of the theatre has become increasingly rare in this major festival over the years.

The situation is not an illogical one. The plays of Ibsen, Tchekoff, Sheridan, Goldsmith, Wilde, to say nothing of Shakespeare, to be successful require a higher degree of technical skill and style than most amateur societies can muster.

Without the training that enables him to feel at ease within an artificial aura, the amateur actor is best able to come to grips with characters and circumstances that are a recognizable part of the world he lives in.

Thus the choice this year of Gore Vidal's "Visit to a Small Planet," a slight thing whose theme is in tune with today's space-trending thought. Williams Lake Players are doing this under the direction of one of Western Canada's better known theatre personalities, Gwen Pharis Ringwood.

Shelagh Delaney's searching raw-nerve piece of realism, "A Taste of Honey," is the offering of the North Kamloops PTA Theatre Wing, last year's regional winners.

ROOM FOR MORE

Tom Kerr who guided the excellent production of "The Long and the Short and the Tall" in the '62 festival, is also directing this one.

From the New Westminster Vagabonds, a group with a fine reputation, will come another widely discussed epic of the modern theatre, "The Rope Dancers" by Morton Wishergrad.

Mr. Nicholson tells me, incidentally, that there will probably be room on the bus for a few local fans who would like to go along as the official cheering section.

If this sounds like an exciting way to spend a weekend, it's also an inexpensive one as the round trip will cost only $10, exclusive of meals and a night's accommodation.

Everyone will be back in Victoria late Sunday afternoon. Interested? A call to Mr. Nicholson at EV 2-7606 will get you on your way.

THEATRE MONUMENT

Before leaving the subject of the DDF, it is with a lot of satisfaction that I record in this column a circumstance just made known to me.

The first official monument to Canada's Fathers of Confederation is to be a stunning new 1,000-seat theatre, part of a five and one-half million dollar building complex at Charlottetown, P.E.I.

First Charlottetown conference, leading directly to Confederation in 1867, was held in 1864. Consequently a 1964 Centennial Conference Festival is scheduled to begin in May.

Opening event in the ultra-modern theatre will be the 1964 finals of the Dominion Drama Festival.

A Thrill in Store

Dynamic young Russian conductor Yuri Lutsiv has been delighting permanent conductor Hans Gruber and stimulating players of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra with his perceptive and vital conducting of rehearsals this week.

Sunday and Monday the public will share the excitement when he mounts the podium at the Royal Theatre to conduct the seventh pair of concerts of the current season.

His stirring program will include Beethoven's Seventh Symphony and excerpts from the "Gayne" Ballet by Khatchachurian among other things.

Hit Musical Writer Keeps Them Coming

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Just because a Charles Dickens novel inspired Lionel Bart's current stage hit "Oliver!" and his next project is a musical version of Victor Hugo's "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" don't imagine that the British author is dedicated to adaptations of ancient works.

"Oliver Twist" and Hugo's novel just happened to appeal to me," said the medium-sized, dark-haired author, composer and lyricist. "They must be among the most universally known stories.

"A thing like that helps in a stage work. Everyone is preconditioned to knowing about the principal characters and incidents, so you don't have to waste a lot of time in exposition. That's important when you have to add a lot of songs to a story."

Bart said that after "Quasimodo" — that's the Hugo musical, which is pretty well completed in first draft — he next will proceed with a modern original musical on which he already has done some work.

"That one will be done first in London," he said, "but it will be more than a year away. I need Georgia Brown for the leading lady and she's tied up for months to come in the Broadway production of "Oliver!" I'd like to have "Quasimodo" done first in New York, but that also is about 18 months away."

The fact is that Bart is turning them out faster than it is economically feasible — partly for his own tax protection — to have them produced. That is, so long as he turns out nothing but hits, which has been the case so far. London currently has "Oliver!", "Blitz," his latest, and "Lock Up Your Daughters," back for a return engagement.

Both "Blitz" and "Fings Ain't Wot They Used t' Be," Bart's first show, are likely prospects for New York within the next year, which is an additional reason for holding off on "Quasimodo." Producer David Merrick, who imported "Oliver!", has the first call on those two.

Bart is soft-spoken and easy of manner, but he is a dynamo.

PSYCHOLOGICAL

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "The Strange Story," a psychological melodrama, will be filmed for Haven Productions, according to producer Arthur Hoffe.

CANADIAN STAR CAST

4 Centuries of Comedy To Be Represented Here

Harry of England (William Hutt) woos Katherine of France (Frances Hyland) in Shakespeare's "Henry V," one of the scenes from Canadian Players' Masterpieces of English Comedy, due at Royal March 18.

A brilliant array of Canadian acting talent is scheduled to appear at the Royal Theatre March 18, when Canadian Players Foundation presents a select touring company in a program of masterpieces of English comedy.

Final Famous Artists attraction of the current season, it headlines such notable stage and television personalities as Frances Hyland, Eric Christmas, William Hutt and Amelia Hall.

Directing the company, which will perform for one night only, is David Gardner of Toronto. Many local thespians will recall with pleasure Mr. Gardner's keen wit and his astute commentary on Dominion Drama Festival entries when he adjudicated the 1962 B.C. Regional competition in Victoria last spring.

Andrew Allan, world authority on English drama, who was engaged by Canadian Players Foundation to compile Masterpieces of Comedy to tour Western Canada this season, has chosen a delightful array of English masterpieces for this exciting production.

They include, among others, Udall's "Ralph Roister Doister," Shakespeare's "As You Like It," Ben Johnson's "Volpone," Wycherley's "The Country Wife," John Gay's "Beggars' Opera," Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer," Sheridan's "Rivals," and "School for Scandal," a Shaw play, and N. F. Simpson's "A Resounding Tinkle."

"Our program offers a sample of more than four centuries of comedy," says Mr. Allan.

"English Renaissance comedy was in the Roman mould of Terence and Plautus, exemplified by Nicholas Udall's Ralph Roister Doister.

"Shakespeare's early comedies accepted the mould, but by the time he reached "As You Like It" and "Twelfth Night," he was going his own good gait. Ben Johnson wrote Comedies of Humours (a 'humour' being the personification of an individual passion or propensity); and this style so suited the English temperament that it might have held the stage permanently, had not the Commonwealth abolished the theatres along with Christmas and bear-baiting.

"When the theatre returned with Charles II, the model for nobles who had been exiled in France was Moliere. The Restoration comedy of Wycherley and Congreve was the Comedy of Manners, in which the satire is undiluted by sympathy: 'the sublimation of the trivial.'

"In the early eighteenth century, John Gay's "The Beggar's Opera" has an odd air of sadness in its gambols, like the sadness of Shakespeare's clowns. Later in the century, the plays of Goldsmith and Sheridan, with their slight leaven of sentiment, brought English comedy to a height it did not regain for more than a hundred years.

"Nineteenth-century fustian was lightened briefly in the '60's by the 'cup and saucer' comedies of T. W. Robertson; but it was not until Oscar Wilde in the '90's that wit fully flourished again in the theatre of our language.

"In that same decade the plays of another incorrigible Irishman, George Bernard Shaw, began making comic use of subjects which, although they made Mrs. Grundy blench, brought a new lively freedom to the stage."

Court Rules Film Insults Religion

ROME (Reuters) — Pier Paolo Pasolini, Italian left-wing novelist and film director, drew a two-month suspended prison sentence Thursday night for insulting Italy's state religion, Roman Catholicism, in a film.

A Rome court ruled that Pasolini would serve the sentence only if found guilty of the same offence within the next five years.

The film stars Orson Welles in the role of a director making a Biblical film. It is one of four separate stories in a picture entitled Rogopag, issued here recently with the Italian censors' approval.

In the film, a starving actor hired to play the part of a thief in the crucifixion scene dies on the cross from indigestion after stuffing himself with food.

Pasolini testified he had no intention of offending religion. The thief represented the abandoned sub-proletarians who were always the theme of his films and novels, he said.

GYPSY (Natalie Wood)
Royal Theatre
Designation: Clever Musical

Gypsy Rose Lee, noblest of all the burlesque queens, is the heroine of this lively technicolor musical adapted from the Broadway show by Warner Brothers.

Natalie Wood is delightful as the vivacious "Gypsy" and Rosalind Russell gives a spanking performance as her aggressive, domineering mother.

The relationship is emphasized when Mother Rosalind says to daughter Gypsy: "Just think of all I have done for you," and Gypsy replies:

"But, mother, I thought you did it for me!"

This is the girl who swept east from her native Seattle and elevated strip-teasing from a honky-tonk ritual to an acknowledged performing art.

At its worst burlesque is exuberance uninhibited; Gypsy gave it uplift, elegance, style, humor and subtlety.

Natalie Wood interprets her as a tall, black-tressed, handsomely curved woman who could control an audience with the lift on an eye-brow.

Karl Malden turns in a lively performance as the stage veteran who helps Gypsy and her mother in their fight for recognition.

There are 14 song hits, among them "Let Me Entertain You," "Small World" and "Everything's Coming Up Roses."

Capitol Theatre
Designation: Outdoor Action drama.

Three children of veteran movie stars Robert Mitchum, Joel McCrea and Alan Ladd are cast in this fast-riding, hard-hitting horse opera.

It's all good pistol-packing fun, with 21-year-old James Mitchum as a young man whose parents were captured by Indians, and Alana Ladd as a Texas-bred girl who is sent to an eastern finishing school to keep her away from the hungry arms of young Mr. Mitchum.

On the same program is an ingenious horror movie, "The Day Mars Invaded Earth."

The Martians, it seems are annoyed with us for sending robots to spy on them and retaliate by creating carbon copies of people on this earth with which to scare the daylights out of a space scientist and his family.

The carbon copies cause road accidents, apparent suicides and all kinds of dangerous complications from which it becomes apparent that the Martians are pretty nasty people. But that's science fiction for you; the inhabitants of other planets are always so much more aggressive than ourselves.

Three Styles to Choose From in Nassau

By HORACE SUTTON

Sutton

NASSAU — Anyone, irrespective of talent, can take up lodgment in a hotel and wave on the lamb chops and the sirloins, all imported from the nearby shores of the U.S.A. But it takes a special finesse to keep house in the Bahamas which, unless you're used to dishing up turtle and conch around your pad, is not exactly like keeping it in Boise.

Installed in an apartment, a housekeeping cottage or, better yet, a rented home, one must decide whether the mode of life is going to be English, Bahamian or U.S.A. Bahamian domestic help is so readily available and so relatively inexpensive, the first reaction will be to break the lease back home and consider a permanent redeployment. A Bahamian maid, or governess, or housekeeper gets about seven pounds a week, or somewhat less than $3 a day.

* * *

To make up for the bargain in domestic servants, the government, which inflicts no income or property tax on the permanent residents, collects its petty cash by imposing an immodest duty on goods imported from America. A cut of imported Omaha beef bought on the installment plan at the local supermarket and given into the hands of a Bahamian cook is liable to decide cuisine ought to be Bahamian after all.

Conchs, those ugly univalves who live in giant pieces of pink-lipped crockery, are probably to a Bahamian what a hamburger is to anyone back home. They are diced into conch chowder, creamed with sherry and served on toast, chopped with peppers and celery and onions and made into a salad and fried into fritters and passed around with cocktails.

* * *

Although conchs occasionally produce pink pearls, they are never permitted within a block of a classy supermarket, and for that matter are not even sold in the native fish-market. One must dicker for them from boatmen, along the wharves or near the marinas. About nine pence is the proper price, and always buy them in the shell. The conch man will knock off the top of the crockery, unscrew the conch, skin it, and hand it to you on a raffia string.

Turtle has distinctly more status and a whole counter at the fish market is devoted to choice cuts which will flavor soup or stuff a pie. Grouper, white and flaky, sells on the tile counters of the market, alongside grunts, snappers, bright parrot fish, goat fish, and an occasional hog fish. If you choose not to take the head, expect the fishmonger to knock a few shillings off the price. Fish that is surely fresh can usually be picked up in the late afternoon when the crews of the charter sports fishing boats come back to the marinas. No wrappings here. Just a hole in the flank to hook a finger through.

* * *

Oddly enough, the supermarkets carry few island fruits and vegetables, preferring to import apples and bananas from the States. The wharfside produce markets, a rather hectic place, has limes and sour oranges for drinks and fish, tomatoes and pineapples from Eleuthera, sugar apples that look like artichokes, sapodilla that is brown on the outside and sweet and green within, bunches of thyme to flavor fish at six pence the odoriferous bunch. Papayas and watermelons are piled on the tables almost any winter's day, while under them in quiet contentment, sleep the children of the greengrocers.

To these island greenstuffs one can add a wide assortment of English goods which sag the shelves at the supermarkets. Shortbread, morning tea semi-sweet finger biscuits, starch-reduced rolls from Kent, all wait to be plucked from the shelves and dropped into the tolling baskets. And then there are some English versions of TV dinners frozen pork pies all the way from Birmingham, and tins of Lancashire Hot Pie and Devon lamb pie staples that keep the empire together as surely as the hot dog makes a union of the States.

* * *

Butter comes clear from New Zealand, supplemented by silver-wrapped blocks from Denmark. The Danes also dispatch bags of wedding biscuits to go with the best of cookies from Peak Frean and Huntley Palmer, any of them a sweet addition to a dish of Kentish cherries available by the tin.

Nassau's water is pure but hard, and most part-time housekeepers buy filtered spring water in huge jugs. Most grocers will deliver, but you will surely need a car, about $70 a week here, gas included. Splitting it with friends reduces the fracture to the pocketbook. Motor scooters, including gas, maintenance and bandage, will cut the cost to $45 a week, but, to be sure, they only seat two.

At least half a dozen Nassau landlords offer apartments, suites and housekeeping cottages ranging from $15 a day for a one-room efficiency in the high season to about $8 a day for a room and kitchenette for two in summer.

Among the real estate offerings, a two-bedroom house on spiffy Cable Beach can be had for about $200 a week, or less than $15 a day per bedroom. A brand new three-bedroom house across the road from the sea and half a mile from an isolated beach is $150 a week, or $50 a week per couple.

Cook-it-yourself arrangements are also available in the Out Islands. A new place, the Two Turtles in Georgetown, Exuma, serves breakfast only, but provides efficiency units. And on the isolated atoll of Spanish Wells, The Lloyds, with cottages right on the beach, invites you to eat in the main house or fry your own, your option. The supermarket is a short walk down the cement pathways, and The Lloyds invite you to pick your own fruit from the orchards. All rooms come with kitchens and also with a power skiff which can be used for shopping by sea, for fishing in the lively grounds here off northern Eleuthera, or for taking the skin divers to the reefs to find a pair of Bahamian lobsters to toast on tonight's grill. And if no lobsters, then shell back, for sure. If you're going to keep house in the Bahamas, better get used to the voice of the turtle.

50 Miles, Elegantly

Chicago's swank Carriage House, where elegance is the keynote, is ready for any guest who might want to get in on the 50-mile hike act — but elegantly.

The Carriage House is setting up a track around its rooftop swimming pool 1/16 of a mile around. That means 800 laps for a 50-mile hike. It's an outdoor track and hikers who dart inside or try to sneak back to their rooms for a nap will be disqualified.

But the Carriage House's idea of field rations may come as a surprise to both President Kennedy and the Marines. Each hiker will be equipped with a canteen of martinis and a field pack containing a can of caviar, pate de foie gras and (for staples) three croissants. The luxury hotel, in the heart of Chicago's Gold Coast, figures elegance is where you find it.

The first guest to complete the hike will be driven to the hospital in a Rolls Royce.

Beer Halls Closed

SOMBA, Nyasaland (Reuters) — Prime Minister Dr. Hastings Banda told the legislative assembly Thursday all Nyasaland's beer halls will be closed. He said he wanted to keep peace and calm in the African country. The fact that beer was enough to make people fight "was enough for me to order all bars to be closed now."

See France, Travel Light

For those who feel perfectly comfortable with nothing more than a single suitcase or rucksack; there's an exciting new way to see France. A firm in Nice (French Riviera) now rents scooters and light motorcycles on a day, week or month basis.

A "Vespa," seating two comfortably, can be rented at around $4 a day or $2.50 a day by the month. This works out at considerably less than the cost of renting a car; enables the tourist to enjoy the Riviera's endless sunshine to the full and is extremely economical on gas.

Tourists should apply to "Scooter Service Dubouchage," 22 Bd. Dubouchage, Nice.

TRIP TO CANADA later this year was won at Barbados pre-Lenten carnival by Miss Hazel Eastmond, 19, who depicted a West Indian fruit seller in annual Carnival Queen competition.

. . . UBC GRANT

ier was bullying and accused him of character-assassination.

"We've heard enough of that kind of talk and we won't have any more," said Mr. Bennett.

"You'll take all we dish out," cried an irate Mr. Gargrave.

Dr. McGeer described a first-year university student's experience as "lonely and bewildering."

The student at UBC finds a waiting list of 1,200 for housing and classes of 300 marked by other students instead of professors.

RESIGNATIONS

The pupil-professor ratio, he said, is 21 to one instead of the "desirable" 12 to one. He flourished three pages of names of faculty members he said have resigned in the last three years.

He said both UBC and Victoria College should be given all the money they seek.

"I would like to know if the board of governors of UBC and the provincial government have entered into a conspiracy of silence?

"I wonder if the board of governors of UBC has not failed in its responsibility to the people of B.C.? If the necessary monies to operate the university are not provided, should not the board of governors be the ones to inform the public of what is going on?

WHY SILENCE?

"When they remain silent can they be serving the people of B.C.? Can they be serving UBC? Or are they only serving the government of the day?"

The budget should be made public, Dr. McGeer said.

Then there was a battle between Dan Campbell (SC-Comox) and Gordon Dowding (NDP-Burnaby) over the value of a university education.

Mr. Dowding said he wondered how the UBC Senate could take abuse from "some mentalities" in the government ranks and "little minds."

Mr. Peterson rose, furious, to call a halt to the tussle.

"I'm not interested in your education or that of any other members," he said.

He said the opposition was just annoyed because the government announced Thursday it would do something for higher education.

POLITICAL G

Mr. Peterson charged the opposition with seeking political gain from education problems.

"What surprises me most of all is a professor of the university coming here today, on leave from the university, and what does he suggest? He suggests there's a horrible conspiracy.

"I resent that."

"I suggest the minister is playing more politics than any other person in the House," protested Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.

"I'm annoyed," admitted Mr. Peterson, red-faced.

He accused Dr. McGeer of exaggerating, of giving false figures, and trying to imply UBC is a second-rate institution.

DISPUTES RATIO

He particularly disputed the pupil-professor ratio, which Dr. McGeer said was 21 to one. Including all staff at the university it could be argued as four to one, Mr. Peterson said. Dr. McGeer had taken only full-time staff.

"He went too far."

He said B.C. is spending more per capita on universities than any province but Alberta.

Mr. Strachan admitted he was "non-U" but accused the government of skimping on grants to universities by allowing the public to see UBC salary lists.

He said he opposed publication of the information.

Mr. Strachan read a telegram from Vancouver containing a plea for additional estimates for universities, signed by 1,000 people.

5,000 TO COME

Liberal leader Ray Perrault said there were 5,000 names to come. Mr. Peterson said if Mr. Perrault knew this, it must be organized. The Liberal leader said this was smearing the opposition.

"Unless the operational grants are increased, we're going to have a second-rate institution," he said.

Herbert Bruch (SC—Esquimalt) joined the debate to say that remarks made in the House by university graduates had been "despicable."

"He's offended every graduate from the university—a disgusting display," protested Randolph Harding (NDP—Kaslo-Slocan).

Mr. Harding said he had been disturbed by the conduct of the debate.

"Don't start lecturing the MLAs," cried the premier.

"You keep your seat; if anyone needs lecturing on manners, it's you," shot back Mr. Harding.

"You are one of the rudest members of the House."

RESUMES ATTACK

Dr. McGeer returned to the attack, this time on Victoria College to become a university this year.

"It can ill afford any budget cut at all," he said.

It was even more important to help Victoria, just starting out, than UBC.

"We are not prepared to give blank cheques to any organization," said Mr. Peterson.

"McGeer says give them the keys to the provincial treasury. That is fuzzy thinking."

"I have lots of discussions with the principal of Victoria College and the UBC president. I am pleased to meet with them and the board of governors and I have always been. And that is when aid and any increases in aid will be determined."

'SICK AND TIRED'

Don Robinson (SC—Lillooet) added: "The people of B.C. are getting sick and tired of these high-pressure tactics."

Dr. McGeer said the Social Credit government was spending $800,000,000 on the Peace River power project, yet telling UBC to "go hang" for the extra $1,800,000 it sought for its budget.

Mr. Bruch said that it was necessary to have power dams and blacktop to expand the economy.

Leo Nimsick (NDP—Cranbrook) commented that the government hadn't asked the legislature to vote the $800,000,000 as it asked for the university grants.

The House finally approved the education department estimates, with the premier still muttering imprecations, and adjourned until Monday when it will consider labor department estimates.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Court Gives Railroads Green Light

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court gave the green light this week for the settlement of the railroad industry's long and bitter battle over feather-bedding.

Its decision left U.S. railroads free to change their work rules with the result that 65,000 jobs costing $600,000,000 a year may be eliminated.

This was the major action in an unusually quiet week on the business scene.

In other developments, President Kennedy renewed his call for tax reforms to accompany a proposed tax reduction and the automobile and steel industries turned in good performances.

The court decision was hailed by the railroads as a victory in their four-year fight to reduce jobs which they consider unnecessary. However, the track ahead was far from clear.

THREATEN STRIKE

The five operating unions have threatened to go on strike if the railroads eliminate the jobs of 40,000 firemen and 25,000 other train and yard workers.

But a union spokesman said the railroads have agreed to reopen negotiations March 13 on how and when the work rules changes are to be put into effect.

Car production and sales continued to zoom, out-stepping all other segments of the economy.

Output this week was estimated at 151,000 units, up from 148,860 last week and 130,851 a year ago. Passenger car sales in February were at a near-record rate of 527,074 domestic models against 456,850 a year earlier.

Steel production last week moved up for the fifth straight week and held at the highest level in more than 10 months. Mills turned out 2,130,000 tons, a gain of 2.1 per cent over the 2,086,000 tons of the previous week.

Mills were operating at about two-thirds of capacity. U.S. Steel announced six open hearth steel-making furnaces will be put back into operation immediately at its works in Braddock, Pa., because of an increase in orders.

The unemployment picture darkened with the rate rising in February to 6.1 per cent of the work force from 5.8 per cent in January. This was the highest in 14 months.

Net Loss Reported

CALGARY (CP) — Union Oil Company of Canada Limited has reported a net loss of $2,598,869 during its 1962 operations, compared with a $2,554,747 loss for the previous year.

The 1962 loss brought the company's consolidated deficit to $3,870,399.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Time Now for Canada to Act

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

"Canada should get busy now, in the time provided by the European collapse (of ECM-U.K. negotiations), and seek reciprocal free-trade arrangements with as many partners as possible throughout the Commonwealth, the EFTA countries, Japan and U.S.A., if she is willing, industry for industry."

Gordon Bell

The objective should be "launching of the largest free trade area possible with little respect for GATT when our existence is at stake."

Along this path argues an article in the always interesting and often controversial Financial Barometer, published by Norman R. Whittall Ltd. of Vancouver, lies Canada's only hope of achieving a balance in trade.

* * *

However, the article points out, the hope leads to a "highly distasteful" first conclusion — one, it might be added which is anathema to any politicians looking for votes in the industrialized east — that "we shall have to sacrifice, temporarily at any rate, our hopes for rapid secondary industrialization."

"We see no other answer — we shall have to buy other people's manufactured goods to ensure markets for our basic exports so we might as well buy them free of duty to obtain similar privileges abroad for exports which would thus become cheaper," the article states.

There are a few activities which economies single out for jettison including, and here's one that hurts locally, shipbuilding, which is "quite uncompetitive here" as is also the bulk of cotton and wool textile manufacturing and the auto industry.

* * *

"But sacrifice of shipbuilding, textiles and even motor manufacturing do not add up to much compared to what we may have to give to obtain sufficient freedom abroad. If we are not prepared to give enough away we may find ourselves alone in the world with mighty few export privileges when, without exports, we wither."

There is a cautionary word, too, against the school of thought which holds some form of customs union or other economic arrangement with the U.S. to be the answer.

"Concentrations of wealth in the world have always accompanied concentrations of the most advanced population as they do now. So we find, as was the case with Italy in Roman days, later with Spain, France and then Britain and similarly as our eastern industrial complex represents the main wealth of Canada, so the U.S. is now the wealthiest country in the western world, having the largest advanced population today."

* * *

"But the EEC as presently comprised, having almost as large a population, is catching up with the U.S."

"Put Britain's 55 million people in with it, augmented by some or all of the six other countries in the European Free Trade Association, and one can visualize a trading entity comprising close to 300 million people becoming far wealthier than the U.S."

It would seem hardly sensible then for Canada to be tied to the "inferior" U.S. market as many Canadians have proposed when a better choice may be available.

"Our good fortune right now," the article concludes, "is the fact that the European upset has gained us time in which to think out our problems carefully, but this privilege may not be ours indefinitely. We have no time to waste."

* * *

A takeover bid for another small independent oil company, Pamoil Ltd., has been made by Canadian Industrial Gas Ltd. of Montreal.

CIG is offering 55 cents a share for the Calgary-based firm which is the successor to Kroy Oils and owns Edmonton Pipe Line Ltd. as well as extensive acreage and well interests in Western Canada and through a U.S. subsidiary in Louisiana and Oklahoma.

The CIG offer is contingent on acquisition of a minimum 4,250,000 of the 8,325,000 outstanding Pamoil shares.

* * *

The treasury bill interest rate dipped slightly this week to 3.63 per cent from last week's 3.68 per cent as the money market continues to seek good liquidity.

The money market generally is reported to be rather slow but with yields widening slightly.

* * *

Trans Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. common shareholders are being offered rights to $100 convertible subordinated income debentures for each 23 shares held. Details of the issue have not yet been arranged. The rights expire April 5.

Trans Canada had net profit of $4,510,763 in 1962 compared with $2,875,886 in 1961. Gas sales jumped from 210.4 million cubic feet to 237.3 million.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Weak Lion Tone For March Entry

By GARY COOPER
Canadian Press staff Writer

March came to Canadian stock markets like a weak lion this week — the rise was slight but it was a reversal from the down trends of the last few months.

The industrial index at Toronto compiled from 20 representative stocks showed a gain of slightly more than six points. Strength seemed influenced by Wall Street.

Brokers say the forthcoming federal election has left Canadian markets vulnerable and if the Wall Street rally is not sustained there could be a sharp retreat here.

Special size transactions — big blocks of shares at a set price and usually a sign of institutional buying — changed hands in Shawinigan, British American Oil, International Nickel and Bank of Nova Scotia. The latter had a block of 16,845 shares worth more than $1,250,000 traded in a single sale early in the week.

BANKS STRONG

Banks provided most of the strength this week. Four of the five issues posted gains. Bank of Nova Scotia slipped slightly.

Trans-Canada Pipe Line moved to a new high for the year in heavy trading following announcement that it was planning a rights issue.

The mining market was high but trading for the most part was dull. The western oil market was featureless and most seniors showed small gains.

On index at Toronto, industrials gained 6.09 to 594.78, and base metals 3.60 at 199.77. Golds dropped .03 to 91.79 and western oils .64 to 114.83.

Volume at Toronto was 11,939,064 shares compared with 15,614,766 last week. Dollar value was $41,329,798 compared with $48,826,475.

Canadians 'Gobble Up' Market

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senator Maurine Neuberger, Oregon Democrat, said Friday Canadian exporters have "gobbled up" almost two-thirds of the U.S. Atlantic coast lumber market, causing distress to northwestern U.S. lumber towns.

Claiming the Canadians increased their share of this market partly through low shipping costs, the lumber-state senator introduced a new bill to remove restrictions which force U.S. exporters to transport their lumber only by U.S. cargo ships.

Producers maintain shipping rates on U.S. vessels are sharply higher than those listed by foreign operators. Last year Mrs. Neuberger got the stiff shipping regulations relaxed for one year on U.S. lumber transported to Puerto Rico.

Her new bill would extend the relaxation to all American ports indefinitely. U.S. lumbermen would be able to charter foreign ships on shipments to all other American ports.

"West coast lumbermen have shown that given a chance to compete on a basis of equality they need no subsidy," she told the Senate, expressing regret that her bill may throw some U.S. seamen out of work.

Favorable Trade Balance

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada had a favorable trade balance in January of $38,400,000, the eighth month in a row in which the value of exports exceeded imports, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Friday.

Exports for the month were an estimated $546,800,000, with imports at $508,400,000. This compares with exports of $503,100,000 and imports of $492,300,000 in January of 1962 when the export surplus was $10,700,000.

For all of 1962 Canada had a trade surplus of $79,500,000.

A higher deficit in January trade with the United States was more than offset by an increased surplus in dealings with Britain, the Commonwealth and other nations.

Canada sold $78,700,000 worth of goods to Britain in January and bought $36,700,000 from her for a trade surplus of $42,100,000, up from $24,500,000 a year earlier.

On the U.S. account, however, Canada sold $316,400,000 and purchased $372,500,000 for an unfavorable balance of $56,100,000. This compared with a $45,200,000 deficit in January, 1962.

Trade figures for January of this year and last, in millions of dollars:

Exports	Jan 1963	Jan 1962
United States	$316.4	$307.5
United Kingdom	78.7	61.5
Other Commonwealth	33.8	35.1

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. What are the requirements for a rhododendron to grow well in a garden? P.T., Colwood.

A. In your area, most of the soils drain very rapidly so that the first essential is to add compost, peat moss and well-rotted manure, all of which aid the soil in retaining moisture. Rhododendrons like a soil rich in humus to hold moisture and somewhat on the acid side. A spot in the garden, which is somewhat sheltered from winter winds, yet open to late morning sun will suit rhodos.

A layer of rotted manure and compost two inches thick spread around the shrub every April and late October will keep the soil in good condition without disturbing the roots which are quite near the surface. A feeding of a special rhododendron - camellia acid plant food each March will complete the program. The prompt removal of faded flowers is, of course, necessary to prevent the forming of seed which is a considerable drain of energy for any plant.

Q. Is garlic difficult to grow? J.K., Victoria.

A. If you can grow onions or leeks you can grow garlic. All require just about the same culture. Any fertile vegetable garden soil in full sun will do if well dug and prepared. The individual cloves of the garlic bulb are planted separately about six inches apart and two inches deep. Get them in the ground as soon as possible; harvest them during August and dry thoroughly in the sun.

HOUSING HINTS

Just as wax keeps dirt from sticking, it keeps one surface from sticking to another.

When washing linoleum, use soap and warm water sparingly. If water seeps under the linoleum, it will tend to rot it.

A moth ball or two tucked into the seat of a sofa will serve as a "not welcome" sign to a cat.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Rhodo-Azalea Treatment Specific But Not Complex

By JACK BEASTALL

Jack

Over the past ten years there has been increasing interest in two exceptionally good garden plants, the rhododendron and the azalea.

Experience has revised our opinions of their needs considerably for we have discovered them to be tolerant of a greater range of soils than originally thought suitable.

This has brought them within the realm of the average home gardener, and, at the same time, engendered a slight disregard for their essential needs resulting in failures that could have been avoided.

Both rhododendrons and azaleas still require their roots in a soil that can be kept a little more acid than is needed for most of our garden plants.

This is done by incorporating a fairly heavy dressing of peat moss at planting time, mulching with peat moss every spring, and using acid-type fertilizers.

A fact not generally known to home gardeners is that these plants are native to a region having some sixty inches of rainfall a year.

30-INCH THIRST

On the south-eastern end of Vancouver Island the rainfall is near thirty inches a year, leaving our rhodos and azaleas with a thirty inch thirst.

In practice it means that a lot of water is needed by these plants, especially in our dry months, if they are to thrive and blossom every year.

Another point to be remembered is that they are not deep rooted plants, a mass of their roots being in the upper soil which dries and heats easily during summer, a condition directly opposed to their needs.

The regular spring mulch of about two inches of peat moss rectifies this by forming a protective layer between sun and soil, thereby keeping the root-run cool and conserving soil moisture at the same time.

The masses of flowers produced by both rhodos and azaleas signify the need of a regular supply of food if they are to continue their eye-catching displays and increase in size at the same time.

SURER WAY

The home gardener is inclined to leave these plants to their own devices until such time as they show definite signs of decline, and then try to revive them in a hurry with a shot in the arm technique.

A much surer way to success is to build up good plants right from the beginning, for the first two or three years in the home garden are the most critical with which they have to contend. If they survive these they are usually there to stay.

When first planted they have a certain amount of shock to overcome from being moved. They have to become adjusted to a new soil in a new location, and the finest boost is a triple feed of acid fertilizer covering the period of March and April in their first spring.

This week is the time to start, with a second feeding in four weeks (end of March) and the final feeding for this year near the end of April.

LIQUID FEEDING

As mentioned previously, only an acid-type fertilizer is suitable. This can be purchased as Acid-mix or as Azalea-Rhodo Mix, in bulk or pre-packaged, and usually contains magnesium which is essential to these plants.

The prescribed dosage of four to five pounds to 100 square feet of bed means little to the average home gardener with one or two plants, but it amounts to about two ounces to four square feet which is roughly the root area of one plant.

For even distribution it will be found easiest to dissolve the two ounces (which works out to just about two measuring teaspoons) in a gallon of water and pour this around the root area, not on the foliage. Repeat at the dates given above.

If there is any suspicion of dryness around the surface at the time, water the soil thoroughly beforehand, and again after applying the gallon of dissolved fertilizer.

MULCH NEEDED

In following years only one feeding should be necessary, mid-March to early April if weather is suitable.

Mulching with peat moss should follow immediately feeding is completed. That would be at the end of April the first year and around the end of March in succeeding years.

Given this treatment there is less chance of the plants failing to make buds for the second season in the garden, or sometimes for two or three years. They usually flower profusely the first year from buds made the previous year in the nursery.

It is recognized today that rhodos, when planted in a loose, peaty soil and given the required amount of water and surface mulching, will stand considerably more sun than once thought possible.

Azaleas, and the smallest of the rhododendrons, can take full sun, but most of the larger leaved varieties do best in filtered sunlight, or in shade from about noon, but some sun is needed to ripen the growths and to set flower buds.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Early March work is preparatory, for most soils are again too wet for much planting.

However, in sandy or otherwise well-drained soil, shrubs and perennials can be planted now and will become established before summer.

If new shoots of delphiniums, day lilies and other perennials seem to be badly chewed, suspect slugs and use bait around the plants. Check in the mornings to find out if slugs are the depredators.

Remove weed seedlings by the roots wherever they can be reached without standing on the soil while it is wet.

Plan to use some of the perfumed annual bedding plants near the walks or by the summer sitting-out place. These include nicotine, sweet pea, mignonette, stock, petunia and pansy.

Seed of gloxinia sown indoors now will produce flowering plants by September.

Dahlia tubers set into dampened peat moss in a light, warm place will start into growth. The shoots may be taken off as green cuttings for rooting or the whole plant put into the garden after frosts are over.

Seedlings started indoors must be pricked out into flats or pots as soon as can be handled, or they will be weak.

Complete the planting of fruit, nut, ornamental trees and bush fruits.

Thin out the autumn sown onions outdoors to six inches apart using the thinnings as green onions.

When buying furniture a long-range plan based on your family's needs is your best guide. Don't be concerned about what's fashionable.

Save the labels from new carpets for future reference on pattern number of colors.

Bold Color

NEW YORK (UPI)—"Color is like seasoning; at first you may be timid about it but as you get used to it, you can take more and more of it," says Dorothy Liebes, textile designer and color consultant.

"There's no such thing as a bad color — only bad color combinations. The French painter, Delacroix, once said 'Give me mud and I'll make it sing.' And indeed he would have! He'd start with bilgy brown mud, add oyster white, perhaps lacquer red and slate gray and — there he'd have a marvelous color scheme."

The yam, a moist-textured, deep orange sweet potato, take its named from the Senegalese word, "nyami," meaning "to eat." It was named by African slaves, referring to a West Indian root vegetables.

BOSTON (UPI)—Persons directing "profane, obscene or impure language or slanderous statements" at participants in sporting events would be fined $50 under a bill advanced Friday by the Massachusetts House.

A House committee approved the measure, filed by Rep. James F. Condon (D-Boston), who said it resulted from several name-calling incidents during Boston Red Sox games at Fenway Park last season.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

It has long been rumored that young ladies can be flighty and frivolous. But any male who cohabitates with six females isn't going to confirm it, now or ever. Just living with them may have its perils but it certainly beats dying.

Still, Don Carley had slipped word that right here in Victoria there was a precocious young lady who had chucked her bad habits and was about to go straight.

"She's a looker," said Mr. Carley, "And well built. Better come out and look her over."

DON CARLEY

Mr. Carley is a cavalryman. He used to ride horses but experience, and several nasty spills caused him to alter his plans. Now he trains them . . . horses wearing English saddles for the hounds set and horses bred to sport bikini-size racing saddles.

For several hundred years he has been conducting business smack against the Uplands golf course. His tract of land is big—about a respectable par five at Uplands—and is dotted with the usual horsey accoutrements . . . barn, paddock, fertilizer pile.

Immediately upon arrival, this pedestrian began eyeing young ladies in riding breeches to see if he could spot the sinner turned saint. No luck. To this untrained eye one pair of horse pants looks identical to another pair. Baggy.

Just then Mr. Carley hove to.

"Glad you could come," he said. "Just in time. She'll make it today, I'm sure."

Then . . . "she's been terrible. Sat down when she should have stood. Bitten people. Things like that. But she's reformed. Acts like a real lady. You'll see."

She Terrorized 'Em In Vancouver

"Really?" I asked, politely. Frankly it seemed time to head for the exits. Either this damsel at the Victoria Riding Academy had been a gay one in her day or else Carley was misusing the alcohol they use to rub on horse's legs.

Outside the stables, Carley introduced two young men. "Bob Jobbins and Bob Allen," he said. "Ask them about her."

Jobbins didn't wait. "She was a terror in Vancouver last year," he said. "Wouldn't do anything right. But we've been patient with her. Don said he thought he could get her to mend her ways if we would help. So we helped. We were inexperienced at this sort of thing but we did the best we could."

As he spoke a filly paraded past. She had a blonde mane, trim ankles and superior conformation. The horse transporting her wasn't bad either.

Carley took a pail of oats and headed for the starting gate. The filly and horse cantered behind.

Sat Down Once and Wouldn't Budge

Engrossed in studying the action, I was barely aware of Jobbins talking . . . "she flipped 11 times last year" . . . "sat down once and wouldn't budge" . . "so when Don said we better do something we went out to Sandown and took measurements" . . . "built it for $250, on weekends mostly."

"Built what?" I asked.

"The starting gate," Jobbins said.

Carley walked backwards into the gate, holding out a handful of oats and saying, "C'mon girl. Come in nice, now."

They came in nice, the bars snapping shut behind them. Then the bell rang and off they went, throwing turf in people's faces.

Carley beamed.

"All her past is behind her now," he said. "She'll be fine this summer."

"What's her name?" I asked.

"Rosedale Queen," he answered. By Eddie's-Boy out of Admit. The boys bought her last year but like I said she was really a sonofagun until we calmed her down."

He stepped aside to let blonde mane and friend walk past toward the stable.

"What do you think of her?" Carley asked.

"Not bad," I said. "Excellent, in fact."

FROM MILL BAY

Pavement Pounders To Try Relay Event

Pavement-pounding with a British touch, will be introduced to Vancouver Island on Sunday, March 17.

Youthful runners from the Island and Vancouver are scheduled to compete in the first Mill Bay-to-Victoria relay road race.

Teams of eight athletes will trot through a 29-mile course from Brentwood College to the Parliament Buildings, where top finishers will receive medals from W. N. Chant, minister of public works.

BRITISH PATTERN

Sponsored by Brentwood College and Shawnigan Lake School, the event will be completed in eight stages of from two and one-half to five miles. Least attractive is the second stage—to the Malahat summit—a distance of four miles all uphill.

Believed to be the first of its kind staged in Canada, the event is patterned after noted British races, including the London-to-Brighton and Glasgow-to-Edinburgh relay contests.

Invited to compete are Victoria College, Victoria High School, Royal Roads, HMCS Venture, University of B.C., Vancouver Olympic Club juniors, New Westminster's Lester Pearson High, West Vancouver High, St. George's College, Esquimalt and Belmont High Schools.

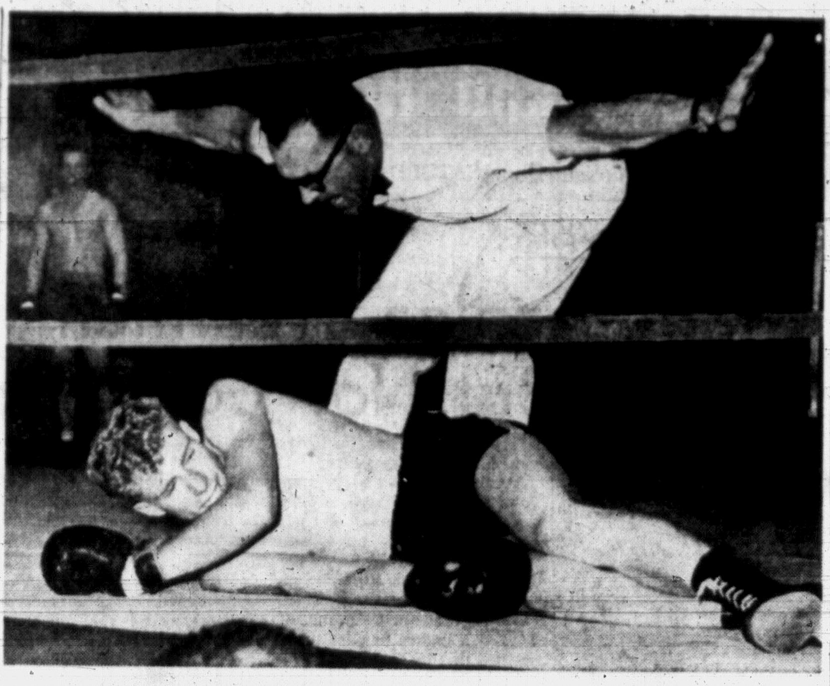
Pistol-Toting Referee Gets Jail Sentence

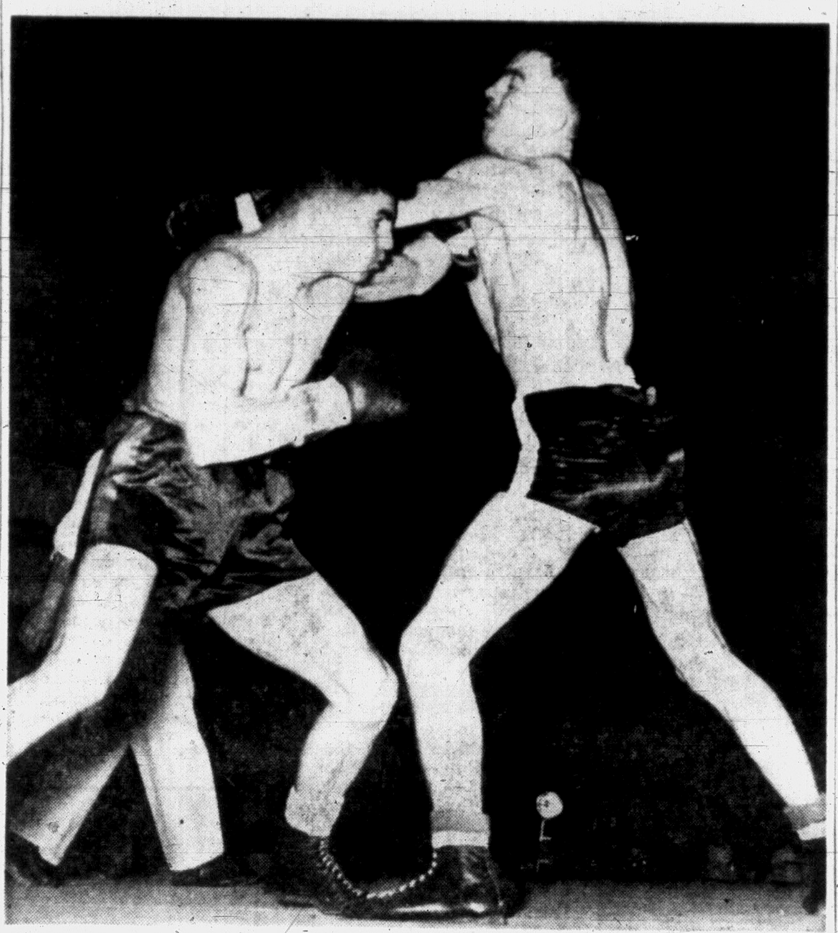
ROME (AP)—A soccer referee has been convicted of firing a pistol in the air during a game for fear the fans might mob him.

Franco Conciatori, a postal employee who referees second division soccer games on Sundays, was sentenced to two months and 20 days in jail for illegally carrying a pistol and 20 days in jail for firing it in a public place.

The incident occurred Dec. 23 during a game between Pomezia and Ostiense. Conciatori had ordered a Pomezia player off the field. The player, determined to discuss the penalty, started toward him.

Conciatori whipped out the pistol and fired in the air.





Fast Action In Army Bouts

Heavy Guns on Target In Army Boxing Battles

Army boxers wheeled out the big guns at Work Point gymnasium Friday night and touched off some mighty salvos as they battled for titles in the Pacific Command championships.

Swinging before about 400 fans, slugging soldiers served up three knockouts and added plenty of action in the other five bouts that made up the novice division of the annual ring tournament.

Seats are expected to be at a premium when the championships wind up with open bouts tonight, when vaunted punchers like Larry Cardinal, Cal Osmond, Fred Francis and Earl Pilgrim go gunning for Victoria's PPCLI battalion.

FIRST-ROUND KO

Fastest workman in Friday's bouts was Victoria's Jim Bartell, who knocked out "Doc" MacDonald of Edmonton at 1:55 of the first round in a light-heavyweight scrap.

Also connecting with heavy artillery were Edmonton welterweight Marcel Greyeyes and light-middleweight Bill Comeau of Winnipeg.

Greyeyes took the worst of it in the opening round and then came on to knock out Wayne Fox, Victoria, in the second session. Comeau also wrapped things up in the second, stopping Phil Wilson of Edmonton.

Here are results of other bouts, all won by decision:

Dave Weitzel, Edmonton, defeated Bob Martin, Winnipeg, in a light middleweight battle.

"Stratch" Stratulate, Calgary won a welterweight clash with Al Gadd, Winnipeg.

Ray Herrington, Edmonton, bested Joe Lajoie, Victoria, in a featherweight tussle.

Victoria middleweight Jim McGuire defeated Ralph Hawkins, Edmonton.

Robert Millar, Winnipeg, won a bantamweight argument with Bill Gray, Edmonton.

SOCCER CLUB . . . . . . PLANS REUNION

Old Wests to Return

Victoria West, Canada's oldest registered soccer club goes on review next Saturday.

Owning a club spirit matched by few athletic organizations, the Wests have scheduled a reunion that will be highlighted by a game between the current first division Greenshirts and the players of bygone years.

Formed in 1896, the Victoria West Athletic Association has been in senior soccer almost continuously for 67 years. The only break came in 1958 when the club withdrew from the city senior league for three seasons.

During that time the Wests developed a new crop of eager, talented youngsters and the Wests are now one of the hottest clubs in the Victoria and District Soccer League's first division.

Few of the men who have booted balls for Vic West ever lose their allegiance for the club and at least 100 old-timers are expected to show up for the reunion, which starts with a dance Friday and continues with the soccer battle at Heywood Park Saturday at 2 p.m.

Current members of the Greenshirts have been mailing out invitations to the veterans and today their list had climbed past 150. About 40 oldsters, allowed unlimited substitution, are expected to be in uniform next Saturday.

Among the former Wests due to receive invitations are:

Frank Jenkins, Percy Wilson, Stan Okell, Charlie Thomas, Cyril Baker, Angus McIntyre, Jimmy Sherratt, William Milligan, Frank Shandley, Tom Peden, John Peden, Harry Youson, Dave Stewart.

Ken Thompson, Gordon Leeming, John Watt, George Barnes, Cab Collins, Doc Poyntz, Gordie Bell, Ralph Butler, Bill Chester, Danny Clancy, Pat Mulcahy, Doug Laird and Carl Brand.

Richardson Rink In a Class Alone

Duncan Crew Shares Second With Alberta

BRANDON—If anyone needed further proof—Ernie Richardson gave it to them Friday.

The remarkable Richardson rink from Regina swept to an unprecedented fourth Canadian curling title. This is a feat heralded in curling circles as surpassing Maurice Richard's 50-goal hockey season and Babe Ruth's 60 home runs in one baseball campaign.

Richardson defeated Alberta's Jim Shields 10-8 in the 10th round of the round-robin Canadian final and walloped Doug Cameron of Prince Edward Island 10-4 in the 11th and final round.

What is there left for Richardson to accomplish?

SEEKS WORLD HONORS

He leaves Regina Sunday for the world championships at Scotland trying for a record fourth win there.

Richardson, a tall, dark construction man of 31, skipped rinks to Canadian and world titles in 1959, 1960 and again last winter.

On those occasions the rink was a family affair with brother Garnet playing second and cousins Arnold and Wes his vice-skip and lead, respectively. This year Wes wasn't with him and an outsider, Mel Perry, took his place.

This year there was some talk that maybe the Richardson saga would end, especially after Duncan's Glen Harper upset him 8-5 Wednesday. However, Harper helped Ernie in the next match by upsetting Shields too, leaving Richardson with a share of first place.

If Harper found a crack in the rugged Richardson armour, he was the only one. Shields searched for it Friday morning in their classic last-day showdown.

He never found it.

WON EASILY

In the afternoon game against Prince Edward Island, with Alberta watching from the stands with a bye, Richardson won handily. He won seven of 12 ends and one was blanked. Cameron couldn't count more than one on any end.

At the completion of the 11 rounds, Alberta and British Columbia tied for second place with eight wins and two losses apiece.

Richardson and Cameron played a knockout game almost exclusively, the game that Richardson made famous.

He was never behind after scoring a single in the first end and two in the second, winding up with a draw to a freeze on the button for a two count to a standing, applauding packed house of fans.

Almost 42,000 persons crowded into the 4,200-seat arena for the 11 rounds of the competition.

HARPER'S REPORT

B.C. Rink Gains Some Satisfaction

By GLEN HARPER
B.C. Curling Champion

BRANDON—The 1963 Canadian curling championships are history now, but before the Brier Tankard is put on the shelf for another year I'd like to pay my tribute to the Ernie Richardson rink from Regina.

His is a great rink. Perhaps the best that the game has ever seen.

There is a certain amount of personal satisfaction in knowing that mine was the only rink to beat the Richardson this year. Also, I'm extremely pleased that we put up a better showing than in 1960, when I went to Port Arthur.

Third Harvey Hodge, second Gary Merrett and lead Vern Kaspick gave me all the support I could ask for. I only hope I can be permitted a third chance, and, if so, I can take the same crew along.

Meek Smokies Rally for Win

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Addy Tambellini scored three goals and assisted on another to lead Trail Smoke Eaters to a 11-5 victory over stubborn West Germany today and place Canada in a tie with idle Sweden for first place in the world hockey championships.

The East Germans gave the Canadians a scare by scoring four straight goals in the first five minutes of play.

Then at almost the midway mark of the first period veteran Jack McLeod started Trail Smoke Eaters on their comeback with a goal scored from a scramble.

The Canadians trailed 4-3 at the end of the first period. Hugh McIntyre tied the score at 1:22 of the second period only to have the East Germans go ahead 5-4 less than a minute and a half later. Trail then rallied for three goals to take a 7-5 lead and clinched the win with four more in the third period.

ON TOP RUNG

The Canadian victory came on top of a 6-0 triumph over West Germany Friday and placed the Canadians in a deadlock for the top rung in the championship group A with Sweden. Each had four points from two wins.

Powerhouse Czechoslovakia, winner of its opener against West Germany, 10-1, Thursday, met the United States later today and was expected to win easily. A victory would leave the three unbeaten contenders Canada, Sweden and Czechoslovakia — deadlocked for the leadership in the 10-day tournament that ends March 17.

The Canadians outshot the East Germans 56-22.

GETS THREE GOALS

Tambellini, a native of Trail, who turned senior with the Smoke Eaters in 1956, scored a goal in each period. George Ferguson scored twice and Norm Lenardon, Bob Forhan, Jack McLeod and Walt Peacosh once to account for the other Canadian goals.

Manfred Buder scored twice during the big first-period East German splurge. Joachim Zeische, Wolfgang Plotka and Helmut Novy accounted for the other East German goals.

Trail goalie Seth Martin, who had 27 saves against the West Germans Friday, made 17 today.

The Smoke Eaters, surprisingly meek, went without a penalty for the first two periods as they did Friday—then drew the only two of the game in the third period.

SWEDES PRAISE GOALIE

Highlight of Friday's games was Sweden's 2-1 defeat of favored Russia.

Celebrating Swedes heaped accolades on goalie Kjell Sevensson and veteran forward Nils Nilsson.

Nilsson got the winning goal on a brilliant unassisted effort in the second period and Sevensson was a tremendous figure in the nets as he turned back repeated Soviet thrusts to preserve the upset triumph.

Sportsmen Ask For Fair Share Of B.C. Salmon

Concerned over the decline of salmon catches by sports fishermen in the past few years, the Amalgamated Conservation Society is waging a campaign to obtain a more equitable share of coho and spring salmon for sportsmen and to protect the future of B.C. salmon fishing.

Representing 12 Lower Island organizations, members of the society have drawn up a list of proposals they believe would benefit the salmon fishery.

These proposals have been incorporated in a brief presented to J. Angus MacLean, federal minister of fisheries, and later distributed to almost 300 interested individuals and organizations.

Through the brief, the society hopes to make the fisheries chief and many others more acquainted with the problems of sports fishermen on the B.C. coast.

Because of the widespread interest of Island anglers in the ACS campaign, The Daily Times is printing the brief in daily installments.

Here is the first one:

During the past few years, salt water sports fishermen have been increasingly concerned over the alarming decrease of salmon sports catches in Vancouver Island waters. Each year our once fabulous spring and coho runs are becoming more of a legend with little hope for the future.

Last year 3,000,000 tourists visited British Columbia, 12 per cent of these tourists indicated, through a survey, that their visit was primarily for the purpose of partaking of the much-publicized sports fishing. Taking into consideration the small percentage interested in fresh water fishing, a conservative estimate of 300,000 tourists came for the salt water angling. Assuming each visitor spent a minimum of $50 on food, accommodation, etc., a value of $15,000,000 can be set each year as the value of the tourist industry as it relates to salt water angling.

In addition to the expenditures of the tourists must be added an amount several times greater to account for expenditures of local sports fishermen. One has only to look at the number of resorts catering to salmon fishermen, boat rentals, guides, the daily help required to operate, the capital expenditure on equipment to provide the necessary facilities, the food, gasoline and clothing required to outfit and supply the sports fisherman to produce an industry with a value considerably in excess of an annual total of $50,000,000.

Protest Whisper Grows Into Roar

The disastrous effect of rapidly diminishing sports fishing catches on the above figures is not hard to imagine. If the present management policies of our West Coast salmon sports fishery are allowed to continue, one of British Columbia's greatest assets will be lost for all time. What was a whisper of resentment during the past five years has now grown into a roar of protest over the apathetic government approach of our spring and coho fishery.

Virtually all organized Lower Vancouver Island sports fishermen from all walks of life are represented by the following member organizations of the Amalgamated Conservation Society. By resolution they have asked for sweeping changes in our regulations governing the salmon fishery.

Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers Association, South Vancouver Island Rangers, Esquimalt Salmon Club, Oak Bay Anglers, The Chinook Club, Royal Canadian Naval Anglers Association, The Cowichan Bay Salmon Club, Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, the Saanich Inlet Boatmen's Association, the Pacific Trollers Association (Victoria local), the Victoria Outboard Club.

We do not suggest the following points are a cure-all for the industry, nor do we pretend to pass ourselves off as experts in the fishing field. This protest, along with what we consider constructive criticism and suggestions, represents public concern over the future of our West Coast sports fishery. We sincerely hope our pleas will not fall on deaf ears.

SPORTS FISHING COMMISSION

We recommend an immediate appointment by the federal government of a permanent commission to investigate the problem of our depleting coho and spring salmon sports fishery and to work with federal fisheries department for equitable catch distribution between sports and commercial fishermen with maximum safe exploitation of salmon runs.

There is no doubt that maximum exploitation of all species of salmon is being practised at the present time but equitable distribution is sadly lacking as far as the sports fishermen are concerned. Department of fisheries tabulations recently released prove beyond doubt that the sports fishermen are not receiving their share of the annual salmon harvest.

During the months of August and September, 1962, net fishermen in Juan de Fuca Strait harvested 360,373 coho plus their sockeye catch and a good number of springs, while the sports fishermen from Port Renfrew to Oak Bay—approximately 60 miles—landed 175 coho (five pounds or more), based on contest entries which conservatively register about 75 per cent of the fish caught.

Statistics released by the department of fisheries, Pacific area, showing percentage figures of the catch of spring calmon, jacks and coho between sport and commercial fishermen disclose that in 1960 the sports fishermen harvested 10.6 per cent of the total catch and in 1961 the sports catch dropped to 5.3 per cent, one-half of the 1960 total. This 5.3 per cent amounted to 250,375 fish. Only 119,525 of these were springs, jacks and coho amounting to approximately 45 per cent of the total sports catch or 2½ per cent of the total combined catch (sports fishermen harvested only 2.3 per cent of the total coho landings in 1961) proving that the maximum exploitation is a very one-sided harvest.

According to statistics in table 6 of the 1961 federal fisheries sport fishing report in areas 19 and 20, it takes a sports fisherman two full boat days to harvest one salmon. It is interesting to note that 44,825 boat days were logged by sports fishermen in areas 19 and 20 during 1961.

Equitable distribution is demanded by sports fishermen so that we may enjoy our heritage, and immediate steps must be taken to implement the necessary changes in our fishery regulations to this end.

Former Tour Regular Turns In Fine Round

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—A one-time pro tournament regular, Jimmy Clark, shot a seven-under-par 65 to grab a share of the lead after two rounds in the $25,000 Pensacola Open golf tournament.

Friday's fine round pulled the 42-year-old Clark into a three-way tie for the lead at 136 with Johnny Pott and Bobby Nichols. Clark now has rounds of 71-65, Pott 68-68 and Nichols 70-66.

Bunched in fourth place at 137 were Arnold Palmer with 68-68; Julius Boros, 67-70, and Gay Brewer Jr., 68-69. Palmer won the 1960 Pensacola title.

The cutoff point was 144, even par for the 36 holes, and there were some notable casualties. Those failing to make the cut were Don Fairfield, field, winner at Pensacola in the 1956 inaugural tournament, Doug Ford, Ken Venturi, Rex Baxter Jr., Al Geiberger and Tommy Aaron.

Meanwhile at Kingston, Jamaica, Bobby Brue and John Barnum fired four-under-par 68s and moved into a first-place ti at the half-way mark of the Jamaica Open with 36-hole totals of 136.

Brue and Barnum, with 136, have a two-stroke lead over Randy Glover and Joe Jimenez. At 139 are Charlie Sifford and Art Doering.

George Knudson of Toronto, the over-all tour leader with 99 points toward the Caribbean championship and the $1,000 bonus, shot a 71 for a 144 total and was well-back in the pack.

Boost Expected In Ski Injuries

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Safety League of Canada estimates that 3,000 skiers will have been injured when the current skiing season ends across the country. About 2,500 were injured last year.

The league, which made its estimate in association with the Canadian Ski Patrol System, says loss of control accounts for 70 per cent of the injuries, collision causes 8 per cent, ski tows 7½ per cent, and faulty equipment 6.8 per cent.

MEDAL GOLF ROUND

Mrs. G. H. Lovitt, 89-13—76; Mrs. T. J. Johnston, 96-22—74; Mrs. H. A. Shenker, 105-28—77; and Mrs. W. Champion, with a net 116, topped the various divisions in the monthly medal round for ladies of Uplands Golf Club.

Calgary Garrison racked up the best three times to take first place in the team event, edging Victoria's PPCLI.

Braves' Hopes Bright; First United Trailing

VANCOUVER — Bob Earl's Haida Braves flashed the bright light during an otherwise dark day for Victoria basketball teams.

Braves, one of three Victoria teams competing in championship events here, grabbed a commanding 25-point lead in the two-game, total-point series for the B.C. juvenile boys' title by battering Vancouver Eilers 34-19 Friday.

Second game will be played tonight.

Denny Morris led Braves with 10 points.

Friday action also left Victoria First United with some hope. But there was none for Victoria High girls.

First United, shooting for the B.C. junior men's crown, fell eight points behind following a 67-75 setback at the hands of Vancouver CYO. Second game is scheduled for tonight.

Maury Turner, with 18 points, and Doug Richardson, with 10, paced Victoria scorers but couldn't match CYO's one-two punch of Brian Adams (23) and Charlie Lipp (17).

Vic High dropped out of contention for the high school girls' championship when they bowed to John Oliver of Vancouver, 212-12. Victory moved the Vancouver school into today's semi-finals along with Salmon Arm and Kamloops. The fourth berth will go to either Queen Elizabeth of Vancouver or Surrey.

Trophies for Sailors; Tribute for Soldiers

Navy players picked up a pair of individual honors Friday night, and for a just cause, but Esquimalt and District Hockey League fans believe Army also should be rewarded.

Army, turning in its best performance of the season, scored something of an upset at the Sports Centre by holding league-winning Pontiac Chiefs to a 4-4 tie.

The result forces a third game in the best-of-three semi-final series. The deciding contest will be played Tuesday.

A goal by Fred Bridges in the last minute of play pulled it out for Army. Gary Elmore, Bob McNab and Ed Connor scored Army's other goals. Doug Couch counted a pair for Chiefs with Joe Iannarelli and Bob Fowler adding the others.

Earlier in the evening, everything followed form as favored Navy knocked off Victoria College Vikings, 8-1, to move into the best-of-five final.

John Morris (3), Gord Morris (2), Ben Weber, Claude McKenzie and John Bond hit for Navy, while Doug Bamborough scored Vikings' goal.

Navy forward Ken Maxwell and defenceman Lou Darche were presented with trophies during the night. Maxwell, the league's top scorer, got the most valuable player award, while Darche received the most gentlemanly player trophy.

STUDY SHORT PUTTS

There are three main reasons for missing short putts.

First in overconfidence. Not taking enough time to study the putt can make you draw an incorrect line. Even the short ones should be studied carefully. They all count one stroke.

Second is "over-reading" a slant or slope in the green. A short putt that is hit firmly won't be affected much by the green's slope—unless the slope is extreme.

Third is a babied stroke. Some short putts are left by a babied stroke. If there is a slope, the soft stroke will let the slope affect it even more. I feel the golfer should putt firmly for the back of the cup on these short ones, as we illustrate. Even if you don't sink it, you can't go too far past.

B.C. Seafood Feast

LOS ANGELES (CP) — A luncheon of seafood specially trucked from British Columbia was held here Thursday for Mayor Sam Yorty and 90 business and tourist officials from the Los Angeles area.

The mayor and his officials dined on B.C. shrimp, salmon and clam chowder, compliments of the B.C. government.

The luncheon was part of a tourist promotion tour sponsored by the B.C. government in an effort to persuade more Californians to spend their vacations in B.C.

HEAD of 3,585 Toastmasters Clubs is international president Frank Spangler of Milwaukee who arrived in Victoria this morning. He will be welcomed by Dr. J. F. K. English, deputy minister of education, tonight at a banquet at Holyrood House where he will hear seven finalists from Victoria and Duncan in a speech competition. His address in B.C. visit will be broadcast through a telephone hookup to Penticton and Kitimat clubs which are also holding area speaking contests tonight.

TV Station Stays Here

Revived rumors of the withdrawal of Victoria's television outlet today were labelled "strictly untrue" by Frank Griffiths, president of Vancouver radio station CKNW, new owners of CHEK-TV.

Final approval of the transfer of control to CKNW is expected to be granted by the Board of Broadcast Governors March 26.

"CHEK is licensed and assigned to the city of Victoria," Mr. Griffiths said. "It follows that the licencee must retain operations and facilities in Victoria."

Asked about the suggestion that programming might be micro-waved to Saturna Island transmitter from Vancouver, Mr. Griffiths said:

"It follows we will intensify our advertising and promotion in the Vancouver area. It probably will mean more personnel."

But retention of Victoria production—which he said was a "pretty good bunch"—would probably be a condition of the transfer of control as authorized by the BBG.

The station would also retain its call letters, which are assigned by the department of transport.

Former owner Dave Armstrong, who will retain a minority interest in the station, said there may be added facilities in Vancouver for news broadcasting, "but the operation will remain here."

"This fund has been set up to assure the underwriting of expenses incurred for upgrading old equipment and the supplying of new equipment to the hospital," a spokesman said.

A car stolen Thursday evening from a Linden Avenue address ended up heavily damaged on a Rupert Street boulevard two hours later.

The new sedan was reported missing by Oscar Davis, 431 Linden, at 8:30 p.m. At 11:30 p.m. it was found near the corner of Rupert and Heywood where it had failed to round a turn.

It tore up a traffic sign and travelled 150 feet before stopping, police said.

Two occupants of the car were seen to dismount and run off along Southgate.

DEAD MICE COME HIGH

LONDON (Reuters) — A judge Friday valued the shock of finding a dead mouse in a pie at £50.

Robert St. John Roper, a television executive, liked pies.

He took one home to his apartment, cooked it and was half-way through it when he came to the mouse.

He was sick for days. The judge fined the pie-makers £50 ($150).

News Magazine Reports on Cuba Sunday at 10 p.m.

Billy Daniels and Cleveland Williams Meet Tonight at 7 In Heavyweight Clash

Compiled by Ron Sudlow

An hour-long filmed report on present-day Cuba as seen by a CBC News Magazine crew which spent three weeks on the Caribbean island will be seen Sunday at 10 p.m. on Channels 6 and 2.

CBC Washington correspondent Knowlton Nash, a member of the crew, is host-narrator of the report.

Highlight of the program is an interview with Major Ernesto Guevara, Cuba's cigar-chewing, pistol-packing, bearded minister of industry.

Guevara, 34, resembles a "Latin Clark Gable," according to Nash, and carries a "machine gun" pistol that can fire 20 shells before he needs to reload from five, 20-shot magazines strung around his waist.

During the interview, Guevara's personal guards stand by, armed with machine guns, pistols and machetes.

The program reports on general living conditions in urban and rural regions, schools in which the Russian language is taught, political rallies, book stores loaded with Communist literature and a parade which features a large, well-equipped Cuban army.

This is the first television crew allowed into Cuba since the Cuban-U.S. crisis last fall.

Playing opposite this filmed report, the Dupont Show of the Week takes a look at Shelley Berman to see how his serious side will eventually make people laugh.

The program shows Berman's painstaking preparations for his routine, in which he personally supervises every detail from the arrangement of tables to the lighting of the stage and the briefing of the waiters to be quiet during his act.

We see Berman blow a fuse when a ringing telephone interrupts his act and diverts the audience's attention.

Tonight at 7 on Channel 4, promising Billy Daniels will face veteran Cleveland Williams in the fight of the week from Miami Beach. They are ranked eighth and sixth in the heavyweight division. Daniels has 18 wins (nine KOs) in 19 bouts.

Jack LaLanne Aims to Make Canadians Fit

By BRUCE AGNEW

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A U.S. television personality hopes to get on Canadian television to offset what he says is a hitherto unsuspected side-effect of American influence in Canada — overweight and general flabbiness.

The personality in question, Jack LaLanne, runs a half-hour physical fitness program on several dozen U.S. stations.

He says he already has several thousand Canadian fans, who sweat and strain in front of the TV set while watching his program on U.S. stations broadcasting from border cities.

LaLanne's show can be seen in Victoria weekdays over Channel 4 at 9 a.m. and Channel 12 at 9:30 a.m.

But he says other Canadians could use his services, and that the United States is to blame.

"The Canadians, boy, they're a fun-loving people," LaLanne said in an interview while on a recent trip to Washington. "And vigorous—more vigorous than any other people I've met.

"But with more American influence, they're beginning to get soft, just like Americans," he said.

"You can't get away with this idleness and all this over-eating," he said. "You've got to pay the price."

LaLanne tactfully sidestepped a question about how far he thought the indirect aggression of soft drinks, rich foods and no exercise had gone in Canada.

"They're sharp gals, boy," he grinned. "But they have weight problems like any of us."

LaLanne, who has been on U.S. television for 12 years, said he has an estimated 4.2 million U.S. viewers. Most of them are women, because in most cities his show goes on at 9 a.m. local time.

He leads his viewers through at least 20 exercises in each program, but only the long-time watchers are expected to keep up with him all the way. He tells beginners when they can quit and catch their breath.

Even the old-timers might have trouble keeping up with him if he pulled out all the stops. LaLanne claims the world's record in push-ups — 1,033 in 23 minutes during a television variety show in 1955.

"One day in the gym I did 1,000 of them in 19 minutes," he said. "That wasn't official, though."

Goulet, Sinatra Appear Wednesday With Bob Hope

Comedian Bob Hope is joined by four of North America's favorite entertainers as well as by a dozen of Hollywood's brightest young starlets on The Bob Hope Show to be telecast Wednesday at 8 p.m. on Channels 6 and 2 and later at 9 p.m. on Channel 5.

Frank Sinatra, Robert Goulet, Brenda Lee and Edie Adams are guests for this hour-long revue of comedy and song. Another feature is the presentation of Hollywood's 1963 Deb Stars, some of the motion picture industry's most promising young actresses.

Miss Lee appears with Hope in a sketch where he plays teen-age singing rage Humphrey Dacron who is idolized by disc-jockey Tina Tune.

Bob Goulet takes part in a sketch based on an argument between a television network vice-president (Hope) and a TV psychiatrist as they discuss the demise of "Doctor" Goulet's series, "Two Couches—No Waiting."

Frank Sinatra, who first appeared with Hope on TV 13 years ago, will join Bob in a stand-up comedy routine.

A French-Canadian play will have its English premiere on the Festival series Monday at 9:30 p.m. on Channels 6 and 2.

"The Endless Echo," a translation of Jean-Robert Remillard's play, "Par Dela Les Ages," stars Martha Henry and Len Birman in a re-telling of the Orpheus and Eurydice legend in a present-day setting on a French-Canadian farm.

Miss Henry plays Eurydice, the inhibited eldest daughter of a Quebec farmer. Birman is seen as Orfa, a young Rumanian who comes to the Giguere farm as a hired man.

The predestined love of Orfa and Eurydice unfolds against a background of bitterness and conflict.

Another feature show this week will bring back Henry Fonda for his third and final documentary on Hollywood entitled "The Great Stars."

Viewers will see screen personalities like great lovers Valentino and Boyer, tough guys Bogart and Cagney, swashbuckling heroes Errol Flynn and Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and glamor girls from Jean Harlow to Marilyn Monroe.

Another sequence will show "indestructable" stars such as Spencer Tracy, Katharine Hepburn, Marlene Dietrich, Cary Grant, Joan Crawford, John Wayne and Bette Davis.

DUNCAN — Too much emphasis is put on university and vocational education and not enough on the primary grades when the child is most responsive, Colin Cameron, NDP candidate for Nanaimo, said in a panel discussion on education.

The discussion, open to all candidates for election in the Nanaimo federal riding, was held in conjunction with Education Week.

Douglas Dane, Social Credit candidate, said education is a "terrific" burden on the province and that the federal government should do more to share its costs.

Liberal candidate Douglas Greer noted that little could be done to curb the cost of education.

Education is most important for the country and should receive the full support of the public, he said.

Conservative candidate W. F. Matthews said he could see a need for a federal department of education. He felt it would come eventually.

* * *

DUNCAN—Terry Jordan of Duncan, was fined $15 in magistrate's court Friday when he pleaded guilty to being in possession of liquor while under age.

RCMP stated the accused was checked on Highway 19 near Qualicum. Jordan said he had bought the beer at the Campbell River liquor store

* * *

NORTH COWICHAN — Amendments to the North Cowichan townsite sewer bylaw will result in a decrease of $5 a lot in frontage rates, Reeve D. C. Morton has informed council here.

He said the amendments would also lower the charges to multiple-dwelling commercial connections.

A further reduction of $5 in 1964 and the removal of the frontage rate altogether in 1965, was also predicted by the reeve.

The instructions are taken aboard the ships by pilots operating with the B.C. Pilotage authority.

OLD-LINE PARTIES BLAMED

'Sellout' Charged by Winch

Veteran NDP parliamentarian Harold Winch, in a fiery speech Friday charged both Conservative and Liberal governments of "selling out" Canada to foreign countries.

Speaking at the CCF Douglas Street Hall in support of John Windsor, NDP candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich, he accused the two old-line parties while in power of allowing foreign capital to buy out major Canadian companies and industries.

The last five years of Liberal rule and the last five years of Conservative rule will go down in history as the "biggest sellout" of Canadian companies, he said.

Since 1950 at least 240 substantial Canadian companies have been bought out by foreign money, he said.

"More than 5,000 Canadian companies are now foreign-owned," he stated.

He added that in 1961 nine fire and casualty companies were bought out by foreign capital.

"As things stand now, out of 374 fire and casualty companies, only 48 are now Canadian-owned," he said.

Mr. Winch noted that in the face of a record 10-year sellout, the Liberal and Conservative parties in their political campaigns are talking about the importance of retaining Canadian sovereignty and freedom from foreign control.

Mr. Winch also accused the Liberal and Social Credit parties of deliberately turning Canadians against Canadians in the present campaign.

"You can do well in Quebec if you curse the English people," he said, "and if you tell them they have been persecuted when they haven't been persecuted."

TWO STORIES

He said the two parties are telling Quebecers one thing and telling other part of English-speaking Canada another.

Mr. Winch lashed out at the Socreds.

"I don't know how they can ask you to vote Social Credit when they have a man like Caouette . . . when he not only boasted of having evaded the draft during the war but says his idol is Hitler."

Mr. Winch said that Caouette later explained that he meant he admired the economic policies of Hitler.

But Mr. Winch pointed out the economic policies of Hitler to provide employment was based on the liquidation of thousands of Jews.

Speaking on aid to underprivileged nations, Mr. Winch said Canada gives only one-fifth of one per cent of its gross national production to help less fortunate people.

MORE GENEROUS

He said Canada would have to be more generous to make friends with African-Asian countries.

"They are growing in power," he said, "and we can not ignore them."

Mr. Winch said there is a possibility Canada will be faced with another minority government April 8.

He said such a government would be able to operate efficiently if the elected members are honest and carry out the business of the people.

John Windsor, in a brief address said one of the issues in the present campaign is unemployment.

"I can't understand why we have a hard core of unemployment in a country like this," he said. "The present system can give full employment in wartime because they plan for it."

Mr. Windsor also favored a portable pension plan which would enable a man to move from job to job without losing his original pension.

"Every man, woman and child is entitled to medical care," he added. "I have seen serious ilnesses in families take 10 to 15 years to pay off. This is not right."

RCMP Crack Down On Goofball Pedlars

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bail totalling $8,000 was set Friday for two women and five men following a roundup of suspected goofball pedlars.

The roundup, with more arrests anticipated, was the result of undercover work by RCMP agent Const. Don Kennedy.

Const. Kennedy, a special drug agent, was brought in from the suburban Burnaby detachment early in 1963 to pose as an addict in the hunt for sellers of killer barbituates.

Charged with trafficking in barbituates (goofballs) contrary to the Food and Drug Act are:

Cecil Alexander Black, 59, Pearl Jacqueline Gallant, 48, Henry Kostiuk, 48, James John McKinnon, 54, Louise De Laronde, 51, and Donald Clifford Menard, 38.

Charged with selling pills containing codeine, contrary to the Narcotics Control Act, is Edgar Joseph Hennesy, 50.

Magistrate Cyril White set bail at $2,000 for Kostiuk, who faces five counts of barbituate trafficking, and $1,000 each for the others.

All seven were remanded without plea until Tuesday.

Missiles Pass Tests

CANBERRA (AP) — Australia's top secret anti-submarine guided missile Ikara has passed its sea trials off the Australian coast, defence sources reported here. The missile, tested on the frigate Stuart, is claimed to have a more accurate guidance system and a greater range than any similar weapon.

Arthur Mayse

In our legislature a while ago, John Squire of Alberni contributed a morsel of solid horsesense to the tussle over whether a committee with an 8-5 government majority should weigh certain allegations against the highways department.

His exact words are buried under a week long mountain of notes, but here in effect is how Mr. Squire answered government assurances that the committee would remain impartial.

"I'm partial. Every member of every party is, too. I don't think there's an impartial person sitting in this legislature."

Or anywhere else, either, Mr. Squire might have added. We may like to consider ourselves impartial, but press the right button, touch an issue that involves our emotions, and out the window flies impartiality, faster than you can say 'select standing committee on public accounts.'

Myself, I'm highly partial to any number of people and things. I like Chinese food and suspect that those who don't must have something wrong with their taste-buds.

My list of prejudices includes beard-wearing men, typewriters of several makes, movie spectaculars, dogs in coats, water skiers and rare beef.

All this, of course, is entirely unreasonable, based on nothing stronger than snap judgment or, even worse, plain bullheaded bias.

Yet while claiming impartiality, I cling to these prejudices, and would surrender them only with the utmost reluctance. So do we all, though few of us state the fact with Mr. Squire's blunt honesty.

* * *

I forget which of our lawmakers made this claim, but I consider it a fit companion for the Alberni's member's statement.

"A man without strong opinions," he said, "isn't worth much."

Again, true. Who duller to get into a discussion with than the fence-sitter ready to agree with anything and everything you say? You might as well be talking to yourself!

That's one quarrel I have with the organization man's gospel of getting along with everyone, avoiding ructions, keeping the surface smooth. In theory, this is all very fine. In practice, though, it provides the medical trade with a never-failing crop of ulcers, coronaries and nervous breakdowns.

A good, loud, partial, prejudiced roar can be tonic for body, mind and spirit. I welcome the moments when Gordon Gibson rears up on his hind legs in the legislature and cuts loose. The air is clearer, life revitalized, afterward.

Partial we are and must be. If we weren't, very little would be accomplished in this world. But admitting partiality, I think we must strive to be fairminded, a state by no means easy to achieve.

Fairmindedness means forcing oneself to realize that kids can't and shouldn't be expected to conduct themselves like adults.

It means, if you happen to be a convinced old-line party supporter, curbing prejudice to the point where you can admit that Social Credit did give us an effective ferry service, and that the New Democrats have fielded some very good men. Or conversely, if you're socialist, recognizing the fact that labor can be as much a tyrant as management.

* * *

Fail to do that, and we're in danger of becoming fanatics. There is prejudice aplenty in the Communist Party and the John Birch Society. But don't look to either for fair-minded thinking.

I intend to remain partial in those personal foibles I've listed. But at the same time, I'm aware that my prejudice against beards dates from the time I grew one on a mountain trip, and the damn thing came out bright red.

I know, too, that water skiing is a worthy sport, and that I'm cool toward its practitioners only because years ago a witless gaboon on water skis caused my wife to lose a large salmon.

As for Chinese food, it remains pleasantly associated with memories of a dim old restaurant in Toronto where expatriate westerners used to gather and make merry, replacing the green tea in the fat teapot with similar-colored but more potent beverages.

So here I leave you, all my little partialities and prejudices trooping along beside me. But fairminded I hope to stay, by golly, even though all my instincts tell me the man who trolls for trout with saltwater gear is the sort of character who eats his beef raw and likes his movies super-colossal.

THE ELECTION TRAIL

Campaign Stops At Belmont Gates

By PETE LOUDON

The 300 voters of Belmont Park, the navy housing area, may be the envy of other Greater Victoria homeowners before the election is over.

Naval regulations protect them from party canvassers, handbills, posters, sound trucks or election meetings.

But while the Queen's rules might please the residents, they are upsetting to some politicians.

Esquimalt-Saanich Tory campaign manager Russ Simpson says: "They are as entitled to be made aware of political issues as anyone else—they have a vote."

And the Tories didn't get much of it last time. There were 17 Conservative votes, 245 Liberal.

Liberal campaign co-manager Hal Olafson, a former navy man, doesn't object to the regulation:

"As soon as you get service people living together you get a rash of pedlars. You seem to be on every sucker list."

NDP campaigner Geoffrey Mitchell said: "There is no electronic fence keeping out the airwaves."

He hopes to beam radio messages to the Belmonters, and has a mail campaign going.

Liberal headquarters has announced that party's defence critic in the Commons, Charles M. "Bud" Drury (St. Antoine-Westmount) will speak here Friday at Central Junior High School at 8 p.m.

The greenish-blue federal election ballot used for 60 years will be scrapped this year. On April 8, buff-colored paper will be used.

The election will be conducted in the buff?

Esquimalt-Saanich Tory candidate George Chatterton has said his daughter wrote from the East that the Toronto Globe and Mail claimed Mr. Chatterton's is the only safe Conservative seat in Canada.

Globeman Ted Bolwell says that the Globe was quoting "a disenchanted Tory loyalist" who said Mr. Chatterton has the only chance of election of any B.C. Tory candidate.

Mr. Bolwell objects too that the item said the Globe supports the Tories editorially.

"Traditionally yes. But it was the first to call for the prime minister's resignation.

"And now it's making kind remarks about (Liberal leader) Lester Pearson," Mr. Bolwell adds.

One John should help another, said Geoff Mitchell, campaign manager for NDP Esquimalt-Saanich candidate John Windsor.

"I note the Tories are seeking a hall for Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's proposed appearance here.

"He can use the Douglas Street NDP Hall—if he can fill the 400 seats," says Mitchell.

50-Mile Fever Seems On the Wane

"Fifty-mile fever" is subsiding today after reaching a peak Friday when teen-agers by the dozen tackled the trek from points north of Duncan to the Roundabout.

Although several groups started out Friday evening, only five hikers, all teen-agers, checked in this morning.

George May, 17, was lone survivor of a group of five which left at 3 p.m. Friday. He arrived at the Times office at 5 a.m.

Others who made it were: Danny Joanisse, 17, and Steve Lance, 16, with a time of 18 hours 30 minutes, and Don James, 16, and his brother Joe, 15, claiming 11 hours 55 minutes.

Among those who started Thursday night or early Friday, were nine who finished Friday afternoon:

Ed Rychlik, Ken Searle, Bruce Bennett, Brian Lyseig, Larry Williams, Ken Hill and Ken Walker, all in one group; and Dave Bowering and Bob Ireland, who walked as a duo. All are 16.

PROMOTION to captain and appointment as commanding officer of HMCS Venture, cadet training establishment at HMC Dockyard, is due shortly for Cmdr. R. H. Leir, commanding officer of the destroyer escort HMCS Skeena. He will be succeeded in Skeena May 10 by Lt.-Cmdr. M. A. Martin, now captain of the frigate HMCS Ste. Therese, who will be promoted to commander. Skeena figured prominently in the news a year ago, when shells fell on Clallam Bay, Wash., during firing practice.

'Y' Fund Collectors Successful in East

Touring Victoria fund-raisers, Hugh Stephen and Stuart Keate, returned to the city Friday night after a foray into the money markets of Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg and announced that the National Corporations target of $150,000 would be "well exceeded."

The two local businessmen, who left Feb. 20, returned with $40,000 in immediate pledges and "three to four times that amount" in indicated gifts which must now be ratified by boards of directors and donations committees.

In nine days of canvassing they made approximately 60 calls on top business and industrial figures, and received only two turn-downs. They were joined in Toronto by city lawyer Donald Lawson and in Montreal by Capt. David Groos, DSC.

GOOD RECPTION

"It was a wonderful experience," campaign chairman Stephen said on his return by plane from Winnipeg Friday.

"Everywhere we went we were received with the utmost courtesy, consideration and kindness.

"In Montreal, for instance, general manager R. D. Mulholland of the Bank of Montreal—who used to manage the head office here—gave us a luncheon in the bank's executive dining-room and later placed a chauffeur-driven limousine at our disposal to facilitate our calls.

"We were impressed by the number of prominent Canadians who serve on national, regional or local 'Y' boards, and by the warmth of their feeling to the organization.

"Their generosity gave us confidence that we will achieve our ultimate goal of $1.1 millions."

Mr. Keate said he was "particularly pleased" that two newspaper foundations, which prefer to remain anonymous, made immediate gifts totalling $17,500 even though they have no operations in British Columbia.

Two former Victorians now prominent in banking circles—president Allen Lambert of the Toronto-Dominion Bank and John Proctor, deputy chairman of the Bank of Nova Scotia—evinced keen interest in the local building campaign and pledged their support of the drive.

Final figures on the National Corporations canvass are not expected until June. An interim report to the local management committee will be made next Friday.

Top Communist Here March 25

Leslie Morris, national leader of the Communist Party, will speak in Victoria March 25 during a 10-speech tour of Western Canada. He is candidate for Toronto Trinity.

Seven of the 13 candidates nominated by the Communists for the April 8 election are in the western provinces — three in British Columbia, two in Alberta and one each in Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Youth Admits Cash Box Theft

Captured in Gun Store After Outpacing Police

A Toronto youth pleaded guilty in city police court today to stealing about $70 from a downtown service station till Friday evening.

The sneak theft occurred while the station attendant was busy, touched off an armed robber alert, an eight-block police chase, and finally the arrest 20 minutes later.

John M. Hennessy, 20, appeared before Magistrate William Ostler and pleaded guilty to theft over $50 value from Bruce Passmore, owner of Speedway City Service, 800 Yates.

He was remanded to Friday for sentence.

David Sands, service station attendant, raised the alarm at 5:40 p.m. after he noticed a man in the office. He was drawn to the man by the sound of the cash register.

Taking a quick look at the cash he noticed a shortage and ran after the man as he darted out of the station toward Pandora.

He called police.

Det. Deans Blackstock told the court he heard a radio message about the theft as his cruiser car came up to Blanshard, near Pandora.

"I saw a man running and I shouted at him to stop. He ran on," the detective said.

Jumping out of the cruiser, Det. Blackstock ran after the man two blocks over to Fisgard, where Det. Walter Calwell, off-duty at the time, heard the first officer shout.

SUFFERED INJURIES

Det. Calwell lunged at the accused as he came out of a laundry office, missed him, and crashed to the pavement, injuring a hand and leg.

Det. Blackstock said he ran on after the accused, but lost him near City Hall.

A moment later, taxidermist Ralph Wherry, in his gunstore at 629 Pandora, noticed a distraught, breathless man enter the shop as he talked with customer John Neff, 2646 Shady Lane.

He said the newcomer was drenched with perspiration, took off his coat and when a police car went by, turned his head away.

LEFT ALONE

He spoke to the man and was worried about being left alone as Mr. Neff left him, surrounded by weapons.

But Mr. Neff had the same though in mind and called in the first policeman he came to, Constables Louis Pletz and Joseph Ferguson, who went to the store and arrested Hennessy.

When searched, the accused had only $18.23, and he told the detectives he had thrown the rest away as he darted through a used car lot between Johnson and Pandora.

He helped police look for the balance, but none was found.

Prosecutor Kenneth Murphy said he would produce Hennessy's eastern history when he next appears.

Magistrate William Ostler asked for a probation report.

LIQUOR STORE BURGLAR GIVEN 2-YEAR TERM

Raymond John Telford, of Victoria, was sentenced in Sidney RCMP court today to two years in B.C. Penitentiary for burglary of Sidney liquor store and three months in prison for skipping bail.

The breaking, entering sentence was the same as handed out to Paul Schultz in a previous trial for the same offence.

Police alleged Telford acted as lookout for Schultz.

Telford was on $750 bail bond to appear for trial Feb. 23, and was arrested by Vancouver police March 1. He offered no defence.

Education Questions Answered

This week is Education Week.

The Times, in co-operation with the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, invited questions from parents of local school children on any aspect of education, to be answered by teachers from Greater Victoria schools.

Q. How can teachers justify their action in forcing a student to repeat Grade IX when he fails only one subject and passes all the others?

A. It is true as stated in this question that if a Grade IX student fails to pass any one of the four constant subjects—social studies, science, English or mathematics—he must repeat the year. Somewhere the standard must be set and as always when standards are set and adhered to certain individuals will appear to suffer.

* * *

As pointed out in this letter, the student who makes straight A's in science, socials and mathematics but scores a D in English will fail the year, just as will the student who scores three C's and a D. True the first student has a much higher average but he still has not completed successfully the year's work, nor has he met the standard set for promotion. The student will again meet this standard of promotion at the Grade XII level, for he cannot graduate from high school until he passes every constant subject.

However the Greater Victoria School Board realizes that border-line students in Grade IX should be given a second chance and for this reason has each year operated a summer school for these pupils. At this school the student who has failed in one or two subjects has a second opportunity during the month of July to complete the year's work.

* * *

On the whole this promotion policy has been well received. With each report card the student can assess his own achievement in terms of this very definite promotion policy. No doubt can remain in his or his parent's mind when this evaluation is made. The student can be expectetd to improve immediately instead of waiting until near the end of the school year.

House, Apartment Break-Ins Yield $97 in Cash

Burglars took $90 from a house and $7 from an apartment in break-ins reported to city police Friday night.

The home of A. T. Schaddelee, 1259 Revercomb, was entered sometime after 9 a.m. Friday by way of an unlocked rear bedroom window.

At 8:45 p.m. Keith Rutley, 2943 Bridge, reported his apartment had been entered by an unlocked door sometime since Wednesday.

From a bedroom bureau drawer a thief took $7, disturbing nothing else in the suite.

GOOD TEACHER ANSWER TO 'MATH,' OLD OR NEW

By DESMOND BILL

Victoria teachers who went to a lecture Friday to hear about "the new mathematics" discovered they are only the old mathematics as they have always been taught by a good teacher.

Dr. C. B. Allendoerfer told the annual convention of the teachers that the best of them have known for years about the "new" methods of teaching mathematics.

Dr. Allendoerfer, who is on the faculty of mathematics at the University of Washington, told the Times "the new mathematics" is a somewhat misleading phrase "probably invented by an over-anxious public relations man."

Prime object of the new method is to ensure students understand maths instead of just being able to obtain correct answers to problems, as was often the case in the past.

Dr. Allendoerfer said many children have been able to pass examinations in math subjects and never have any understanding of what they were doing.

The new approach in geometry, for example, might require students to examine a number of triangles and to discover for themselves something about the relationships within the triangle.

It is only after this series of practical examples that a teacher would show how the students have actually been applying a rule.

Said Dr. Allendoerfer: "It's almost as if the students discover the theorem for themselves. That way they understand it And they don't forget it."

Good teachers have always known this method, he said. The intention of the new teaching technique, is that in future all teachers will use this approach.

Plans Visit To Cardinal In Hungary

ROME (AP)—Franz Cardinal Koenig left for his Vienna diocese today on his way to Budapest where he hopes to persuade Josef Cardinal Mindszenty to end his six-year stay in the United States legation.

Mindszenty, 70, found a haven in the U.S. legation when the Soviet Army crushed the 1956 Hungarian uprising. The Roman Catholic primate has said he will never leave his country, even if staying means life in confinement.

Koenig, archbishop of Vienna, said at the airport that he had discussed with Pope John his plans to visit Mindszetny.

Koenig said he had not yet applied for a Hungarian visa. He did not indicate how soon he might make his planned visit to Budapest.

Sources here had said he would convey to Mindszenty word that the Pope would like to have him come to Rome "if it seemed opportune," but that the final decision was left up to the Hungarian cardinal.

Unitarians Hoping For Church in Fall

Some 83 families are now members of the Unitarian Fellowship in Victoria, says Rev. Grant A. Butler, interim minister.

"We need about 15 more families to establish a church."

Mr. Butler said he hopes it will be possible to establish a Unitarian church in Victoria by next fall. He has been here for the past three months and will leave for Santa Rosa, Calif., March 24.

"Our purpose is to teach our members to think for themselves about religion by studying many of the world's religions and encouraging people to come to their own conclusions," Mr. Butler said.

"The program begins in Sunday school," he added. "We don't try to teach children theology until they are about six or seven years old and can understand selected stories from the Bible."

The Unitarian Fellowship is fulfilling a definite need in Victoria, Dr. Geoffrey Gilbert told a recent membership meeting.

Clare Yarwood and Warren Damer presented a proposed budget of $10,000, including a salary of $7,000 for a minister.

An anonymous tally of probable financial support was taken and it was decided to go ahead and see if the proposed budget could be raised.

Unitarian services are held in the Optimist Hall, 106 Superior Street, at 10.30 a.m. and in the War Amputees' Hall, 1610 Oak Bay Avenue, at 8 p.m. Sundays.

Adolf Brachat Succumbs at 88

Adolf Brachat, brewmaster at the Silver Spring Brewery in Victoria for 43 years, died this week at the age of 88.

Requiem mass was sung at Our Lady Queen of Peace Church Friday, followed by burial in Hatley Memorial Gardens.

Mr. Brachat was born at Essen-Frillendorf, Germany, in 1875 and came to Victoria in 1909. He retired from the Silver Spring Brewery in 1952

Detention Home May Require Additional Staff

Ald. Lily Wilson said Friday a special meeting will be held to decide staff and furnishing requirements for the new Greater Victoria juvenile detention home behind Spencer house.

She said some additional staff may be needed over the married couple that supervise the existing detention home on Cold Harbor Road.

The new home, under construction at Pembroke and Cameron for $93,300 by M. P. Paine Construction, is expected to be opened about mid-July.

It will provide accommodation for 20 juveniles and resident caretakers in a one-storey concrete slab and block structure.

Workmen now are building the basement which will accommodate heating, laundry and storage facilities

Miracles in Bible 'Not Literally True'

LONDON (AP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury suggests the miracles in the Bible may not be literally true.

In a lecture at London University, 60-year-old Dr. Michael Ramsey said:

"Did they really happen? If history matters for Christianity, the rigors of historical criticism must be faced to the full.

"It is important to apply historical criticism to the narratives about the miracles. When this is done, it may be found to be probable that there were some unhistorical accreditations to the narratives.

"It may be that some of the miracle stories can be given naturalistic explanations. It may be that the stories of demonic possession are explicable as stories of psychiatric disorder."

Women

Review of Beta Sigma Phi sorority work in Victoria in the past 21 years was given in verse by members of the seven local chapters, at the birthday reception and dinner in Holyrood House this week. Each girl represented one year of sorority growth and each carried a lighted torch, symbol of the sorority sisterhood around the world. Among those taking part were, from the left: Velma Larson, Xi Beta Chapter; Winnie Wardman, Preceptor Alpha; Arlene Bell, Xi Nu; Mavis Mallabone, Xi Beta; Nancy Hind, Xi Nu; Ruby Wilks, Doreen Standbrook and Loralee Turgoose, Omicron; Bridget Macdonald, Alpha Zeta; Maureen Hicks, Omicron; Arla Rendle, Alpha Zeta, and Jessie Wardhaugh, Xi Nu. Inset is the founder of the sorority in Victoria, Maude Hammond Gordon.

Alderman Millard Mooney represented the City of Victoria at the birthday celebration and, on behalf of the sorority, presented four charter members with 21-year pins. Here, Alderman Mooney assists in lighting a mammoth torch, sorority symbol, that was used to light smaller torches in the review of past years ceremony. With Alderman Mooney are, from the left: Rita Frenette, program convener of City Council and in charge of all arrangements for the reception and dinner; Yvonne Oakley, City Council president, who presided at the dinner, and Nonie Clark, Council's publicity convener.

Beta Sigma Phi Sorority

Comes of Age In Victoria

The 21st birthday was celebrated with a reception, review of the years and a dinner in Holyrood House on Tuesday evening this week. Arrangements were in charge of City Council. The historical review showed that sorority chapters have worked for many social service and charitable projects here as well as promoting cultural and educational programs.

Tribute to the founder of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, Maude Hammond Gordon, who was unable to be present at the gathering because of illness, was ably given by Marjorie Aldersmith, at right. With her in the picture is a charter member Joyce Nicholls, who came from Vancouver to receive her 21-year pin.

Hostesses for the evening were Jean Donaldson, right, and Doris Hooper, second from right, first and second vice-presidents of City Council. They are pictured greeting Mrs. T. H. Johns and Mrs. R. Kingham on their arrival. Mrs. Johns is an honor member and Mrs. Kingham social sponsor of the Council.

Three of four charter members who received 21-year pins during the evening celebration are from the left: Rita Rodger, Barbara Brown and Vera Waller. They have steadily progressed in sorority work and are now members of the senior chapter in Victoria, Preceptor Alpha.

Former members and new members joined with members who have been in work of the sorority in Victoria for many years to make this 21st birthday party one to remember. Among the 135 who attended were, from the left: standing, Diana Mercer, Xi Chapter, who assisted City Council president Yvonne Oakley in writing the verses for the history presentation; Dorothy Peaker, president of Omicron Chapter; Kelso Reed, Xi Xi Chapter, and seated, Diane Ireland, Alpha Zeta Chapter; Margaret Cutler, past president of Xi Nu Chapter; Miriam Armstrong, president of Xi Beta Chapter, and Grace Waters, member of the senior chapter, Preceptor Alpha.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Move, Man, Move!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am half out of my mind keeping this inside me, and I need an answer. My wife belongs to a church on the edge of town. I am not a member. We are both in our early 30's and have four children.

Someone picks her up in a car at 6 o'clock Sunday morning and she doesn't get home until noon on Monday. I ask her what kind of church lasts all night and she tells me that they pray in church all day, and afterwards they go to the preacher's house for special prayers and supper. Then they go outside and commune with nature and pray some more. After that they go to someone's house for coffee and doughnuts. Then someone drives her home. I went along with her story on Sundays, but now she has started to go on Wednesdays.

WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED: Don't just sit there—get a sitter, or park the kids with friends and go to "church" with your wife next Sunday. Seeing is believing.

DEAR ABBY: I have been unhappy for 37 years because the man I married never gave me a wedding ring. I didn't know I wasn't getting one until the minister asked for the ring. My husband said, "No ring." When people ask me why I don't wear a wedding ring I make excuses because I'm ashamed to tell them the truth. Several years ago I gave my husband a man's gold wedding ring, thinking he would then understand how much I wanted one, but he wore it only a few times and never took the hint. Am I wrong to feel cheated?

CHEATED.

DEAR CHEATED: Why "hint"? Perhaps your spouse of 37 years never realized how much his failure to give you a wedding ring has hurt you. Don't suffer in silence any more. Tell him you want one.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please give me some information? I have $10 riding on your answer and it has to be printed in your column or I can't collect. My friend says that unless a letter is signed, you will not use it in your column. I say that you use letters in your column whether they are signed or not.

BALTIMORON.

DEAR BALTIMORON: Congratulations, you have just won $10.

How to Make Driving Safer—With Only a Few Pennies

By PENNY SAVER

Penny has heard a rumor that colored signal lights may soon be compulsory on all cars. The reason is that colored lights are more readily seen in the daytime and also they provide better visibility in fog, rain or snow.

If this is true then why wait until they are compulsory—why not convert your old signal lights to amber now?

It couldn't be easier. All you need is 75 cents for a bottle of amber paint made specifically for painting on the inside of light lenses or over bulbs. It dries in minutes so you won't loose any driving hours.

Something else which makes for better visibility is fog-free windshields and windows. There are many ways to accomplish this and one is with a bottle of anti-fog mixture. Just wipe it on the windows with the sponge provided in the package for 98 cents. For only 39 cents you can buy a sponge already impregnated with a similar liquid.

Do you usually find yourself rummaging around for a tissue to wipe the heavy dew off the car windows in the morning? Well, why not do things the easy way—spend 98 cents on a short-handled window wiper and sponge.

You know about the night driver that sits in behind your car and refuses to dim his lights. I have an answer for him, too (as well as a few names). The answer is a plastic glare shield which fits onto your rear-view mirror. Just clip it on and then flip it up for daytime driving. Price for this bit of safety and comfort is 89 cents.

Once you have added the safety features how about taking steps to cut down on the parking fines?

One way to do this is to invest in a parking purse. It has a slot for every coin and a clock dial with movable hands on the inside lid. At $1.50 you can't expect to find a buzzer system but it is good for the absent-minded who can't remember at what time the parking meter is due to run out.

Bride Follows Sisters' Footsteps

When Margaret Anne Blackett exchanged vows with Flt.-Lt. Jordan Lionel Krastel in St. Aidan's United Church this afternoon, she became the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas W. Blackett, 3408 St. Matthew Street, to marry a Royal Canadian Air Force officer. All three sisters are graduates of the Vancouver General Hospital school of nursing.

The bride wore an oyster-beige satin brocade dress and jacket for the ceremony. Toning brocade shoes, flowered beige hat and a small bouquet of roses in two shades of pink completed her ensemble. Mr. Blackett gave his daughter in marriage.

Groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Krastel, 3550 Shelbourne Street. Rev. A. G. MacLeod officiated. Spring flowers, white candles and greenery set decor.

Mrs. John R. McWhirter, twin sister of the bride, was matron of honor in a silver-green satin brocade dress and jacket, toning shoes and flowered hat. Kokomo carnations were in her bouquet. Stanley Krastel was best man for his brother.

John Blackett proposed the toast to his sister at the reception which followed in the home of the bride's parents.

Out-of-town guests included Dr. and Mrs. David McKeague of Sequim, Wash., Flt.-Lt. Robert J. Dooling and Mrs. Dooling of St. Bruno, P.Q., Mr. and Mrs. John Blackett of Prince George and FO John McWhirter and Mrs. McWhirter of Comox.

As her going-away outfit the bride chose a spring suit of green silk and toning flowered hat, beige top coat and light brown accessories. Corsage was of pink roses.

Honeymoon will be spent motoring to Portage la Prairie, Man., where the newlyweds will live on the RCAF station.

BE SMART—

Carrying out the soft and feminine theme a bit further: the peplum could make winter-into-spring news. Consider one of crisp taffeta-trimmed lace gracing a rayon or silk-crepe dress. The dress, sleeved or sleeveless depending on your preference. Careful about any other trim, however . . . a peplum is a loner . . . it sniffs at collars, pleats, any busyness about the dress it graces . . . gives the nod to perhaps a chaste rope of pearls at the neckline or a subdued pin in same vicinity.

Salt Spring

In April—At meeting of St. George's Altar Guild at Ganges, Salt Spring Island, plans were made for a home baking and plant sale in April. Mrs. W. H. Saunders was named flower convener. Mrs. J. Mitchell presided and tea was served by the honorary president, Mrs. S. J. Leech.

When In Rome . . .

Colorful togas were worn by guests and a parchment scroll was used for the guest list when Omicron Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority entertained members of Xi Nu Chapter at a Roman party. The same theme was carried out in the decorations.

Silver "chariots", from which a hot luncheon was served, were drawn around to the various guests. Entertainment included music and games and a specialty number by two of the hostesses.

Guests included Arlene Bell, Kay Budd, Marguerite Cutler, Frances Dawson, Elenor Galland, Nancy Hind, Doris Hooper, Gladys Lock, Dorothy Prentis, Lillian Smith, Helene Stevens and Betty Morris.

Recently named one of the "best hatted women in America," Mrs. Stuart Keate holds a favorite chapeau, a white leather three-tiered pillbox. She is surrounded by others in her collection. One is from New York, another from San Francisco, the others are from Victoria.

Millinery Institute Award Comes to Victoria Woman

By Nona Damaske

Damaske

Each year names of women in communities throughout North America are submitted by newspaper fashion editors, television fashion commentators and magazine fashion writers to the Millinery Institute of America in New York.

From accompanying pictures and information the "best hatted" woman of each community is chosen and receives an award in "recognition of consistent and tasteful selection of millinery."

Recipients of these awards come from all walks of life and all age groups. Only thing the winners have in common is an awareness of what a becoming chapeau—new or remodelled—can do for a woman.

Winners of the 1963 awards included Mrs. Stuart Keate of Victoria.

Letha Keate, a diminutive brunette, wears a hat at the drop of a hat. Not only does she have a genuine interest in millinery but she finds that a high rising hat adds inches to her height, which pleases her.

ECONOMY IN NUMBERS

She has a collection of nearly 50 hats. This may sound like an extravagance, but when they are accumulated over a period of years they can be an economy.

Some award winners have remodelled their hats as many as four times and by keeping a number of hats up-to-date are always in the position of having the right chapeau for the occasion.

One new hat each season, carefully chosen to wear with a new costume, is rule of thumb for Mrs. Keate. Many times a new hat will be designed in the same fabric as a dress or coat . . . her small stature is a deciding factor in this case.

A hat in the same shade or same fabric as her outfit gives a feeling and look of added height.

Brimmed hats have a place in Letha Keate's collection, too, but these must be chosen with special care. The brim must be rather narrow and it must be dipped or curved to give a look of height rather than width.

An ardent golfer, and member of Victoria Golf Club, Mrs. Keate enjoys wearing a hat whenever she plays. In summer it shades her head and eyes from the sun and in winter, it helps keep the ocean breezes from chilling her ears.

She likes to "blossom out" with a flowered chapeau in early January, a fine straw for Easter and a fall felt immediately after Labor Day.

An attractive hat, she believes, enables you to stand out in a crowd.

"You are seldom the forgotten woman if you are smartly hatted," she says.

WHY GROW OLD?

Exercise Always Possible If Certain Rules Are Followed

Experts have told me that one can learn to ski safely at any age if two rules are followed. Always have instructions first, and do not try the slopes which are too steep or too long for you. Be conservative!

Certainly, one can begin exercise at any age if a few rules are followed. First, ask your doctor. He will check your blood pressure and heart and will know if you have any unusual or abnormal conditions which might make exercise unsafe for you. Next, start in with easy exercises and do them only a few times at first, working up to more repetitions a day very gradually.

Many physicians allow walking, swimming and golf when more strenuous exercise is prohibited. However, any exercise can be strenuous, or light, depending on how you execute it and how long you exercise.

Here are two of my six introductory exercises.

1. Stand erect with your feet a comfortable distance apart and your hands on your hips. Rotate your trunk. Keep your hips as still as you can and make a complete circle with your body from the waist up.

If this makes you at all dizzy, move in one direction for one round and then in the opposite direction. Continue, alternating directions. It is important to do this exercise slowly.

2. Stand erect with your arms at your sides and FEET TOGETHER. Raise one arm upward by each ear. Keep the arms in place while you bend forward as far as you can. Be certain to keep the knees straight while you do this. Raise the trunk, reaching up as high as you can. Continue.

If you would like to have my six introductory exercises, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 25 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Here's How to Make Plain Skirt From Full-Pleated One

"Dear Eunice,

"Maybe you can tell me how to transform a full-pleated skirt into a plain one?"

Mrs. A. F. S

Dear Mrs. A. F. S.:

Rip the seams of your pleated skirt and carefully press flat so the grain-line will not be disturbed. Examine the threads of the fabric to determine the lengthwise grain and mark this with a long arrow using white chalk.

Lay your new skirt pattern on your fabric, matching the grain-line so it will hang correctly. After it has been cut, proceed with the usual construction.

Her Work, A World Passport

By PAT DUFOUR

Unemployment statistics don't mean a thing when you're a physiotherapist. This has been proved by Miss Barbara Gill who landed here on Sunday after a two-year stay in Australia. She began work at Gorge Road Hospital, Monday morning.

"Training in physiotherapy is an open passport to practically every country in the world," says the fair-haired therapist who received her training in her native town of Leeds in Yorkshire, England.

She graduated as a physiotherapist after a three-year course in the General Infirmary there in 1948 and qualified as a teacher in 1958 after taking a special two-year course.

Two years ago Miss Gill had a yen to "see the world." She wrote to the Australian Physiotherapist Association in Sydney, Australia, asking if there would be job opportunities if she visited that country.

Back came the answer by return mail: "We'd be pleased to have you on the staff of our training school. When can you come?"

She accepted and for two years taught "down under" where physiotherapy is "lagging far behind."

She explains: "With the exception of a few electrical items every piece of equipment has to be shipped from England. This does not make for efficiency."

Why did Miss Gill decide to become a physiotherapist?

"For a while I couldn't make up my mind whether to go in for physical education or to work at something in the field of medicine. This profession is a happy combination of both."

Victoria was a natural choice for Miss Barbara Gill when she decided to visit Canada. Here, she is staying with her cousin and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith of Tattersall Drive.

Although England realized the worth of physiotherapy long before North America, Miss Gill tells you there is still some prejudice against its use.

"Some older general practitioners have still to be convinced of its worth although, since the Second World War, most doctors have nothing but respect for our profession."

Although most people consider physiotherapy a comparatively new field Miss Gill points out:

"The early Romans and Greeks used to rub their aches and pains and use exercise as a convalescing procedure so it's really nothing new. I suppose you could say the Swedes were the first to develop it into a science in the early 1900s."

In spite of England's lead over North America in her field, Miss Gill is one of hundreds of English-trained therapists who look elsewhere for employment.

Her immediate superior at Gorge Road Hospital, Mrs Margo Pea, received her training in London, England.

Apart from the fact that with the expansion of her field, and the slow development in other countries (Canada has only five training centres compared to England's 30) qualified therapists are greeted with open arms in any country, Miss Gill gives another reason for emigration of fellow workers.

"English rates of pay are so poor compared to yours. Basic rate at home is now £565 ($1,695) a year."

Yet, the pull of home is strong and Miss Gill plans to be in Leeds again this summer.

Meanwhile, she's thoroughly enjoying her new job. "It's the first time I've worked in a hospital of this sort. All my others saw me working mostly with acute cases that required treatment after surgery."

Her pleasant Yorkshire accent now has an Australian twang which Miss Gill confesses, "had half the people 'down under' asking me what part of Australia I came from and the other half guessing my English county."

She adds: "I'll be a real problem child when I add a few Canadianisms!"

What other countries would she like to visit? "I don't really know right now," she admits.

But, when she decides, her credentials will surely open the door to yet another adventure.

Double Flips Lead to a Double Axel—and It's Not Part of a Car

By MARGE GILROY

If you think a double lutz is an ice cream soda; a spread eagle a type of bird; and a double axel part of a car, you are wrong.

They are all names of jumps performed regularly by 11-year-old skating champion, Heather Fraser.

Heather, who only began taking skating lessons four years ago now speaks of these jumps as though they were the routine exercises of every school girl.

Jumps are this young girl's forte.

Her mother, Mrs. John Fraser says: "In competition, when Heather misses out on a few points with her figures she always makes up for them in the jumps."

Her most recent success in Prince George proves this. There, competing in the British Columbia sectionals she won the "most artistic trophy," first year it had ever been awarded to a junior.

This is one of many medals and trophies she has been bringing home ever since she won the junior ladies championship in Vancouver in 1961.

A "natural" on skates Heather still has her spills as a scar on her leg tells you.

"I used to be black and blue from my knees to my ankles," she says. "When you are learning new things you try and try and fall and fall."

Although skating is Heather's main interest there is still time for weekly ballet classes and music lessons, all worked around a regular school day plus hours of practice on the ice every day and twice on Sundays.

Every other weekend Mrs. Fraser accompanies her daughter to Vancouver for a skating lesson and during the summer months, they stay in the mainland city for more concentrated instruction and practice for the young skater.

Father isn't left out of the picture either.

He runs a frequent taxi service between home and the rink including Saturday morning when he gets up at 6 a.m. to do it. At other times, when mother and daughter are away, Mr. Fraser cheerily cooks his own meals.

Heather's interest in skating began when she was four. The Frasers lived in Ottawa then and there was a patch of ice in the playground at the back of the apartment building.

"Mum bought me a pair of skates and I liked it," she recalls, "I just skated around and got my balance."

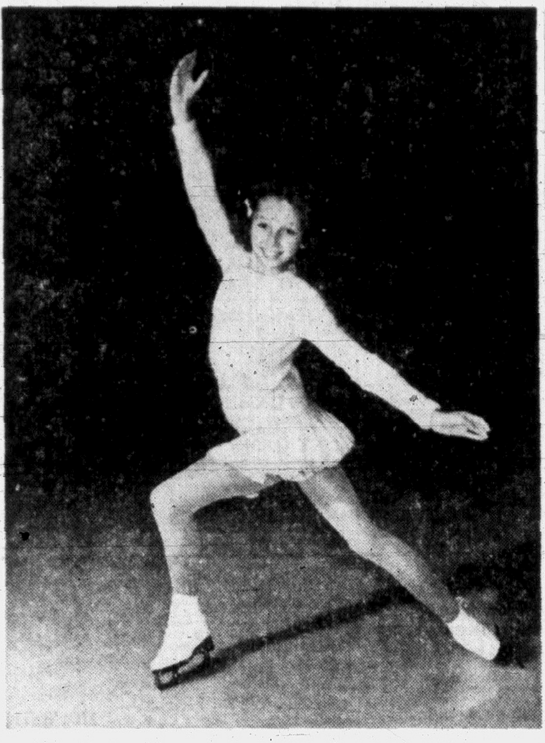
Shortly after this the family moved to Victoria and it was not until Heather was eight that she took up the sport again.

Her ability to perform on the ice was soon recognized by a professional and this encouragement along with her own love of the sport has led her from one competition to another.

This year the young champion travelled to Edmonton to see the Canadian championships and for a preview of what is in store for her after she wins another four medals. She must have eight before she can enter national competition.

If all goes well Heather will be competing by the time she is 14 or 15.

Preparing for that day, she is now starting to do double jumps with concentration on the double flips and the double axel.



Petite Heather Fraser, member of Victoria Skating Club and the Connaught Skating Club, Vancouver, is seen here in a pose named Ena Baur, after the skater who first mastered it.

BETWEEN OURSELVES

Clothing You Discard Badly Needed In Korea

By Elizabeth Forbes

Forbes

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, Canada's indomitable champion of the cold and the hungry in poorer countries of the world, has just completed her 10th survey of Korea and its people.

In a letter to the Times, she writes: "I spent many hours finding out for myself how the unemployed, the squatters, the disabled, those who are too old and ill and alone in the world, fare; and now that I have seen their indescribable misery, want and magnificent courage, I am determined to help them as much as is humanly possible."

Dr. Lotta describes joining the Seoul Salvation Army on a daily "kitchen run."

"Every night, except Sundays, these volunteers, in two jeep station wagons, carry hot nourishing food to relocated refugees along the Han River; old homeless men huddled together in a kind of summer pavilion in the middle of a park and the ragpickers and those found roaming the streets at midnight with nowhere to go. These last are gathered in a large tent in the park to protect them from freezing to death.

SHIVERING, COLD

She writes: "At the last stop I no longer had the courage to get out of the car and meet the shivering men and women waiting for their first and only warm meal of the day. I was too frozen; too ashamed also that we who know of this need, do so little about it."

Another part of this poignant letter tells of a distribution of clothing at "Canada House," sent out by the Unitarian Services Committee of Canada of which Dr. Lotta is executive director.

"The garments came out of boxes which our volunteers had packed in various centres across Canada," she wrote.

GRATITUDE

"Indeed it would have been wonderful for those who had given the clothes, who had processed and shipped them, to be present, to see first those unbelieving and then suddenly radiant expressions on the faces of the women who left carrying unwieldy, huge bundles of Canadian treasures."

Dr. Lotta pointed out that "as always the need for trousers of all sizes is the most acute" and she tells of "several men in one family, or neighbors, sharing a precious one pair of pants."

Then she adds: "My daydream is that every community in Canada would launch a door-to-door canvass for expendable trousers—surely the harvest would be amazing!"

There is a special message in the letter, too, for those who knitted cardigans and gaily-colored heel-less stockings for the USC.

"Gratitude from young recipients, as well as orphanage directors and delighted mothers. Those woolly, warm, cuddly things fill a tremendous need.

NAKED BODIES

"Only sad part about them is that there are never enough to cover all those naked, shivering little legs and bodies . . . "

After I had read the letter I talked to Mrs. Eric Dowell, one of Dr. Hitschmanova's staunch workers in Victoria and head of the USC clothing depot here.

She told me that last year 17,800 pounds of clothing were shipped to Korea and the Middle East from this city. So there is every chance that some of the garments Dr. Lotta saw distributed came from Victoria families.

"We sent a record amount last year," Mrs. Dowell says, "we'd like to equal, if not better it, in 1963."

'PLEASE GIVE!'

Then she pointed out: "It's nearly spring here now. People are beginning to discard their winter clothing. Many are tossing garments aside as too worn for another year.

"Please . . . please . . . tell them, we can use any or all of them.

"Ask them to bundle the clothes up and send them to our clothing depot at 1117 Wharf Street (Dowell's Cartage and Storage).

"And, if they have any expendable trousers to give away . . . well, we might start making Dr. Lotta's day-dream a reality."

Mr. Young and Mr. Tiffany report from
COLOMBO

Approaching Ceylon from the air, the island—cloaked in luxuriant tropical foliage and floating in midst of an indigo sea—looked to us like a giant emerald. The fantastic vegetation seems to be everywhere; we feel surrounded by it, for our hotel is on the edge of a huge tropical park . . . right in the downtown section of Colombo. The bazaars constitute a shopper's paradise; Buddhist temples dot the landscape, and the ubiquitous monks, with their flowing saffron robes and shaven heads, scurry to and fro. It is not unusual to see an elephant walking solemnly along a suburban street. We saw the highly stylized exhibition of the Kandy dancers and inspected a tourist "must"—the "Tooth of Buddha" temple, just outside Colombo.

The vision of Oriental splendour is justly represented in Ceylon's chief product. As we pursue our mission, we admire the star sapphires, star rubies, opals, cat's eyes and alexandrites that are offered for our inspection. These purchases take place at the back of tiny stores seated in narrow twisting alleys in the old quarter.

The mining itself, completely devoid of all automation, follows ancient methods. The primitive mines are pits in the jungle, usually near a river, sunken about 70 feet into the gem-bearing stratum; all around, the magnificent flora, colourful birds and butterflies vie with the gems in brilliance. All the stages of the "industry" are in native hands—until a foreign buyer comes to purchase. We are conscious of being only two of a long procession, for the merchants of antiquity, with their caravans and slave galleys, bargained here . . . and the lure of Oriental riches excited the Western man, centuries ago.

Goodbye, "mysterious East"; we are going back to the Western world—but first, we'll visit the diamond cutters of Tel Aviv.

BRIDGE LESSON

The expression, "trump poor" is applied to any hand where you have all the trumps you can possibly want, but can't get full value out of them, because you have the same number of cards in the side suits in each hand.

Thus, when I looked over dummy I saw that I was trump poor. I had nine sure tricks in either spades or no-trump and no easy way to find a tenth.

Counting my sure losers, I saw that I had to give up a heart and a club. As for diamonds I would probably lose two tricks if I had to lead it myself, but would probably lose only one if I could get the opponents to do it for me. Hence an elimination play was indicated.

My first step was to draw trumps. Then I led a heart and West was in the lead. He made his best play which was a club, but that didn't help him. I cashed the ace and king and led a third club.

East won and could not afford a club or heart lead so played a diamond for me. I played low and West had to win with his king. At this point there was nothing West could do. A diamond return would give me both my diamonds, he was out of clubs and a heart lead would allow me a ruff and discard.

WHY SPEND MORE AND GET LESS

For the last 10 years more homes have been built by our organization than any other contractor. With this volume and one-owner organization—builder designer, land developer and building supplier—middle-man costs and profits are avoided and the saving is passed on to you. By our control of design, lot layout, orientation, varying house setbacks, landscaping, fencing, etc., your new home investment is insured. Do not make the serious mistake of buying a stucco box or buying in a stucco box area, or in one of the poorer districts of Victoria. Our lots are located mainly in the fastest appreciating part of Victoria—the new University area.

Your Vickery home will include Fencing, Trees, Sewers, Written Guarantees, Red Seal Wiring and many items considered to be extras by other contractors.

The Vickery home owner will tell you "I bought a Vickery home because they offer the best home in Victoria for the money."

In Victoria more people live in Vickery Homes—the reason is obvious.

What is the difference between a book and a tiresome person?

You can shut up a book.

MENTAL FISHING

There are three boats on a lake fishing for lake trout, small-mouthed bass and perch. The men on the Santa Maria are using worms and minnows for bait. The Santa Maria is anchored. The men in the Pinta are casting. The fishermen in the Nina are fighting a terrifc battle with a 50-pound fish.

You have to know something about fresh-water fishing to figure out which boat is fishing for each fish. Do you?

Answers: Pinta, bass. Nina, trout. Santa Maria, perch.

RIDDLE DEE DEE

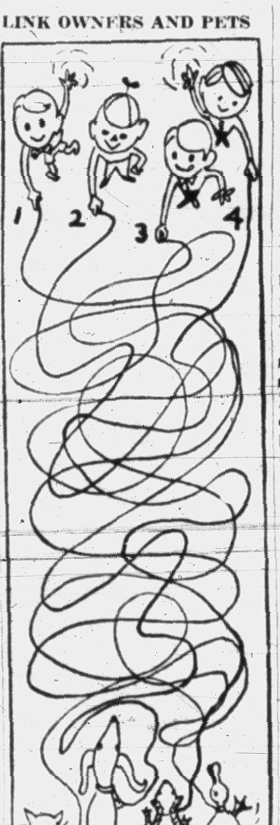
Everyone likes to end a checker game with a flourish. Here's a chance to do just that. Challenge: White checkers, moving up the board, to move and win in five plays. How long will it take you to solve?

Solution: White 26-22, Black 25-18; White 23-14, Black 32-28 (or 18-23); White 6-10, Black 13-22 (or 32-23), White 14-9, Black 5-14, White 10-17-26-18.

LINK OWNERS AND PETS



To each his own is an expression with which each of the four youngsters readily agrees. Each owns a pet; each pet is on a leash. Here's the catch: Youngsters and pets have been dashing madly hither and yon, and leashes have become entangled in a gigantic snarl. Now, if everyone stands stock still, one youngster at a time can work along lines with colored pencils or crayons. Use a different color for each line.

If you are wondering about the advisability of owning a pet skunk, don't. Skunks make wonderful playmates—raised from an early age, and deodorized, of course.

Answers: Owner 1—duck. Owner 2—dog. Owner 3—cat. Owner 4—skunk.

Dear Henry:

I am very handsome, good looking, smart and rich and beautiful. My problem is trying to get a girl to fall in love with me,

HELP ME.

Dear Help Me:

From what I've read I can't understand why any girl could resist you. But from what I've read I begin to realize why. Maybe if you didn't act too conceited you might have a better chance. Looking at your writing, I don't think you're perfect yet!

HENRY.

MIRROR, MIRROR ON THE WALL—

Dear Henry:

Are teen-agers too old to hit?

A PARENT.

Dear Parent:

They SHOULD be too old to hit.

HENRY.

Dear Henry:

My steady broke up with me about two months ago. I asked my friends what to do. They said "try to get him back." I did everything I could but it just doesn't seem to work.

He tells everyone that he still likes me but not enough to go out with me. I did everything that I could but I can't seem to get him back. Please don't tell me to forget him 'cause I can't. I've tried for over a month and even mom and dad said that I just can't forget him. So mom told me to ask you for help. PLEASE help me.

HEARTBROKEN.

Dear Heartbroken:

He might just be testing you. He broke up with you and you have been doing everything you can to get him back. It "reassures" him, and he felt that since you were doing such a good job, he might as well keep you going.

You should stop being "encouraging" for a while and let him labor a bit, then make up. If he doesn't follow the bait and it turns out that he really doesn't like you as much any more, you had better let it go like that and find another boy friend.

HENRY.

Dear Henry:

A week ago something happened in our class and I got the blame for it. I did not do it and I know who did. The teacher took me to the principal to get the strap.

The principal says that I must confess that I did it or get the strap until I do. I go every morning and get six straps on each hand. It hurts but not as much as he thinks. I have three choices:

(a) Confess for something I didn't do.
(b) Squeal on this guy (he is afraid of the strap).
(c) Keep on getting the strap until the principal gets tired or the strap wears out.

What would you do if you were in my place, Henry?

RED HANDS.

Dear Red Hands:

Your red hands will wear out before the strap does! A serious offence occurred in your classroom. Your teacher and the principal want to find out who is responsible. You are doing a noble gesture but you are also hindering your teacher and principal.

If the kid was half the man you are he would own up and not let you take the blame. He is not worth the sacrifice. Go to him and tell him to own up or you'll do it for him. HE probably knows that he will look a lot better if he owns up and as for you I don't think that you should expect too much praise.

HENRY.

Rebels 'Ready to Die' For Quebec Freedom

Montreal Armories 'Bombed'

MONTREAL (CP) — Leaflets left in three Montreal area armories say Le Front de Liberation Quebecois (The Quebec Liberation Front) "is a revolutionary movement made up of volunteers ready to die for the economic and political independence of Quebec."

The leaflets were left after kerosene-filled "Molotov cocktails" were tossed at three armories in the Montreal area Thursday night and Friday.

The bombs failed to explode.

The home-made incendiaries —using beer and liquor bottles —were thrown at the Royal Montreal Regiment armory in suburban Westmount, the Victorian Rifles of Canada drill hall on Cathcart Street, and the armory of the 4th Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, on northwest Lacombe Avenue.

The army immediately announced it was adding guards to watch over all Montreal area armories.

One Quebec separatist group, the Republican Party of Quebec headed by Marcel Chaput, condemned the action in a statement.

The statement said "independence for Quebec will not come through a revolution but by peaceful negotiation based on the voice of the people expressed during an election or democratic referendum."

Wicks were attached to the bottles and these were set afire before the incendiaries were thrown, the army said. No damage was reported.

The roughly typewritten leaflets said "the suicide commandos" of the FLQ have as their main mission to destroy "completely by systematic sabotage":

"All symbols and colonial (federal) institutions, in particular the RCMP and the armed forces;

"All information media in the colonial language which hold us in contempt;

"All enterprises and commercial establishments which discriminate against Quebecers, which do not use French as their first language, which have advertising signs in the colonial (English) language;

"All factories which discriminate— against French-speaking employees."

Electoral 'Takeover' Alleged

WINNIPEG (CP)—J. Frank Syms, New Democratic Party candidate for Springfield in the April 8 federal election, has asked for an investigation of an alleged Conservative "takeover" of the electoral machinery in the riding.

Mr. Syms released to the press a copy of a March 8 letter to Nelson Castonguay, chief electrical officer, which says:

"I am requesting an immediate investigation by you into an alleged take-over of the electoral machinery in Springfield riding by the Conservative Association, and specifically, the replacement of an already appointed deputy returning officer because of that person's refusal to join the Conservative party."

The letter says Mrs. Alice Cook, after being certified as a deputy by returning officer William Horodyski Feb. 18, was visited Feb. 24 by a representative of the Conservative party and asked to join the party. She refused.

On March 2, the letter says, Mrs. Cook received a letter from Mr. Horodyski saying she had been replaced as a deputy. Mr. Syms adds:

"I consider this a moral as well as a practical issue and I would urge you to investigate the situation in Springfield even if this meant delaying the election in that riding."

In Our HOUSE

By Arthur Mayse

★ ★ ★

If you have much to do with children, you learn not to worry over-much when the thud is followed by a hearty yowl. It's silence that brings parents on the run.

In our House, same difference.

When the Opposition proffered affidavits alleging misuse of public funds, Gordon Dowding's statement was delivered without bombast and received in somber quiet.

Friday afternoon's heat lightning over university grants that fall short of the academic 'gimme' was noisy and wild, but can be written off as little more than a tension-breaker.

Better Defenced

I note it here for two reasons. The first is that our young Dr. Pat McGeer, who lost a round earlier in the week to Attorney-General Bonner, has apparently learned the unwisdom of leading with his chin.

The new Liberal member and UBC assistant professor stated his case for the universities with force and precision. In the crossfire that followed, he returned the government na-sayers considerably better than they hurled at him.

Uncle Gerry McGeer remembered as a pretty good hand with the Irish confetti, would have been proud of his bespectacled nephew Friday.

The other point I would note, while admittedly speculative, might be tucked away for future reference. It seems to me that during these last weeks, some of the field of force in which our premier moves has been dissipated. He strikes me as a tired and worried man. The smile-grooves still mark his face, but the smile which is so salient a feature of the Bennett public image appears less often.

Leader Loses

At least once each session, I'm told, the premier and NDP Randolph Harding treat themselves to a head-clash.

Friday was their day for a shattering of lances; and when the dust cleared, it was Mr. Bennett not Mr. Harding, who had bitten the dust.

For the dominant figure in a dominant party, such reversals are not good. They could conceivably lead to an end perhaps crueller than the fate of a Caesar or a Huey Long: the decline into political nonentity suffered under this same dome by the deposed premier from whom Mr. Bennett—a watchfully quiet Conservative in those years—learned some of his choicest gambits.

Thorns Toe

Increased vocational training has been advocated by all parties this week in the House. The rose isn't without its thorn, though: and I could wish Opposition Leader Strachan had spoken at greater length on the virtues of the old-fashioned apprentice system.

Another who suggested that prefabricated voca-

CABINET APPOINTMENTS TO BE MADE ON MONDAY

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today he plans to announce the names of "two or three" new cabinet ministers Monday morning shortly before he leaves the capital to resume his election campaign.

The prime minister parried questions about the cabinet appointments, saying only that "at least one" of the appointees would be from Quebec. "I've gone as far as I'm going," he added. The rest of the details would have to wait until Monday.

PEARSON:

'Consider The Future Of Canada'

By JAMES NELSON

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson, one month before election day, has called on Canadians to vote a strong Liberal government into office April 8 for a four-year term during which it will introduce a national health plan.

He wound up two weeks of campaigning, which took him from the Maritime provinces to Saskatchewan, with an appeal in the Lakehead for considered judgment of long-range future of Canada before voters cast their ballots.

Earlier Friday, in Selkirk, Man., he said a government should act during its term of office as though it expects to retire after four years, wrapping up its pledged program before it goes, and not defer unpopular decision or calculate its future on the basis of the next election day.

"The Conservative campaign seems to be based on three factors: That the situation is oppressive, that the Liberals are obstructive, and the Americans are offensive," Mr. Pearson said.

"I don't think that is quite enough in facing the problems that we have to face in Canada today."

RESTATES PLATFORM

He restated in summary the Liberal platform to a jam-packed audience of 2,200 in the Lakehead Exhibition Coliseum where he received warm applause from most of his listeners and few interjections.

The first priorityis to restore confidence, to clean up our affairs and to put things in order. The second is to provide jobs by expanding and developing the economy—and do something about the 541,000 men and women who in January of this year—a year which, we are told, is one of 'unparalleled expansion'—are looking for jobs."

Mr. Pearson said, however, concentration on this second objective would not bar his government, if elected, from introducing some needed social security measures immediately. One would be supplementary old age pensions based on contributions by employers and employees, thus making no additional charge on the treasury.

Another immediate measure would be "changes in the nature of assistance for agriculture, changes without additional burden on our treasury."

HEALTH COMES NEXT

Once these priorities have been met, Mr. Pearson added, his government could go on to other worthwhile measures, paid for out of increased revenues from increased economic activity. One will be the national health plan.

The Liberal leader, speaking in the home constituency of Douglas Fisher, CCF and NDP member of Parliament who upset the late trade minister C. D. Howe in 1957, strongly attacked the New Democratic Party, saying its highest ambition is to prevent any other party from having a majority in Parliament.

Dynamite Factory Ripped by Blasts

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) Four violent explosions ripped through the world's largest dynamite factory near here today, killing at least three persons and injuring 27 others.

Officials said two Negroes and one white man were killed, although the number of Negro casualties still was being checked.

They said earlier reports of a possible 35 to 40 dead were exaggerated.

Officials at the factory hospital said 18 white and nine non-white casualties have been admitted.

The explosions at the factory at Modderfontein, 16 miles from Johannesburg, were heard as far as 20 miles away. People living within a five-mile radius said their homes were shaken to the foundations and windows blown in.

The factory area was evacuated, except for essential personnel, for fear of further explosions.

A pilot who flew over the vast factory complex said there were four big craters in the site and trees were uprooted and scorched all around it.

Officials said an explosives stores and three other buildings were destroyed and surrounding buildings extensively damaged.

The factory, belonging to African Explosives and Chemical Industries, employs about 4,000 persons of all races.

It was established in 1894. Besides producing more than 3,000,000 cases of explosives annually, it manufactures nitrogen, ammonia and other chemicals for basic scientific research.

The explosives are used chiefly in South Africa's rich gold mining industry.

DIEFENBAKER:

'Nobody Loves Me But People'

By DON HANRIGHT

BELLEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker Friday night wound up a four-day southern Ontario tour as he began it—appealing for non-partisan support for what he called "the great crusade."

About 2,000 persons jammed into a collegiate hall and adjoining classrooms — biggest crowd since he began Tuesday night before 3,000 at Vineland, near St. Catharines—to hear him say he has been maligned and degraded by the Liberals but is "coming to think that everybody's against me but the people."

He spoke to about 1,000 persons—including some 200 students—in a high school at Port Hope, 70 miles east of Toronto, in the afternoon before moving by train to Belleville.

Polishing the same speech he delivered through Ontario, he accused the Liberals not only of "strangling" Parliament but of "diatribes against me which have been of the greatest possible assistance because the people are starting to realize what has been going on."

Again he said "and they haven't denied it" that recent cover-story treatment of him in an American magazine (Newsweek) was "conceived in Ottawa. . . . There were members of the Liberal who's who hand the lesser who's who, who produced this thing."

'SATAN HAS COMPETITION'

Mr. Diefenbaker said of the caricature photo of him on the magazine's cover that "Satan must think he has competition down here on earth."

He called the Liberals "mugwumps" because now that the economy was on the "upswing" they refused to discuss it, whereas in the 1962 election campaign they had predicted economic ruin and "down, down, down, down graded Canada."

In one of his appeals for support in a "hard fight" he said in part:

SPEAKS OF UNITY

Speaking of his drive for racial unity in Canada, he said there was a time in the Conservative party when a man of non-British or non - French origin could not have become prime minister—because "a geneological tree was more important than citizenship."

But he said there still are Conservative party members who oppose his leadership — "they were against me in 1956 and they're against me again today." This was a reference to the 1956 convention where he won the party leadership.

Noting that he has been charged with indecision, he rapped Liberal Leader Pearson for making what he said were nine changes in his nuclear-policy in three years and said "the Pearson formula for decisiveness is here a policy, there a policy, everywhere a policy."

Being a philosophical-type doggie, and anxious to earn his bed and bone, Tom accepts the situation with equanimity, if not enthusiasm. (Times photo by Halkett)

UBC Grant Issue Stirs Sharp Row In Legislature

By FRANK RUTTER

Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett lost his temper Friday and demanded the resignation of rookie MLA Dr. Patrick McGeer.

The Vancouver-Point Grey Liberal, an assistant professor of medicine at the University of B.C., touched off the most violent debate of the session in the legislature.

The subject was higher education, just one day after Education Minister Leslie Peterson had told the House of the government's plans to implement the recommendations of UBC president Dr. John Macdonald's report.

During the course of the day-long debate, Dr. McGeer suggested there was a conspiracy of silence between the UBC board of governors and the government about costs.

NO BLANK CHEQUE

He called for increased operating grants to both Victoria College and UBC, while Mr. Peterson answered with a refusal to supply a blank cheque, although he indicated the government might consider more money without making any promise—an apparent reference to Thursday's pledge to supply funds from coming revenue.

At one stage the debate degenerated into a slanging match between those who have university degrees and those who have not.

Dr. McGeer was "blooded" as he duelled with the government on all aspects of university financing.

He charged that Victoria College this year is getting only 40 per cent of its requested budget, UBC 35 per cent.

The House relapsed into disorder a number of times, reaching a climax just at the close of debate and ultimate approval of the $93,000,000 education department estimates.

His finger shaking, his face grim, the premier shouted at Dr. McGeer: "Resign . . . resign."

He said he could not hold two jobs at once—UBC teacher and MLA.

He said Dr. McGeer's criticism was "disgraceful."

Tony Gargrave (NDP—Mackenzie) angrily retorted that he was considering presenting a bill to ensure protection of MLA's jobs. He said the prem-

Canadians 'Gobble Up' Market

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senator Maurine Neuberger, Oregon Democrat, said Friday Canadian exporters have "gobbled up" almost two-thirds of the U.S. Atlantic coast lumber market, causing distress to northwestern U.S. lumber towns.

Claiming the Canadians increased their share of this market partly through low shipping costs, the lumber-state senator introduced a new bill to remove restrictions which force U.S. exporters to transport their lumber only by U.S. cargo ships.

Producers maintain shipping rates on U.S. vessels are sharply higher than those listed by foreign operators. Last year Mrs. Neuberger got the stiff shipping regulations relaxed for one year on U.S. lumber transported to Puerto Rico.

Her new bill would extend the relaxation to all American ports indefinitely. U.S. lumbermen would be able to charter foreign ships on shipments to all other American ports.

"West coast lumbermen have shown that given a chance to compete on a basis of equality they need no subsidy," she told the Senate, expressing regret that her bill may throw some U.S. seamen out of work.

Favorable Trade Balance

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada had a favorable trade balance in January of $38,400,000, the eighth month in a row in which the value of exports exceeded imports, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Friday.

Exports for the month were an estimated $546,800,000, with imports at $508,400,000. This compares with exports of $503,100,000 and imports of $492,300,000 in January of 1962 when the export surplus was $10,700,000.

For all of 1962 Canada had a trade surplus of $79,500,000.

A higher deficit in January trade with the United States was more than offset by an increased surplus in dealings with Britain, the Commonwealth and other nations.

Canada sold $78,700,000 worth of goods to Britain in January and bought $36,700,000 from her for a trade surplus of $42,100,000, up from $24,500,000 a year earlier.

On the U.S. account, however, Canada sold $316,400,000 and purchased $372,500,000 for an unfavorable balance of $56,100,000. This compared with a $45,200,000 deficit in January, 1962.

Trade figures for January of this year and last, in millions of dollars:

Exports—	Jan. 1963	Jan. 1962

In our legislature a while ago, John Squire of Alberni contributed a morsel of solid horsesense to the tussle over whether a committee with an 8-5 government majority should weigh certain allegations against the highways department.

His exact words are buried under a week long mountain of notes, but here in effect is how Mr. Squire answered government assurances that the committee would remain impartial.

"I'm partial. Every member of every party is, too. I don't think there's an impartial person sitting in this legislature."

Or anywhere else, either, Mr. Squire might have added. We may like to consider ourselves impartial, but press the right button, touch an issue that involves our emotions, and out the window flies impartiality, faster than you can say 'select standing committee on public accounts.'

Myself, I'm highly partial to any number of people and things. I like Chinese food and suspect that those who don't must have something wrong with their taste-buds.

My list of prejudices includes beard-wearing men, typewriters of several makes, movie spectaculars, dogs in coats, water skiers and rare beef.

All this, of course, is entirely unreasonable, based on nothing stronger than snap judgment or, even worse, plain bullheaded bias.

Yet while claiming impartiality, I cling to these prejudices, and would surrender them only with the utmost reluctance. So do we all, though few of us state the fact with Mr. Squire's blunt honesty.

* * *

I forget which of our lawmakers made this claim, but I consider it a fit companion for the Alberni's member's statement.

"A man without strong opinions," he said, "isn't worth much."

Again, true. Who duller to get into a discussion with than the fence-sitter ready to agree with anything and everything you say? You might as well be talking to yourself!

That's one quarrel I have with the organization man's gospel of getting along with everyone, avoiding ructions, keeping the surface smooth. In theory, this is all very fine. In practice, though, it provides the medical trade with a never-failing crop of ulcers, coronories and nervous breakdowns.

A good, loud, partial, prejudiced roar can be tonic for body, mind and spirit. I welcome the moments when Gordon Gibson rears up on his hind legs in the legislature and cuts loose. The air is clearer, life revitalized, afterward.

Partial we are and must be. If we weren't, very little would be accomplished in this world. But admitting partiality, I think we must strive to be fairminded, a state by no means easy to achieve.

Fairmindedness means forcing oneself to realize that kids can't and shouldn't be expected to conduct themselves like adults.

It means, if you happen to be a convinced old-line party supporter, curbing prejudice to the point where you can admit that Social Credit did give us an effective ferry service, and that the New Democrats have fielded some very good men. Or conversely, if you're socialist, recognizing the fact that labor can be as much a tyrant as management.

* * *

Fail to do that, and we're in danger of becoming fanatics. There is prejudice aplenty in the Communist Party and the John Birch Society. But don't look to either for fair-minded thinking.

I intend to remain partial in those personal foibles I've listed. But at the same time, I'm aware that my prejudice against beards dates from the time I grew one on a mountain trip, and the damn thing came out bright red.

I know, too, that water skiing is a worthy sport, and that I'm cool toward its practitioners only because years ago a witless gaboon on water skis caused my wife to lose a large salmon.

As for Chinese food, it remains pleasantly associated with memories of a dim old restaurant in Toronto where expatriate westerners used to gather and make merry, replacing the green tea in the fat teapot with similar-colored but more potent beverages.

So here I leave you, all my little partialities and prejudices trooping along beside me. But fairminded I hope to stay, by golly, even though all my instincts tell me the man who trolls for trout with saltwater gear is the sort of character who eats his beef raw and likes his movies super-colossal.

'S-Day' Minus Eleven—And our four-footed pals and fine-feathered friends have started the final countdown towards spring, which arrives March 20 on the calendar, but is here already on the weather chart. Peter and Laddie, playful pups owned by Earl Palliser, Millstream Road, stage jovial tug-o-war in dazzling sunshine; lambs on the farm of E. R. Swift make the most of their pre-mint-sauce days; and daddy-o mallard in Beacon Hill Park is pursued by mama, who has domestic matters in mind. Weatherman says present balmy temperatures will hold over weekend, with sunny skies.

THE ELECTION TRAIL

Campaign Stops At Belmont Gates

By PETE LOUDON

The 300 voters of Belmont Park, the navy housing area, may be the envy of other Greater Victoria homeowners before the election is over.

Naval regulations protect them from party canvassers, handbills, posters, sound trucks or election meetings.

But while the Queen's rules might please the residents, they are upsetting to some politicians.

Esquimalt-Saanich Tory campaign manager Russ Simpson says: "They are as entitled to be made aware of political issues as anyone else—they have a vote."

And the Tories didn't get much of it last time. There were 17 Conservative votes, 245 Liberal.

Liberal campaign co-manager Hal Olafson, a former navy man, doesn't object to the regulation:

"As soon as you get service people living together you get a rash of pedlars. You seem to be on every sucker list."

NDP campaigner Geoffrey Mitchell said: "There is no electronic fence keeping out the airwaves."

He hopes to beam radio messages to the Belmonters, and has a mail campaign going.

Liberal headquarters has announced that party's defence critic in the Commons, Charles M. "Bud" Drury (St. Antoine-Westmount) will speak here Friday at Central Junior High School at 8 p.m.

The greenish-blue federal election ballot used for 60 years will be scrapped this year. On April 8, buff-colored paper will be used.

The election will be conducted in the buff?

Esquimalt-Saanich Tory candidate George Chatterton has said his daughter wrote from the East that the Toronto Globe and Mail claimed Mr. Chatterton's is the only safe Conservative seat in Canada.

Globeman Ted Bolwell says that the Globe was quoting "a disenchanted Tory loyalist" who said Mr. Chatterton has the only chance of election of any B.C. Tory candidate.

Mr. Bolwell objects too that the item said the Globe supports the Tories editorially.

"Traditionally yes. But it was the first to call for the prime minister's resignation.

"And now it's making kind remarks about (Liberal leader) Lester Pearson," Mr. Bolwell adds.

One John should help another, said Geoff Mitchell, campaign manager for NDP Esquimalt-Saanich candidate John Windsor.

"I note the Tories are seeking a hall for Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's proposed appearance here.

"He can use the Douglas Street NDP Hall—if he can fill the 400 seats," says Mitchell.

50-Mile Fever Seems On the Wane

"Fifty-mile fever" is subsiding today after reaching a peak Friday when teen-agers by the dozen tackled the trek from points north of Duncan to the Roundabout.

Although several groups started out Friday evening, only five hikers, all teen-agers, checked in this morning.

George May, 17, was lone survivor of a group of five which left at 3 p.m. Friday. He arrived at the Times office at 5 a.m.

Others who made it were: Danny Joanisse, 17, and Steve Lance, 16, with a time of 18 hours 30 minutes, and Don James, 16, and his brother Joe, 15, claiming 11 hours 55 minutes.

Among those who started Thursday night or early Friday, were nine who finished Friday afternoon:

Ed Rychlik, Ken Searle, Bruce Bennett, Brian Lyseig, Larry Williams, Ken Hill and Ken Walker, all in one group; and Dave Bowering and Bob Ireland, who walked as a duo. All are 16.

PROMOTION to captain and appointment as commanding officer of HMCS Venture, cadet training establishment at HMC Dockyard, is due shortly for Cmdr. R. H. Leir, commanding officer of the destroyer escort HMCS Skeena. He will be succeeded in Skeena May 10 by Lt.-Cmdr. M. A. Martin, now captain of the frigate HMCS Ste. Therese, who will be promoted to commander. Skeena figured prominently in the news a year ago, when shells fell on Clallam Bay, Wash., during firing practice.

Youth Admits Cash Box Theft

Captured in Gun Store After Outpacing Police

A Toronto youth pleaded guilty in city police court today to stealing about $70 from a downtown service station till Friday evening.

The sneak theft occurred while the station attendant was busy, touched off an armed robber alert, an eight-block police chase, and finally the arrest 20 minutes later.

John M. Hennessy, 20, appeared before Magistrate William Ostler and pleaded guilty to theft over $50 value from Bruce Passmore, owner of Speedway City Service, 800 Yates.

He was remanded to Friday for sentence.

David Sands, service station attendant, raised the alarm at 5:40 p.m. after he noticed a man in the office. He was drawn to the man by the sound of the cash register.

Taking a quick look at the cash he noticed a shortage and ran after the man as he darted out of the station toward Pandora.

He called police.

Det. Deans Blackstock told the court he heard a radio message about the theft as his cruiser car came up to Blanshard, near Pandora.

"I saw a man running and I shouted at him to stop. He ran on," the detective said.

Jumping out of the cruiser, Det. Blackstock ran after the man two blocks over to Fisgard, where Det. Walter Calwell, off-duty at the time, heard the first officer shout.

SUFFERED INJURIES

Det. Calwell lunged at the accused as he came out of a laundry office, missed him, and crashed to the pavement, injuring a hand and leg.

Det. Blackstock said he ran on after the accused, but lost him near City Hall.

A moment later, taxidermist Ralph Wherry, in his gunstore at 629 Pandora, noticed a distraught, breathless man enter the shop as he talked with customer John Neff, 2646 Shady Lane.

He said the newcomer was drenched with perspiration, took off his coat and when a police car went by, turned his head away.

LEFT ALONE

He spoke to the man and was worried about being left alone as Mr. Neff left him, surrounded by weapons.

But Mr. Neff had the same though in mind and called in the first policeman he came to, Constables Louis Pletz and Joseph Ferguson, who went to the store and arrested Hennessy.

When searched, the accused had only $18.23, and he told the detectives he had thrown the rest away as he darted through a used car lot between Johnson and Pandora.

He helped police look for the balance, but none was found.

Prosecutor Kenneth Murphy said he would produce Hennessy's eastern history when he next appears.

Magistrate William Ostler asked for a probation report.

LIQUOR STORE BURGLAR GIVEN 2-YEAR TERM

Raymond John Telford, of Victoria, was sentenced in Sidney RCMP court today to two years in B.C. Penitentiary for burglary of Sidney liquor store and three months in prison for skipping bail.

The breaking, entering sentence was the same as handed out to Paul Schultz in a previous trial for the same offence.

Police alleged Telford acted as lookout for Schultz.

Telford was on $750 bail bond to appear for trial Feb. 23, and was arrested by Vancouver police March 1. He offered no defence.

'Y' Fund Collectors Successful in East

Touring Victoria fund-raisers, Hugh Stephen and Stuart Keate, returned to the city Friday night after a foray into the money markets of Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg and announced that the National Corporations target of $150,000 would be "well exceeded."

The two local businessmen, who left Feb. 20, returned with $40,000 in immediate pledges and "three to four times that amount" in indicated gifts which must now be ratified by boards of directors and donations committees.

In nine days of canvassing they made approximately 60 calls on top business and industrial figures, and received only two turn-downs. They were joined in Toronto by city lawyer Donald Lawson and in Montreal by Capt. David Groos, DSC.

GOOD RECPTION

"It was a wonderful experience," campaign chairman Stephen said on his return by plane from Winnipeg Friday.

"Everywhere we went we were received with the utmost courtesy, consideration and kindness.

"In Montreal, for instance, general manager R. D. Mulholland of the Bank of Montreal—who used to manage the head office here—gave us a luncheon in the bank's executive dining-room and later placed a chauffeur-driven limousine at our disposal to facilitate our calls.

"We were impressed by the number of prominent Canadians who serve on national, regional or local 'Y' boards, and by the warmth of their feeling to the organization.

"Their generosity gave us confidence that we will achieve our ultimate goal of $1.1 millions."

Mr. Keate said he was "particularly pleased" that two newspaper foundations, which prefer to remain anonymous, made immediate gifts totalling $17,500 even though they have no operations in British Columbia.

Two former Victorians now prominent in banking circles—president Allen Lambert of the Toronto-Dominion Bank and John Proctor, deputy chairman of the Bank of Nova Scotia—evinced keen interest in the local building campaign and pledged their support of the drive.

Final figures on the National Corporations canvass are not expected until June. An interim report to the local management committee will be made next Friday.

Top Communist Here March 25

Leslie Morris, national leader of the Communist Party, will speak in Victoria March 25 during a 10-speech tour of Western Canada. He is candidate for Toronto Trinity.

Seven of the 13 candidates nominated by the Communists for the April 8 election are in the western provinces — three in British Columbia, two in Alberta and one each in Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Education Questions Answered

This week is Education Week.

The Times, in co-operation with the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, invited questions from parents of local school children on any aspect of education, to be answered by teachers from Greater Victoria schools.

Q. How can teachers justify their action in forcing a student to repeat Grade IX when he fails only one subject and passes all the others?

A. It is true as stated in this question that if a Grade IX student fails to pass any one of the four constant subjects—social studies, science, English or mathematics—he must repeat the year. Somewhere the standard must be set and as always when standards are set and adhered to certain individuals will appear to suffer.

* * *

As pointed out in this letter, the student who makes straight A's in science, socials and mathematics but scores a D in English will fail the year, just as will the student who scores three C's and a D. True the first student has a much higher average but he still has not completed successfully the year's work, nor has he met the standard set for promotion. The student will again meet this standard of promotion at the Grade XII level, for he cannot graduate from high school until he passes every constant subject.

However the Greater Victoria School Board realizes that border-line students in Grade IX should be given a second chance and for this reason has each year operated a summer school for these pupils. At this school the student who has failed in one or two subjects has a second opportunity during the month of July to complete the year's work.

* * *

On the whole this promotion policy has been well received. With each report card the student can assess his own achievement in terms of this very definite promotion policy. No doubt can remain in his or his parent's mind when this evaluation is made. The student can be expected to improve immediately instead of waiting until near the end of the school year.

Burglars took $90 from a house and $7 from an apartment in break-ins reported to city police Friday night.

The home of A. T. Schaddelee, 1259 Revercomb, was entered sometime after 9 a.m. Friday by way of an unlocked rear bedroom window.

From a bedroom bureau drawer a thief took $7, disturbing nothing else in the suite.

GOOD TEACHER ANSWER TO 'MATH,' OLD OR NEW

By DESMOND BILL

Victoria teachers who went to a lecture Friday to hear about "the new mathematics" discovered they are only the old mathematics as they have always been taught by a good teacher.

Dr. C. B. Allendoerfer told the annual convention of the teachers that the best of them have known for years about the "new" methods of teaching mathematics.

Dr. Allendoerfer, who is on the faculty of mathematics at the University of Washington, told the Times "the new mathematics" is a somewhat misleading phrase "probably invented by an over-anxious public relations man."

Prime object of the new method is to ensure students understand maths instead of just being able to obtain correct answers to problems, as was often the case in the past.

Dr. Allendoerfer said many children have been able to pass examinations in math subjects and never have any understanding of what they were doing.

The new approach in geometry, for example, might require students to examine a number of triangles and to discover for themselves something about the relationships within the triangle.

It is only after this series of practical examples that a teacher would show how the students have actually been applying a rule.

Said Dr. Allendoerfer: "It's almost as if the students discover the theorem for themselves. That way they understand it. And they don't forget it."

Good teachers have always known this method, he said. The intention of the new teaching technique is, that in future all teachers will use this approach.

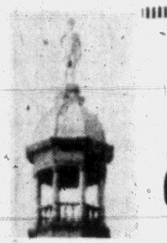
QUEBEC REBEL SECT 'BOMBS' ARMORIES



In Our HOUSE

By Arthur Mayse

★ ★ ★

If you have much to do with children, you learn not to worry over-much when the thud is followed by a hearty yowl. It's silence that brings parents on the run.

In our House, same difference.

When the Opposition proffered affidavits alleging misuse of public funds, Gordon Dowding's statement was delivered without bombast and received in somber quiet.

Friday afternoon's heat lightning over university grants that fall short of the academic 'gimme' was noisy and wild, but can be written off as little more than a tension-breaker.

Better Defenced

I note it here for two reasons. The first is that our young Dr. Pat McGeer, who lost a round earlier in the week to Attorney-General Bonner, has apparently learned the unwisdom of leading with his chin.

The new Liberal member and UBC assistant professor stated his case for the universities with force and precision. In the crossfire that followed, he returned the government nay-sayers considerably better than they hurled at him.

Uncle Gerry McGeer remembered as a pretty good hand with the Irish confetti, would have been proud of his bespectacled nephew Friday.

The other point I would note, while admittedly speculative, might be tucked away for future reference. It seems to me that during these last weeks, some of the field of force in which our premier moves has been dissipated. He strikes me as a tired and worried man. The smile-grooves still mark his face, but the smile which is so salient a feature of the Bennett public image appears less often.

Leader Loses

At least once each session, I'm told, the premier and NDP Randolph Harding treat themselves to a head-clash.

Friday was their day for a shattering of lances; and when the dust cleared, it was Mr. Bennett not Mr. Harding, who had bitten the dust.

For the dominant figure in a dominant party, such reversals are not good. They could conceivably lead to an end perhaps crueller than the fate of a Caesar or a Huey Long: the decline into political nonentity suffered under this same dome by the deposed premier from whom Mr. Bennett—a watchfully quiet Conservative in those years—learned some of his choicest gambits.

Thorns Too

Increased vocational training has been advocated by all parties this week in the House. The rose isn't without its thorn, though; and I could wish Opposition Leader Strachan had spoken at greater length on the virtues of the old-fashioned apprentice system.

Another who suggested that prefabricated voca-

UBC Grant Issue Stirs Sharp Row In Legislature

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett lost his temper Friday and demanded the resignation of rookie MLA Dr. Patrick McGeer.

THESE GRANTS STARTED FUSS

These are the grants that caused the legislative explosion Friday:

Victoria College: $1,454,000 general grant; $700,000 capital grant;

UBC: $8,575,000 general grant; $5,000,000 capital.

The Vancouver-Point Grey Liberal, an assistant professor of medicine at the University of B.C., touched off the most violent debate of the session in the legislature.

The subject was higher education, just one day after Education Minister Leslie Peterson had told the House of the government's plans to implement the recommendations of UBC president Dr. John Macdonald's report.

During the course of the day-long debate, Dr. McGeer suggested there was a conspiracy of silence between the UBC board of governors and the government about costs.

NO BLANK CHEQUE

He called for increased operating grants to both Victoria College and UBC, while Mr. Peterson answered with a refusal to supply a blank cheque, although he indicated the government might consider more money without making any promise—an apparent reference to Thursday's pledge to supply funds from coming revenue.

At one stage the debate degenerated into a slanging match between those who have university degrees and those who have not.

Dr. McGeer was "blooded" as he duelled with the government on all aspects of university financing.

He charged that Victoria College this year is getting only 40 per cent of its requested budget, UBC 35 per cent.

The House relapsed into disorder a number of times, reaching a climax just at the close of debate and ultimate approval of the $93,000,000 education department estimates.

His finger shaking, his face grim, the premier shouted at Dr McGeer: "Resign . . . resign."

He said he could not hold two jobs at once—UBC teacher and MLA.

He said Dr. McGeer's criticism was "disgraceful."

Tony Gargrave (NDP—Mackenzie) angrily retorted that he was considering presenting a bill to ensure protection of MLA's jobs. He said the prem-

One Month To Go In Election Campaign

PEARSON: 'Consider The Future Of Canada'

By JAMES NELSON

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson, one month before election day, has called on Canadians to vote a strong Liberal government into office April 8 for a four-year term during which it will introduce a national health plan.

He wound up two weeks of campaigning, which took him from the Maritime provinces to Saskatchewan, with an appeal in the Lakehead for considered judgment of long-range future of Canada before voters cast their ballots.

Earlier Friday, in Selkirk, Man., he said a government should act during its term of office as though it expects to retire after four years, wrapping up its pledged program before it goes, and not defer unpopular decision or calculate its future on the basis of the next election day.

"The Conservative campaign seems to be based on three factors: That the situation is oppressive, that the Liberals are obstructive, and the Americans are offensive," Mr. Pearson said.

"I don't think that is quite enough in facing the problems that we have to face in Canada today."

RESTATES PLATFORM

He restated in summary the Liberal platform to a jam-packed audience of 2,200 in the Lakehead Exhibition Coliseum where he received warm applause from most of his listeners and few interjections.

The first priority is to restore confidence, to clean up our affairs and to put things in order. The second is to provide jobs by expanding and developing the economy—and do something about the 541,000 men and women who in January of this year—a year which, we are told, is one of 'unparalleled expansion'—are looking for jobs."

Mr. Pearson said, however, concentration on this second objective would not bar his government, if elected, from introducing some needed social security measures immediately. One would be supplementary old age pensions based on contributions by employers and employees, thus making no additional charge on the treasury.

Another immediate measure would be "changes in the nature of assistance for agriculture, changes without additional burden on our treasury."

HEALTH COMES NEXT

Once these priorities have been met, Mr. Pearson added, his government could go on to

Dynamite Factory Ripped by Blasts

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) Four violent explosions ripped through the world's largest dynamite factory near here today, killing at least three persons and injuring 27 others.

Officials said two Negroes and one white man were killed, although the number of Negro casualties still was being checked.

They said earlier reports of a possible 35 to 40 dead were exaggerated.

Officials at the factory hospital said 18 white and nine non-white casualties have been admitted.

The explosions at the factory at Modderfontein, 16 miles from Johannesburg, were heard as far as 20 miles away. People living within a five-mile radius said their homes were shaken to the foundations and windows blown in.

The factory area was evacu-

DIEFENBAKER: 'Nobody Loves Me But People'

By DON HANRIGHT

BELLEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker Friday night wound up a four-day southern Ontario tour as he began it—appealing for non-partisan support for what he called "the great crusade."

About 2,000 persons jammed into a collegiate hall and adjoining classrooms — biggest crowd since he began Tuesday night before 3,000 at Vineland, near St. Catharines—to hear him say he has been maligned and degraded by the Liberals but is "coming to think that everybody's against me but the people."

He spoke to about 1,000 persons—including some 200 students—in a high school at Port Hope, 70 miles east of Toronto, in the afternoon before moving by train to Belleville.

Polishing the same speech he delivered through Ontario, he accused the Liberals not only of "strangling" Parliament but of "diatribes against me which have been of the greatest possible assistance because the people are starting to realize what has been going on."

Again he said "and they haven't denied it" that recent cover-story treatment of him in an American magazine (Newsweek) was "conceived in Ottawa. . . . There were members of the Liberal who's who and the lesser who's who, who produced this thing."

'SATAN HAS COMPETITION'

Mr. Diefenbaker said of the caricature photo of him on the magazine's cover that "Satan must think he has competition down here on earth."

He called the Liberals "mugwumps" because now that the economy was on the "upswing" they refused to discuss it, whereas in the 1962 election campaign they had predicted economic ruin and "down, down, down, down graded Canada."

In one of his appeals for support in a "hard fight" he said in part:

SPEAKS OF UNITY

Speaking of his drive for racial unity in Canada, he said there was a time in the Conservative party when a man of non-British or non-French origin could not have become prime minister because "a geneological tree was more important than citizenship."

But he said there still are Conservative party members who oppose his leadership — "they were against me in 1956 and they're against me again today." This was a reference to the 1956 convention where he won the party leadership.

Noting that he has been charged with indecision, he rapped Liberal Leader Pearson for making what he said were nine changes in his nuclear policy in three years and said "the Pearson formula for decisiveness is here a policy, there a policy, everywhere a policy."

Militia Boosts Guards

MONTREAL (CP) — Leaflets left in three Montreal area armories say Le Front de Liberation Quebecois (The Quebec Liberation Front) "is a revolutionary movement made up of volunteers ready to die for the economic and political independence of Quebec."

The leaflets were left after kerosene-filled "Molotov cocktails" were tossed at three armories in the Montreal area Thursday night and Friday.

The bombs failed to explode.

The home-made incendiaries —using beer and liquor bottles —were thrown at the Royal Montreal Regiment armory in suburban Westmount, the Victorian Rifles of Canada drill hall on Cathcart Street, and the armory of the 4th Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, on northwest Lacombe Avenue.

The army immediately announced it was adding guards to watch over all Montreal area armories.

One Quebec separatist group, the Republican Party of Quebec headed by Marcel Chaput, condemned the action in a statement.

The statement said "independence for Quebec will not come through a revolution but by peaceful negotiation based on the voice of the people expressed during an election or democratic referendum."

Wicks were attached to the bottles and these were set afire before the incendiaries were thrown, the army said. No damage was reported.

The roughly typewritten leaflets said "the suicide commandos" of the FLQ have as their main mission to destroy "completely by systematic sabotage":

"All symbols and colonial (federal) institutions, in particular the RCMP and the armed forces;

"All information media in the colonial language which hold us in contempt;

"All enterprises and commercial establishments which discriminate against Quebecers, which do not use French as their first language, which have advertising signs in the colonial (English) language;

"All factories which discriminate against French-speaking employees."

Urgent Plea For Vaccine

KATMANDU (Reuters)—The American Everest expedition has sent an urgent call to the Nepalese government for smallpox vaccine to combat an outbreak of the disease among the party's 900 porters, it was learned today.

The 20 members of the expedition, led by Norman Dyhrenfurth of Los Angeles, were vaccinated before starting out.

The expedition left here Feb. 20, and reached the Sherpa centre of Namche Bazar, from where it will march to a spot nearer the Everest slopes for acclimatization training, reports reaching here said.

A pilot who flew over the vast factory complex said there were four big craters in the site and trees were uprooted and scorched all around it.

Officials said an explosives stores and three other buildings were destroyed and surrounding buildings extensively damaged.

The factory, belonging to African Explosives and Chemical Industries, employes about 4,000 persons of all races.

It was established in 1894. Besides producing more than 3,000,000 cases of explosives annually, it manufactures nitrogen, ammonia and other chemicals for basic scientific research.

The explosives are used chiefly in South Africa's rich gold mining industry.

SHIPS GIVEN N-ATTACK INSTRUCTIONS

All deep-sea ships entering B.C. waters are now being issued with nuclear attack instructions for merchant ships in port, and a merchant ship evacuation and dispersal plan for major Canadian ports.

The instructions are taken aboard the ships by pilots operating with the B.C. Pilotage authority.

East coast ports have been following the procedure for several months.

The instructions are to be posted in the pilot house, engine room, and in the seamen's, firemen's and steward's departments of each ship.

OLD-LINE PARTIES BLAMED

'Sellout' Charged by Winch

Veteran NDP parliamentarian Harold Winch, in a fiery speech Friday charged both Conservative and Liberal governments of "selling out" Canada to foreign countries.

Speaking at the CCF Douglas Street Hall in support of John Windsor, NDP candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich, he accused the two old-line parties while in power of allowing foreign capital to buy out major Canadian companies and industries.

The last five years of Liberal rule and the last five years of Conservative rule will go down in history as the "biggest sellout" of Canadian companies, he said.

Since 1950 at least 240 substantial Canadian companies have been bought out by foreign money, he said.

"More than 5,000 Canadian companies are now foreign-owned," he stated.

He added that in 1961 nine fire and casualty companies were bought out by foreign capital.

"As things stand now, out of 374 fire and casualty companies, only 48 are now Canadian-owned," he said.

Mr. Winch noted that in the face of a record 10-year sellout, the Liberal and Conservative parties in their political campaigns are talking about the importance of retaining Canadian sovereignty and freedom from foreign control.

Mr. Winch also accused the Liberal and Social Credit parties of deliberately turning Canadians against Canadians in the present campaign.

"You can do well in Quebec if you curse the English people," he said, "and if you tell them they have been persecuted when they haven't been persecuted."

TWO STORIES

He said the two parties are telling Quebecers one thing and telling other part of English-speaking Canada another.

Mr. Winch lashed out at the Socreds.

"I don't know how they can ask you to vote Social Credit when they have a man like Caouette . . . when he not only boasted of having evaded the draft during the war but says his idol is Hitler."

Mr. Winch said that Caouette later explained that he meant he admired the economic policies of Hitler.

But Mr. Winch pointed out the economic policies of Hitler to provide employment was based on the liquidation of thousands of Jews.

Speaking on aid to underprivileged nations, Mr. Winch said Canada gives only one-fifth of one per cent of its gross national production to help less fortunate people.

MORE GENEROUS

He said Canada would have to be more generous to make friends with African-Asian countries.

"They are growing in power," he said, "and we can not ignore them."

Mr. Winch said there is a possibility Canada will be faced with another minority government April 8.

He said such a government would be able to operate efficiently if the elected members are honest and carry out the business of the people.

John Windsor, in a brief address said one of the issues in the present campaign is unemployment.

"I can't understand why we have a hard core of unemployment in a country like this," he said. "The present system can give full employment in wartime because they plan for it."

Mr. Windsor also favored a portable pension plan which would enable a man to move from job to job without losing his original pension.

"Every man, woman and child is entitled to medical care," he added. "I have seen serious ilnesses in families take 10 to 15 years to pay off. This is not right."

RCMP Crack Down On Goofball Pedlars

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bail totalling $8,000 was set Friday for two women and five men following a roundup of suspected goofball pedlars.

The roundup, with more arrests anticipated, was the result of undercover work by RCMP agent Const. Don Kennedy.

Const. Kennedy, a special drug agent, was brought in from the suburban Burnaby detachment early in 1963 to pose as an addict in the hunt for sellers of killer barbituates.

Charged with trafficking in barbituates (goofballs) contrary to the Food and Drug Act are: Cecil Alexander Black, 59, Pearl Jacqueline Gallant, 48, Henry Kostiuk, 48, James John McKinnon, 54, Louise De Laronde, 51, and Donald Clifford Menard, 38.

Charged with selling pills containing codeine, contrary to the Narcotics Control Act, is Edgar Joseph Hennesy, 50.

Magistrate Cyril White set bail at $2,000 for Kostiuk, who faces five counts of barbituate trafficking, and $1,000 each for the others.

All seven were remanded without plea until Tuesday.
